Footballer of the Year

The game to answer every boyhood dream - the chance to make it to the very top of football stardom. Starting on your path to glory as a 17 year old apprentice with a Fourth Division team and only £2500 and 10 goal scoring cards in your pockets, the footballing world is at your feet. Adopt the identity of a professional footballer and develop a career through the ups and downs of match days, transfer deals and injuries etc. Display your talents in Football League, U.E.F.A. F.A. and Milk Cup games and then if you're good enough the ultimate accolade of your sport, the Footballer of the Year Award.

From First Division giants and opted to stay with Rovers. This promising centre-back has signed a new contract with team manager Derek Thorpe announced today.

Cox, attracted to the club by the reputation of its manager, Derek White.

INJURED

English International striker KENNY MORGAN could be out of action for the rest of the season because of a leg injury.

The injury also threatens his chances of making it into the National Squad for the world cup later in the year.

Morgan, aged 29, has missed a large part of this season because of several other injuries. He pulled a leg muscle yesterday in an exhibition game, after scoring a goal against Rangers.

Dear Ken

Dear Karen
Thank you very much for your letter. I was very pleased to hear from you and to know that you enjoy reading "TREASURES". I hope that you will continue to do so.

Mr. Anscombe

If I'm afraid we cannot protect your little town, and in any case the Transvaal is being invaded, you are obviously threatened, although not yet invaded. But it was well of you to ask me to see. Thank you very much.
Please look for your name in Transvaal

WHIZZZZZZZZZZ

OOOH... AHHH!

Throw away those fingerless gloves 'cos you don't need 'em any more. In fact, you can throw away your fingers 'cos you won't be needing them either. No more will you wear away your slender pinkies (don't be disgusting) tapping away at a rubber keyboard. And why? 'Cos Quickshot has just brought out a new Turbo joystick — the deluxe model. It's got a high-impact plastic body and gripping suckers which means playing games is now a one handed job.

BANG!!

Isn't life a Swag eh? 'Ere, that light fingered cat burglar on a hot tin roof (thass 'im on the left) is none other than YS's own loony reviewer, Chris Palmer, designer of Ariolasoft's new game, They Stole A Million. Will you get caught 'on the job'?

Remember the good bit on telly just after you got home from school and just before John 'not another boring sweater' Craven's Newsround. Yeah, the brilliant cartoons from Hanna-Barbera like Scooby Doo and The Flintstones. Ariolasoft has just licensed two popular Hanna-Barbera cartoons, The Centurions and The Challenge Of The Gobots so now you'll be able to play them on your Speccy any time you like.

Three men make up the team known as The Centurions. Their 'Exoframes' enable them to attach all manner of advanced assault weapons to their bodies and so become both man and machine — 'Powerxtremel'. Both The Centurions and The Challenge Of The Gobots will be released in December.

A sound sampler, as if you didn't know, is a gizmo to sample/record a sound into your computer and play it back as music. Although the results are often unmusical (Exhibit A: The Top 40) the gadgets are much sought after. Now you can buy two! Both Ram Electronics and Cheetah have brought out sound samplers for you to cram onto your Speccy. The Ram one's £49.95 and the Cheetah one's £44.95. N-n-n-n-not bad.

In the old days you'd just rub a dusty old bottle, and a green-skinned geezer would jump out and say, in gravelled tones: "Oi, cock! Stop rubbing me bottle!"

Nowadays, the story isn't so different. You want to look at a bit of code in your Spectrum. You push the red button on your trusty Multiface One... and whoosh!

"I'm the Genie of the Multiface One Disassembler from Romantic Robot. In one fell swoop I can disassemble any portion of memory as ASCII, hex, decimal or just plain assembler. In fact, I turn your Multiface into a brilliant new device. Wacky, huh? Now push off, and let me get some kip!"

On this month's DigiTape reel, besides the labels and the cassette box, you'll find ready-to-serve versions of the game listed in the Program Power section... Time Bomb by Robert Burgess, PLUS a brand spanking (thwak!) new adventure game, The Forest Of Long Shadows, by Martin Page. Plus the fantastic azimuth correction program complete with technical screwdriver from last month makes a return.

Incidentally, (or interdentally if you're a toothpick) all you frustrated Elitists who were having difficulty tapping in the hacking programs from last ish, take heart. All the programs are included on the last DigiTape (October '86 edition), so if you can swing for the paltry price of £3.50, you can have all of it up and running in no time.

On the new Sinclair 128+2 there's a mean little message above the newly added joystick ports. It says "Use only Sinclair SJS1 joysticks". Sinclair/Amstrad have been very canny in reconfiguring the wires in their joystick ports so your average bog-standard Kempston won't work. Not to be upset by this, Cheetah has added an extra plug to its new Sticks of Joy, specially to fit the +2! And if you don't want to bin your existing joysticks, Cheetah's also brought out an adaptor that'll make them fit.

"This is a clause that's in every contract. If you go crazy it's null and void..."

"Null and void?"

"Null and void. It's a sanity clause."

"Hah! You donna foola me! I know there's no such thing as a Santa ti Claus. Dat-a remind me..."

"What?"

"Ah wanna void wid you."

"An' what word might thata be, my fine young Italian cucumber?"

"The void is digitised-a pictures."

"That's two words, butter mouth."

"Okay, so I lied..."

(Groucho and Chico were brought to you via the Data-Skip Videoface video digitiser, available from Data-Skip, Lange Willemsteeg 10, 2801 WC Gouda, Holland. And at a trifling £69 is certainly cheaper than a day at the races.)

CRACKLE!

Shockway Rider

Keep this map for handy reference

This is you, the Shockway Rider.

Here's the host of thugs, villains and bootboys.

There are three shockways (similar to these pictured here)

A detailed plan view of the city's ring of shockways.

Here it is! Frontlines' biggest scoop ever! A sneak preview of Shockway Rider, in the form of a sketch of the screen by the master of Gargoyle's graphics, Greg Follis.

In the future, people are pretty bored, what with robots taking over all the work an' stuff. There's not much to do, except mebbe whizz around on the shockways, the moving pavements which surround the city. Then some bright spark came up with the idea of a game, where you must ride the shockways, against a tide of thugs trying to stop you, until you make one circuit of the city. Only the very best make it.

T'zers...

Oh the wonders of modern technology — my deluxe electronic Silver Reed has given up the ghost and I've had to resort to my trusty old Imperial. So you'll have to forgive me if T'zers is a bit jerky this month.

I'm completely knackered after the rigours of the PCW Show. What d'you mean you didn't see me there? I was rushing round at the speed of lightning so you probably missed me. Oh, okay I was actually somewhere else... well, in foreign parts... Spain to be precise. But I still managed to fly back in time to bring you the latest hot poop on the Speccy scene. For starters... crank... clink... phlip the (klunk) key's just gone. I hope you can... krikey what is this? The (bonk) key's gone too... you'll just have to konsentrate now won't you.

Peeling really pheroshious? This'll be just up your street then. Hell's Angel Mirrorsopht is bringing out Mean Streak — a bikers' dream. Pheel that throbbing machine and hear the skream oph the engine as you begin your rase against death. Kan't wait to kikk start that one...

On the subjekt oph phried phish phingers, Melbourne House is bringing out Bazooka Bill... the mind boggles as to what that one's about! It's other releases include a new adventure by Mike Singleton called Throne Ov Phire and two rampaging robot games — Mutiny In Spase and Phighting Warrior. Berilliant. Plus there's Konquestador, a arkade adventure and... wait phor it... Marble Madness Konstruktion Set. Kor, that sounds phar out! It enables you to kreate your own versions ov the popular arkade game and me phinks it'll be a whole heap ov phun.

KRL is simply bulging with new games phor the Spektrum — hold your breath 'kos here comes the list... Dr What, who?... What, what... yes What, oh... Akademey, Murder Oph Miami, Kustard's Quest, The Mallinsay Massakre... arrgh... splat) and Stretkh Doubt. Annnnnnnnd... don't go away now... there's two new titles in the Alpha-Omega range namely Xeno and Oblivion. Wow, who's going to have a really stuphphed Khristmas stocking then?

Those war mongers at KKS have been battling away to bring you Napolean At War (I say, I say, I say. Where did Napolean keep his armies? Up his sleeves. Shreak, kakkie, giggle) where you play Nappy himself at the Battle at Eylau. There's also Gallipoli, a phirst world war battle simulation set in the Dardanelles. Aka... aka... ak!

A WORLD CUP MANAGEMENT SIMULATION

On June 22nd, 1986, England's bid to become World Champions for the next four years came to an end in the Azteca stadium, Mexico City. How well did Bobby Robson do? Can YOU outperform him? MEXICO '86 gives YOU charge of the England team two years before the start of the Mexico finals. You must experiment with a demoralised squad who failed to qualify for the European Nations' Cup, drafting in players as you see fit, and nurse the team through the Qualifying stages of the World Cup. If you qualify, you must choose your squad for Mexico, play through Phase 1, the groups of four, into the last 16. Can you now take England two stages further than Bobby Robson and then win the big one? It takes a thorough understanding of International Football to win in MEXICO '86.

ENGLAND'S GAMES: FULL PITCH, 22 MAN, 3D GRAPHICS & SOUND EFFECTS

Prodigy

You're puttin' Frontlines on! Synthetic Man Changes Nappy? Tsk! Don't believe it. (It's true!) Oh. Okay, what is it? Prodigy from Electric Dreams, yeah... Solo the synthetic man, and Nejo a human baby... uh-huh. You must make your way through Wardlock the Machine Magician's Nightmare Zones... and summink called Intelligent Mazes? An intelligent maze is one that changes relative to your position in it. Hmm. Sounds a bit nappy to me.

Zythum

Hic... Mirrorshot is jush about to re...release a new game... hic... called Zythum. Zythum ish the elixir of life, a rare and magical drink that's sch...scur...shecreted... hidden in the depths of a cashlle. Hic! You've to travel through hostile lands fraught with danger in order to find this amber nectar and all you've got to help you is a magical staff, and a stock of light bombs though you'll find other objects along the way. Just have a look at the screenshot to shee what you're up against.

They stole a MILLION!

Did you know that Pythagoras never ate baked beans? Not a lot of people know that. And not a lot of people know that the hit Commodore (Boo, hiss, spit) game, Uridium from Hewson is to be released for the jolly old Speccy either. 'Bout time too, Frontlines reckons.

Set in interplanetary space, you control a Manta fighter that has to wipe out the mobile and surface defences of an alien fleet of super-Dreadnoughts. And it sounds like it's going to be tough with all the 'thunderous rocketry', 'screaming airframes' and 'shattering cannon shells' bombarding your senses. Pythagoras could never have handled it even without the beans.

Uridium

'Ere, d'you fink you could pull off the crime of the century? Gaw blimey, I should coco. Wot you 'ave to do is get yourself a copy of Ariolasoft's new game, They Stole A Million. Then yer just gotta decide, like who yer gonna use for the job. Fingers Flannagan, Joe 'Tumble' Fredricks or wot about James 'Jelly' Roll? If that ain't enuff yer've then gotta find a fence. Mebbe Small Change Sue's a bit dodgy but Art 'Guilt Edged' Argent ain't that trustwuvvy neever. Better do it right mate or yer gonna 'ave to scarper — unless yer fancy doing a stretch in the slammer.

Are you a 2000AD freak? Is Rogue Trooper your hero? He is? Well, thrill-seekers suck on this. The blue-skinned fighting machine is about to hit your Speccy screen, courtesy of Piranha. Frontlines rather likes the sound of it too 'cos of all those chip buddies... mmm... with lashings of vinegar and... yum — oh they're bio-chip buddies. Still, have a peek at the preview screen — looks pretty cosmic and it'll be even better when it's completely finished.

Imagine the scene... Rogue Trooper stands alone surrounded by desolation and sob, sob, the smouldering remains of his pals Gunnar, Helm and Bagpuss, sorry Bagman. With only seconds to collect his buddies' chips and install them in his equipment, he must then go in search of the clues that'll lead him to the identity of the traitor who's betrayed the cause of the Souther army. This is one thrill worth waiting for.

ROGUE TROOPER

Excuse the squeals of pain and have a look at the screenshot. There are 100 screens altogether featuring a huge landscape of jungle, volcanoes, mazes, temples and shrines. Your opponents are vicious beasts of prey, warriors, mercenaries, ninjas in ambush and human mud warriors — I really love those tiger feet. With 21 different moves to master and the scrolls of the Fist Masters to find and decipher, there's plenty going on down.

- a) another name for Baseball, which is a popular game a bit like Rounders in the US.
- b) a splendid new simulation game from the above mentioned Advance Software Promotions.
- c) best of all, it's a really good excuse to make off-colour hard-ball jokes, like the first line of this paragraph. Heh heh.

Having beaten our brains out with Way Of The Tiger, Gremlin (just add water) Graphics is about to smack our chops with Avenger — Way Of The Tiger II. It's based on the first book in the Tiger Gamebook series. Other new cucumbers from the Gremlin Greenhouse are Footballer Of The Year (guess what sort of a game that is!), Future Knight and of course the mega amazing Trailblazer. In it you play the part of a football... (Huh?) Yes, a football, bouncing along the chequered highway of some far away planet. Why? For fun of course, silly. And v. good fun it is too. Frontlines' hi-score on this is completely ginormous.

Nope, not the Downing Street nut-hutch. No, this is a room on a far distant planet belonging to the Galcorp Leisure Corporation, where tired Tau Ceti players can let off a bit of steam and play a spot of 'glyingd'. Glyingd, in case you've just spent the last thirty years on an ice planet, is a kind of 3D ping pong game for two players. Get your ticket to the next game from CRL, price £7.95.

Zut alors, 'ow are zese men of very little brain to find zem with all zese Romans and gladiators roaming la rue. And zey can't even Getafix from ze very powerful potion - oh non!

Anyway David 'No I wasn't in the Monkees' Jones, the inphamous writer ov the Magik Knight trilogy is presently writing an arkade game kalled Droid Island. More about that next month.

Remember the Arkade Special a couple of issues back where I told you Konami was to bring out their own Spektrum version of koin-ops? Well, I can now konphirm 100 percent, absolutely dephinitely, without a shadow of a doubt that Konami is releasing Jail Break, Nemesis, Super Basketball and Iron Horse. Phollowing in their phootsteps will be the immensely suksessphul Salamander but you'll have to wait a while phor that one.

That other master of arcade konversion, Elite has been busy too. Up'n'coming on the Specky phront is Ikari Warriors, Kommando 86, Stringphellow, Hawkes, New Airwolph and Spase Harrier — all of them should be out by Christmas.

Well stone me, a certain software company has just scooped the licensing deal to a very well known philm. Ha, but I'm not going to tell you what. Okay, okay I submit. It's Oshean and the philm is Kobra. Not only that it's also lisensed Top Gun, that was a box ophise hit in Amerika, and Short Skruik. Look out phor the arkade konversions Mag Max and Galvan — you can get a phree kopy ov either ov these iph you take out a subskription to YS. Boy, what more kould you ask phor? Well . . . To top it all Oshean's also adding another to its kompilation range — They Sold A Million 3, brought to you by the Hit Squad.

Brrrrrrrrrrr! Here's something to send shivers up your spine — Mikro-Gen's Mike Meek . . . klunk! I rekkon another key has phallen oph . . . where was I? Oh yes, Mikro-Gen's Mike Meek has just been telling me about PhrostByte, its brand new game. It pheatures the rather slinky Hicky who's a bit oph a kreezer and phrom the planet Kosmia. He's got a bit ov a sweet tooth and spends his time stuphing his phase to phind out the dipherent ephekts ov various sweets. Sounds a bit stikky to me!

How are your shock absorbers? 'Kos Martekh's are pretty kosmik at the moment. No I haven't gone mad, I'm talking about its new game kalled Kosmik Absorber that's 'phull ov 3D blasting phun'. Iph you phansy a bit more ov an intellektual khallenge kath Katkh 23 when it comes out later this year.

Phew! It's just as well I've phinished T'zers 'kos praktklly I the keys hve phllen out nd . . .
brmmmmmmggggggggggg . . . the bell's jst stkk too . . .

DEACTIVATOR 5

ARE COMING SOON!

BAD TIMES GUYS! As head of security at the Gravitational Research Institute I am just settling down to my roast banana and garlic pie when suddenly my hotline goes! A fanatical group of saboteurs have infiltrated the Institute, planted numerous time-bombs AND reprogrammed my robot guards to give me a hard time!

Well, that's it then! I have to call in my elite force of Deactivator Droids to clear the 5 labs and sort out the nutty guards. Of course, it's not so easy to move from room to room when floors may be ceilings and ceilings may be walls!

If they can throw the bombs out before we ALL end up defying the law of gravity then maybe I can finish my pie!

HURDIE HURDIE WAHAY!

I have a problem. Why can't I buy Sam Fox Strip Poker. In Sweden I've been looking for it everywhere and I can't find it. It's probably the moralists up here in the north who've stopped it.

Maths Bäckman
Uppsala, Sweden

You do have a problem — wanting to buy Sam "Wahay" Fox Strip Poker. But a more likely explanation than the Swedish Mary Whitehouses is that a young lady wearing very little round the Uppsala region could find that she's soon had her assets frozen! Ed

GOSFORTH AND MULTIPLY

"That which has made them drunk hath made me bold" wrote William Shakespeare in a book of mis-spellings called Macbeth. The exams have passed, the results are near, I may have failed, that I fear, but I am back!

Forget the intro, September YS was a mess. The letters page focused mainly around a young (!) girl (!) Ed named after a fizzy drink. (Um Bongo? Ed). The reviews weren't bad, but Deathchase-6!

Now for my attempt at a Trainspotter Award: Program Power Pull-Out program Bubble Trouble had no Hex Loader, I bought eighteen copies of Sept YS but there was still no sign of one. Sort out your typesetters quickly because as good old William would say, "If it were done when 'tis done, then 'twere well it were done quickly;" John Pinkney
Gosforth, Newcastle-upon-Tyne

Is this a dagger I see before me? As Bill the Quill would say, "Bubble Trouble, toil and a flippin' pain in the Richard the Thirds." If you still can't get the game in any witch way, an seacures a loader. Now out damned spot! Ed

TOMMY ROT

Correct me if I'm wrong

(You're wrong! Ed) but my sources and powers of deduction tell me that Rachael "she who loveth Gwyn and writeth the pathetic small reviews" Smith is a fan of Tom Lehrer! See if you recognize these:

"I ache for the touch of your lips, dear. But much more for the touch of your whips, dear." (The Masochism Tango)

"We will all bake together when we bake

... nearly three billion hunks of well-done steak."

(We will all go together when we go)

"So though for breakfast she makes coffee that tastes like cham ... pool

I come home to dinner and get peanut butter stew

Or if I'm in luck, it's broiled hockey puck!"

(She's my girl)

At this juncture budding Sherlock Holmeses should turn to page 13 of the September ish. And one can obviously count on Gilbert and Sullivan for a really rousing finale — full of words and wit and music and signifying — nothing!

Sprog the insane, alias Tom "smart-ass"

Salinsky

Wembley, Middlesex

You're a complete and utter nutter. They'll be poisoning more than pigeons down in Wembley Park when this gets out! Ed

MON GUS

Serious matters — what time does T'zer get off work and does she like haggis. (Haggis is the name of my pet snake — which T'zer can come and see anytime!)

Gus Thomson

Linwood, Paisley

I'd love to have haggis and a wee dram with you. But I'd have to bring Rocky with me — Rocky, my pet mongoose. Who, by the way, is more than a little miffed that his hero, Sylvester Stallone, has now brought out a film called Cobra. If you're reading this, Sylv ... T'zer. Do be quiet before I bash both your neeps. Ed

But tell me, art thou completely dyslexic?
Caroline

Forget Lesley Ash and Tracy-Louise Ward, forget Teresa Maughan and Anne Diamond and forget the Ed (well, maybe I shouldn't go that far but forget those others), I give you Ms Caroline Clayton. Yes! Good ol' Ms CC herself, well what can I say after that stunning photo in the Sept ish!

She has got to be the most beautiful young lady on the YS team (or is it a team? The end product is always so muddled). Anyhow back to reality (This is reality? Ed), please send me a full size cardboard cut-out of Ms C or failing that a bit of vintage TP belly fluff (pickled please!)

Yours in a raging passion for Caroline,

Galdor Craeftig
Sawbridgeworth, Herts

PS I like your designer Miami Vice stubble, Ed! See page 4, Sept ish.

Don't talk to me about my stubble. After the harvest a couple of weeks back, I attempted to burn it off (as recommended in the last issue of Farmers Weekly) but the fire spread downwards and my Gary Glitter chest wig went up in flames. As to your last request, we were all at sea over Pete's navel fluff (sea, naval, forgeddit) so here's a life size do-it-yourself cardboard cut-out of the fair Caroline. Ed

LETTERS

JUMBLY'D UP

The only good parts of your magazine are Task Force and the letters about Jumbly, each of which should be given at least two pages per issue.

Jumbly is years old but it's still great fun and the graphics are much better than most of the new games now. The titles I have are LETTERS, JUMBLY, NURSERY, FLIGHT, PLANS, WINDOW, VERSE, VERTIGO, TUNNEL, TRAINS and STAIRS in that order. STAIRS is the final picture and when you complete it you get a code based on your name.

Kevin Watts

Great Dunmow, Essex

PS If you can't manage two pages of Jumbly letters, just print mine (extra large) each issue.

Wow, that'd be mega. We could change the name to Your Jumbly and have quotations from that Edward Lear poem about the Jumblies but off hand we can only remember the one about the Owl and Pussycat who went to pee in a boat and one about the luminous dong, but as this is a special Shakespeare letters page here's a quote from King Lear, "Tis a naughty night to swim in." Oh, they don't write 'em like that any more. Ed

WELSH RABBIT

What on earth does Gwyn think he's playing at? Okay, I can understand the strained reviewer being driven to the odd spurt of perversity, discussing squashed babies and crazed grapplers, but the review of Tremor in the September ish surely warrants a call from the men in white.

I brought Tremor, the recent release from Americana, a couple of weeks ago having been impressed by a running demonstration of it. It must surely be one of the best budget games I have ever bought, and I would rate it much higher than other classics in my collection such as Spellbound and Knight Time.

Firstly, the little Welsh twit waffles on about the instructions of the game being unintelligible and a considerable contributor to the game's downfall. What a load of leek stew! The blurb, in my opinion, is quite amusing and a welcome change from the usual deadly serious stuff that packages most games nowadays.

Secondly, I found the 400

TRAINSPOTTER AWARD

To the bloke I'll get a trainspotter off...

In the September ish, the arcade feature by T'zer had two glaring errors and one that is debatable. Here they are:

1) You do not have to be over 16 to go to an amusement arcade: my parents have been managing one for 11 years and during that time the old Bill has been in and out on many occasions and not once did they stop anyone from 3 years to 333 years old (Very old Bill! Ed) gambling on the fruit machines.

screen map which accompanies Tremor extremely useful, as it allowed me to get into the game much more easily. I've visited at least 200 of the rooms, and contrary to the opinion of Captain Daffodil, it is perfectly accurate!

And what's this about the speech? It seems to me that farmer's boy must have had an overdose of dung in his lugholes when he was treated to this, a masterpiece of Speccy oratory.

2) Someone in your art department got drunk. (It'll make the news when they sober up! Ed) The photo for the arcade version of Commando was definitely on its side.

3) All the video games in our local arcade are only 10p per play and not 20p as T'zer stated.

So, I want three trainspotter awards or at least one anyway. Keep up the high standard of YS and how about more letters.

Jok

East Looe, Cornwall

To the bloke who's not getting a trainspotter off me.

1) The force ain't with you! I checked with the local constabulary and was told that you do have to be over 16. And now you've blown the gaffe, you'd better hope that your old Bill doesn't get off his bike and nab you.

2) Hic! Art Ed. Okay, you win this one. You get the award. Ed

3) It's alright for you lot out in the sticks. Here in the smoke it's 20p a shot. I could do with a holiday — you couldn't put up an inept editor by any chance? Ed

His major complaint, however, was that the aliens kept appearing too near him and splatting him before he could bottle. Well, if you stay in one place without firing, jumping, thrusting or smartbombing for too long, I dare say one of the angry extra-terrestrials will risk a kamikaze run but to me the sprites were a joy to watch. Just sit in a secluded corner of the screen and watch them bounce around in a beautifully choreographed sequence!

Marc Wilson

Charlton, Middlesex

PS If you don't print this letter, I'll come round with a pitchfork and give Mr Youknowwho's haystack a good turning over!

Look you boyo, any more yacky da out of you and you'll end up as Eisteddfodder. The land of my fathers will rise again as in the days of the great Owen Glendower and smite the cursed English. This winter I shall see to it that you are well and truly Snowdon. And the men of Harlech will forego choir practice and...

Why, oh why, must you start him off. He only comes from North London. Ed

NOT TO BE SNIFFED AT

I'm glad you've changed your smell. Your brilliant, excellent, fantastic, amusing, lovely mag YS doesn't smell like it used to. It could just be the shop I buy it from but I don't know. I smelled the September ish and the May ish (sorry I never bought the June, July or August 'cos I was on holiday and I couldn't find 'em) and they smelled different. Well, to be exact the September ish doesn't smell at all. Not that I didn't like the smell of May's but it's certainly improved. Well done you lovely people at YS. I'm going to buy lots of your mags.

Mark Bryan
Luton, Beds

Haven't we always said that YS is a mag that's not to be sniffed at? As you now nose, we've had the YS Olfactory on the scent of this for a few months and the first completely odourless issue hit the shops in September — that's right, it's the first mag with snout taken out! But what's this about the June, July and August issues — do you realise that you've denied your nasal orifice an exquisite odoriferous celebration. June was full of East 10 promise, perfumed with the musky incense of the orient — Leyton Orient. July tickled the nostrils with the salty smack of a gentle sea breeze — one to warm the cockles. And August was a pot-pourri of country fragrances — lavender and hollyhocks, sweet grasses and cow pat. Now you know why we've stripped the pooh bear! Ed

RHUBARB CRUMBLIES

I keep meaning to write but being a YTS peasant (As opposed to a YS peasant! Ed) I can't afford the stamps. Whilst flicking through the mag I saw the ad for the Opus which I then sent off for. Delivery time was okay. Two days. But when I connected it to my old faithful it wouldn't work. Disheartened, I rang Opus. "Oh, it's the Z80. We often have this problem." I thought this was a load of rubbish. So did my dad. So did everyone at my computer college including the teaching crumblies.

My dad rustled up a few Z80 chips and, stand back in amazement, the drive worked and loaded the copying program. Everyone looked right wallies, especially the crumblies.

Christopher Ali
Chelmsford, Essex

Which just goes to show that when the chips are down, that's the way the crumblies cock it up. Ed

DIRTY MAC

Whilst I was searching for my favourite Spectrum magazine, YS I noticed another mag called MacUser. Being of a curious nature I delved into its pages and explored the world of the Macintosh, tosh.

The first thing I noticed was that MacUser had the same address as YS. Can this be true? Is YS being run by a Macintosh? After I recovered from this shock, I put back the Mac mag and picked up YS.

Whilst reading the ish (YS7) I saw the Hit List page and at the bottom of the page I saw some graphics depicting the fortunes of Gremlin Graphics. These graphics looked as though they weren't done on a Spectrum. Were they done on an Apple Macintosh perhaps? This discovery also applies to the titles of the reviewed games in that issue which also have the Mac look.

So, are the YS team really Macs with old clothes on?

Philip Latham
Macclesfield, Cheshire

You have discovered our filthy secret. The YS team has joined the dirty Mac brigade. Ed

SUB STANDARD?

The other day I was at a friend's house and while he was on the loo, I looked under his bed (That Max Phillips has got a lot to answer for — see YS8) and found an inferior computer mag (which shall remain nameless.) I quickly flicked through it and saw an ad for subscriptions to their mag. When you subscribed to them you got a choice of a game, free.

Why doesn't YS do this? Is this because you're skint? Or is the Ed too stingy? And I think it would be a good idea if you gave us a Teresa (kiss, kiss etc...) Maughan's Strip Poker as a Program Power pull-out. After all, if we can get to see Sam Fox's digitised doo-dahs, why shouldn't we look at Teresa (drool) Maughan's. Maybe she has no doo-dahs to be digitised! Has she?

Shane Reid
Belfast, N Ireland

Yes, I am skint. Yes, I am stingy. But in a moment of unheard of generosity I overcame my natural inclinations towards parsimoniousness (and writing long words) and I am now offering a free game worth £7.95 with every subscription to YS. But you can read all about that on the subs page — I'm not writing any more about it here. Paper costs money you know. Now as for T'zer's doo-dahs, don't let her hear you mention them. But just to prove she has got them, here's a perty piccy.

Portuguese Sinclair Blues from Paulo Jorge Bastos.

MARKED OF YESOD

"Great, an infinite lives program for 128K Arc Of Yesod." Click-hum-rustle-rustle-tap-tap-tapping tap-tap-tap-click. "There, finished. Now to run it!" Click, click.

Beeeeeeee bop, beeeeeee diddly, diddly etc...

Half an hour later...

"Hooray, it's loaded!" Three channel music pours forth.

"Right, Kempston joystick — away we go!" More music plus various explosions and pops etc.

"Blast I died!... and again... still, not to worry, I've got infinite lives!... Damn!" ... 3 channel death march... "Hey, what's going on?"

Great, an infinite lives program for 128K Arc Of Yesod... now, how's about printing one that works!

T Hearne
Newport, Isle of Wight

I dunno, some people are just never satisfied. The program gave you all the pleasure of anticipation and you still want more! Oh, I'll have a word with Chris Wood I s'pose. Chriiiiis. I want a word with you. Botfly! Ed

SMALL PRINT

Hellol I just want to say this. Thank you for a lovely Maughazine!

Fredrik Bjarfors
Taby, Sweden

Well, everyone knows that YS starts its life as T'rezel T'zer

I think this is the first letter that'll disgrace this mag.

C Gallimore
Winstanly, Wigan

Obviously a new reader. You can catch up on all the other disgraceful letters we've printed by checking out the back issues. Ed

Pathetic! Can't your YS team add up properly or were they born totally thick?

Adrian Middleton
Cunningsburgh, Shetland

No, they had thickness thrust upon them! Ed

You couldn't by any chance send me a copy of the print-out of Samantha Fox that appeared in your September issue?

Stephen Martin
Drumoyne, Glasgow
Don't tell me. It's for this 'O' level project you're doing. Ed

VOX

Launched on an unsuspecting public, Troubleshootin' Pete (Likes Hopscotch, YS software and his anorak) and mad pics man Phil South (Likes Trap Door, fuschia and beans on toast) try to find the pulse of the people at this year's Personal Computer World Show.

Hemal Radia from Ruislip is 13. His favourite game is Green Beret. Likes Movie, the colour red and Ocean's software. Dislikes games that won't load. He owns a spiral bound reporter's notebook, an anorak and he reckons he's a Trainspotter!

Stephen Burton, 15, comes from Clapham (okay, yah) in London. Likes Melbourne House games, Ghosts 'n' Goblins. Dislikes his friend ("the most boring thing at the Show") and "when you're really doin' well in a game an' it messes up". His fave computer's a Speccy (a man of taste, here), but doesn't know if he's going to buy a Spectrum 128+2.

Carl Norman comes from Barnhurst in Kent. He's 13 and his fave game is Dan Dare ("Space Harrier in the arcades, though"). Likes Uridium and grey socks. Dislikes the age games take to load. Once owned a large cardboard Apple box and a pair of mittens on elastic. Possesses an anorak but claims not to be a Trainspotter!

Andre Morel's from Luton. He's 17 with size 12 feet (wow!) Likes Spy Hunter, Gauntlet (in the arcades), and the colour of lentils (hey, guys, double wow!) Dislikes the price of some games compared to the budget labels and the Sanyo stand. Andrew would like to see a Kempston joystick interface built into the next Sinclair machine.

Stephen Grimley is 15 and comes from Wandsworth in London. Likes Bomb Jack, US Gold and the karate arcade game "where a bloke picks you up off the train". He also took a fancy to three gals on the YS stand (T'zer, Sara and Ed in his evening frock?) Dislikes games that won't load and his mate Spotty. Reckons the length of a piece of string "depends how long the reel is!"

Alex Fry came up from Bitterne in Southampton. He's 16 and just luvves Sam Fox (wahay) Strip Poker! Likes Jet Set Willy, Split Personalities ("and the girl on the Martech stand too.") Dislikes software companies that advertise their games yonks before they're ready. Once owned a cardboard box "bout this big by this big".

Prepare
musical breakthrough.

The Spectrum like you've never heard it before.

Introducing Music Machine: The incredible new add-on that transforms the Spectrum into a powerful music computer.

A host of exciting musical features makes Music Machine the most complete Spectrum music package ever created.

There's sound sampling, the latest buzz-word in electronic music that lets you record and play any natural sound at different pitches. (Use the microphone to pick up anything from a whistle to a barking dog).

Eight 'voices' include drums, piano and synthesiser—you can edit them, or create new ones. A powerful drum section with real drum sounds and a complete rhythm editor.

And for budding composers, powerful professional features like note and tune editing, playable either from the Spectrum itself or a music keyboard.

Enthusiasts will appreciate the ability to link with other instruments via MIDI (the professional music interface) and

BEAM ME UP SPOTTY!

A Vulcan, 30 Star Trek games and 30 T-shirts up for transportation!

Ear, how'd you like to get your hands on a Vulcan? No, not Mr Spock — that would be highly illogical. It's a shiny new, squeaky clean Vulcan electric posing machine — or guitar to you. (Quick joke: how d'you spot a Vulcan's guitar? He keeps coughing!) No longer will you have to strum thin air making wah-wah noises. The rest of your family'll be doing the wailing while you let rip with the riffs. And there are no strings attached. Well there are on the guitar but not to the compo. And don't fret if you can't play 'cos it's never stopped Mike Reid. Worse luck!

And that's just one of the prizes in our spaced-out Star Trek compo. You can also win one of 30 copies of Beyond's new game and 30 Star Trek T-shirts.

Star Trek, the game, should really phaser you. The Klingons are marauding round space having taken over people's minds. Well, have you seen the Ed lately? Not only that but there's a pretty gross rebellion going on in Klein Space. As commander of the Enterprise, your mission, should you decide to accept it Jim (Wrong programme! Ed) is to boldly go where no man, or woman or little furry animal has been a gonner before. You've got over 1,000 stars to explore and there are 256 sub-plots as well as the major one. As for Captain Kirk — Elite his heart out over this one!

If you think you're an Enterprising sort, have a bash at writing a really wacky caption to the Star Trek pic below, and make it as warped as humanly possible. Fill in the coupon and send the whole cosmic caboodle, or a photocopy, to the Beam Me Up Spotty Compo, YS, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE.

What a vulcan! Okay, so it hasn't got big pointy ears but it doesn't half wang!

Rules

It's not only highly illogical for employees of Sportscene Specialist Press and Beyond to enter this competition — it's illegal as well.

Entries received after Star Date 30.11.86 will be jettisoned into space.

If you argue with the Ed you must be warped to a factor of at least ten.

HIT LIST

There's a new, improved look to Hit List this month. The chart's been extended so that the top twenty Speccy games are covered. The 12 Months Ago chart is still there, and YS Tips For The Top have been added. These are five games that I reckon are going to zoom into the charts very shortly, especially when you've read the reviews in YS! Another new addition is the YS ratings. These are the marks that each game got when they were reviewed, so that you can see at a glance what the YS team thought of the game you're about to buy — a total turkey or a mega megagame!

DESERT ISLAND DISKS

Introducing this month's two castaways, YS megamappers Mischa Welsh and Stephen Hill. Music maestro please...

Arcadia/Imagine
Mischa: The very first game I ever bought, way back in '82, when £5.50 was a bit steep... Great fun though!

Bomb Jack/Elite
Stephen: Simply the most utterly, completely, brilliant game on the Speccy!

Bobby Bearing/The Edge
Stephen: Now here's a game with real balls...

Match Point/Psion
Mischa: A really accurate simulation, this one. All you need are strawberries and cream and faintly in the distance you hear "Net... Advantage Mr Becker".

Fairlight/The Edge
Stephen: The best 3D role player around, with lifelike characters and settings...

Manic Miner/Software Projects/Bug-Byte
Mischa: Not only the first platforms and ladders game on the rubber thingie, but the first to star a Willy.

Cookie/Ultimate
Stephen: Incredibly addictive... I lost hours of sleep with this one.

Deathchase 2000/Micromega
Stephen: This oldie comes from a time when tearing around an Endorian forest on an Imperial speeder bike seemed like my wildest dream come true.

And finally, chaps, what would be your luxury items of no practical use on your island?
Stephen: A black prostreet 1957 Chevrolet BelAir, two door pillarless sports coupé, with a full tank of gas.
Mischa: Tina Turner!

DATA - SKIP

VIDEOFACE

DIGITISER

FOR ZX-SPECTRUM

Real ZX-Spectrum screen-shots!

The Data-Skip "VIDEOFACE" digitiser is a new dimension for the spectrum user. If you possess a video-recorder or camera, you now can create most realistic television pictures on your ZX-Spectrum! The "VIDEOFACE" is better than the competition because:

- It's faster (3 times a sec)
- It's more realistic.
- It animates latest 6 screens!
- It has an adjustable animation speed!
- It saves to tape, microdrive or Beta-disk
- And it's even cheaper!

It produces a high-res 256x192x4 bit spectrum screen! and because of its speed a still frame is NOT needed! You can even digitise a moving frame! And whilst scanning you can adjust the slice.

DATA-SKIP VIDEOFACE DIGITISER

Please send me Videofaces at £69.00 each.

VAT and P&P to VICTOR.

Vortex/£8.95

Tommy If you're looking for a spot of Commie bashing, comrades, you can forget it. This Revolution hasn't even got anything to do with the ill-fated Al Pacino epic that bombed at the movies this year. But it sure is a game that's hot to Trotsky.

Revolution is a 3D puzzle game. You have to work your way through eight levels stacked one on top of the other. On each level there are four puzzles to solve, with a limited amount of time to solve them in, before you're transported onto the next platform. As for the puzzles — they'd have Rubik tearing his hair out! They all consist of two grey cubes arranged in different configurations. Touch one of the cubes and it turns white; now touch the other before the first goes grey again and the pair of them disappear and bingo, you've solved your first puzzle.

So, what could be simpler? Taking a day trip to the moon. Making a million. Working for YS. 99 per cent of all human activity actually. The big problem is that you're controlling a bouncing ball — though come to think of it, control is not quite the right word for the way I played the game. And you can only alter the direction of the ball when it hits the ground. You can also regulate the bounce of the ball but remember to take into account the momentum that it's already got. It's one hell of a tricky task trying to judge the bounce of the ball and move it between the cubes in the couple of seconds that you're given to complete the puzzle. And you're not helped if one of the cubes is completely hidden — yes, it happens — or if you keep getting frazzled by the spiky nasties.

But now the ball's in your court — you give it a go. Boing, boing, aaaargh! Oh, I forgot to mention that you can fall off the edge or between the cracks of the platforms into the inky void of oblivion. Still, four more lives to go. Boing, boing, aaaargh! And so it goes on.

Addictive? I should say so! And you're not deterred if you can't get through the first platform on your first play and keep having to start back at square one again as you do in some games. The puzzles and platforms are re-arranged at random each time you start a new game.

There are no Red Squares in this Revolution but the monochrome graphics are all up to Vortex's usual standard. Yet another cracker from Costa Panayi, the programmer, that'll appeal to the more interekchall games player. If that's you — Russian and buy it!

Graphics		9
Playability
Value for Money
Addictiveness

Okay, let's start at the bottom and work up. You can access the map of the level you're on at any time just by pressing the M key. It shows you the position of the four puzzles, the red dots, the square you're on and the holes you have to watch out fo0000 . . .

Now what could be simpler. Just bounce up and touch one of the grey blocks and then reach the other one before the first turns grey again. Trouble is you may find you have to bounce up high for the first then roll along the ground for the second so timing and co-ordination are of the essence. Enough tips here to keep Hex Loader happy . . .

OLLI AND LISSA

Firebird/£1.99

Luke When you see a cheapie of this calibre you start to wonder if you should've been quite so critical of them in the past...

It's true that I might have dug down deep into my disgusting dictionary of diatribes and found something wrong with this program if it was billed as state-of-the-art and came priced at £9.99. But I'd have had to look hard and besides it's £8.00 cheaper!

Set in Shilmore Castle in the Scottish Highlands

(Someone's been at the Shcotch! Ed) the castle ghost Sir Humphrey gets the hump when he finds that a rich Yank is shipping his new property back to the States brick by brick. Sir Humphrey gets it into his head that if he makes a potion from eight ingredients lying around the castle he can become invisible, the humans will be frightened of him and they'll nauff off back to Skyscraperville. I only said the game was good — I didn't say the story made sense!

And there you have the beginnings of an average platform game, with ghosts and ghoulies skillfully positioned to make each jump very difficult. You play Olli, a cross between one of Snow White's seven dwarves and a Smurf.

The graphics are the special event in this game. A look at the start-up screen should convince you...

Movement is smooth, and there's a slight dash of humour. If you don't move Olli around for a few seconds, he stands there tapping his oversized footwear, scratching his head while a cartoon bubble appears with a quivering question mark challenging you to make your mind up quickly and move on.

And there's a cute bit when your energy runs out and you lose your life — the screen goes black and Olli appears, only to be beaten over the head with an old-fashioned broom by Sir Humphrey.

The game is exceptional value for money and a worthy challenge to boot.

Ocean/£7.95

Phil (Da-dum da-dum da-dum-da-dum-da-dum). After a long, long, long time in the making, and a huge amount of pre-publicity, Knight Rider has finally driven onto our screens. Why did it take so long? Well, one of two things happens with a licensed game. Either you have a really good idea for a game and use a recognisable character to give it credibility and then seek the license, or you seek a license and then try your darndest to think of a winning game. Actually what happens in most cases is that you don't bother to think of a winning game, and just hope that the name on it will sell it. Ahem. So where does Knight Rider fit in this picture? Let's see now.

There are three basic game elements to the game — the map screen, the room screen and the driving screen. The first part is a map of North America, where you plan your routes to different cities in the US to search for clues. When you get there, you see a room, a plan view like Gauntlet (and I use the comparison loosely) where you must hide from guards to make your way to the clues. Finally, the screen where you spend the most time, the driving screen, is a 3D view out of KITT's windscreen as you speed along the road towards your destination, with a lot of digital displays on your dashboard. The primary gameplay consists of controlling the driving, leaving KITT to shoot at the hundreds of helicopters that are flying at you, or shooting at the chopper hordes while KITT burns rubber.

Because this is based on a TV show where the car is the star the strength of this game should be the driving part of the scenario. It's not. A boring yellow road, whose only sign of movement is the little horizontal lines that zip down across the triangle of the road. The helicopters (I assume they're helicopters, but they could be giant locusts) are cheap and very tacky UDG style sprites, whose only real concession to 3D-hood is increasing in size and zooming off the screen before they get too scuzzy looking. The most disturbing thing about this game is the level at which it can play itself. As KITT is virtually impervious to any damage, you can quite happily play the game (letting KITT drive you to the next location) and do something else. I am 'playing' the game now as I'm writing this, which I guess is a sure enough sign of how involved the gameplay is.

This would have been a fair effort for a budget game, but for a full price, licensed game from a major software house, it hasn't got a hope!

DANDY

All that's gold does not glitter. In fact some peoples dungeons can be a right royal let down.

Dandy is the massive arcade adventure that takes you through some of the most detailed dungeons you've ever seen. Either solo or with a (brave) friend you can hack, thump and zap your way through spectres, necromancers and other dungeon-dwellers whose concern for your health and well-being is zero.

They have their reasons of course. They're guarding a massive treasure hoard which you, if you're quick, can stuff into your amazingly capacious swag bag.

Dandy is the ultimate dungeon. Enter at your peril!

FEATURES

- 3 complete 5 level dungeons
- Treasure trove screens at the end of each dungeon
- One or two players
- 5 different spell types
- A variety of nasties
- Frenzied, thumb-busting action

PAPER

BOY

Elite/£7.95

Rachael Give me a paper boy who's real flesh and blood. The sort of hunk who roars off on his BMX bike, breaking windows and swerving into the path of an on-coming car, just to avoid the old granny with her walking frame. That's the one for me.

From out of the arcades and into your heart comes the Hells Angel of the morning round. This paper boy delivers daily.

This is the game with the fast-peddalling peril, tossing off The Times and Telegraph in an attempt to nix the news speed record. And there's points in them than periodicals for pranging the postbox of a subscriber or opening the windows of an unbeliever with a well-aimed edition. Ker-ashh!

Wild on the street! You've got complete control of your bike. In fact you're free to roam over all sorts of terrain. But you're at your safest on the pavement, maintaining a moderate speed. Be careful though. If you get into the gutter, the only way back to the straight and narrow is up a ramp, outside a driveway.

The assault course is an assault on the senses, of course, and you only get one go at it. Mis-judge that ramp or take it too slow and you'll be in the swim — literally! The 'Splash' effects add to the cartoon quality of this caper, along with the scrolling speech messages whenever you lose a life.

Let the Daily Sun shine in!

The road to becoming Rupert Murdoch is a rocky one, and includes every obstacle under The... err... Mirror from rolling wheels to rogue C5s. And if you don't deliver enough news it's bad news for you as the subscribers start to subside and down goes your income.

But it's not all work for the BMX bandit, and at the end of a hard day's slog he may have time left for the dreaded assault course, running up ramps and leaping streams to ram the targets with the readables, Robin Hood-style. This is another opportunity to wheel up those points, then celebrate with a wheelie.

In gameplay terms, Paperboy calls for quick reactions and a good memory, as you balance pedal power with your ability to make that speedy swerve in the nick of time. Will you stick to the path or gamble on a trip to the gutter? Perhaps a path across somebody's prize petunias would solve the problem, but please watch out for the railings or you'll go Guardian over Express.

Inevitably, more and more obstacles appear as the week goes by, and part of the fun is finding out what lies in wait next time you cycle down those mean streets of suburbia. By making the main display mainly mono, Elite has avoided graphic problems, and the diagonal scroll is just dippy, giving you enough warning to manoeuvre your way past the hazards. The sprites are delightfully detailed for their size, too.

All in all, Elite does it again. It's another classic conversion, true to the original. In terms of playability, Paperboy really delivers.

UNIVERSAL HERO

Mastertronic/£1.99

Chris I wonder if Ultimate knew what it was starting when it released Jetman. It must be one of the most copied games around. Universal Hero follows firmly in its footsteps. Which is not to say that it's not a good game; it's just that if you're looking for originality, then look elsewhere.

Your task is to locate various parts of your shuttle craft so that you can journey to another planet to pick up spares for a runaway space freighter. Failure will leave you with a very long walk home.

You start on a small asteroid with both surface and subterranean locations to explore. And, of course, it goes without saying (though that won't stop me saying it) that most of the locations contain the obligatory nasties who'll drain your limited air supply if they touch you. The objects you find in the caverns can be picked up and stored in one of the nine available storage spaces. By moving a cursor, you can select any of the objects you're carrying and either use or drop them. For the most part the problems are of the standard 'find the use for the object' type. Nothing terribly exciting there!

And that's about it. Average. Could try harder.

With RamPrint, it couldn't be simpler.

It's also the only interface with RamWrite ant Access' word processing built in.

The RamWrite program uses 'Instant Access' so there's no software to load, and takes none of the computer's precious memory. In fact, it's the simplest way to write a letter on the Spectrum.

To get your hands on one, simply fill in the coupon. Whichever way you look at it, it's a gift.

Firebird/£1.99

Luke Okay, I'm not going to go into lavish detail on the storyline here... we're talking Ninjas, leaping up and down platform levels, and savage kicks to the groin. Not one for the goolies, eh lads?

There are three platforms to negotiate and one Ninja to start off. Plan your kick and — Pow! — he dissolves into dust at your feet. And, as usual with this sort of game, getting your kick timed perfectly is all-important. But like all games of this type, kill one Ninja and two more take his place. And so on.

The graphics aren't going to stop the world, but they're not bad — if a little slow, when there are loads of things happening on screen; three Ninjas, a thrown knife, your character and a flying sword seem to place great strain on the usual speedy stuff you expect from this Kung Fu action. But one neat twist to the game is that the screen sometimes suddenly inverts and you find yourself and the enemy Ninjas upside-down.

You'll soon get the hang of when to kick the Ninjas to do them a real nasty and four lives are usually enough to give you a fighting chance. But if you're looking for a storyline — finding treasure or saving the princess or something — you can forget it.

Still, for two quid you could do worse — Firebird's Ninja Master for example! If you want five or six fancy kicks then look around for another game, but if you want to become a master of just one classic move — The K'ick I'n The Gro'i'n — then this is the game for you.

TENNIS

Imagine/£7.95

Pete It takes a lotta bottle to release a game like Tennis onto a market that already has countless versions. But you'd have thought, if anyone could pull it off, Imagine could. And I'm afraid you'd be wrong. Imagine seems to have lost that advantage point.

Where a tennis game succeeds these days is in the 3D views, graphics, sound and use of colour. Second nature to good ol' Imagine you'd have thought, wouldn't you? First off, the play area is green, naturally, but the players are both white. White on green makes it extremely difficult to follow the action, especially when you're desperately trying to keep up with the ball. The graphics themselves aren't so hot either — which makes it thirty love against Imagine. And for a forty love advantage the title screen displays one of the players making a V sign! Hardly good public relations, unless it's supposed to be John 'I know I'm a failure now, but at least I married her' McEnroe.

The big selling point of the game is that it's the first tennis simulation to let you play doubles. A great idea, and a clever bit of programming, if only the graphics were clearer.

All that apart, the speed and authenticity of the game is good. And if your heart is set on a spot of on-court action, this one may offer you that little something that I couldn't get out of it.

Game, set and match...

MIAMI DICE

Bug Byte/£2.99

Chris The title of this game may well have been chosen to avoid the obvious embarrassment of calling it Craps but Bug Byte'll now probably have a lawsuit slapped on it for taking the name of a telly programme (almost) in vain! Shame though as this is a well presented, well implemented version of that infamous American dice game Craps.

Gameplay is very straightforward, you simply bet on the number which comes up when two dice are thrown though it gets a little more complicated when you start to work out the protocol surrounding the way in which the throw passes from player to player.

Displayed on the screen are four players and the croupier gathered round a craps table. There's some pretty basic animation of the dice being thrown and some suitable comments from the players when they win or gamble away their fortunes. You place your bets by calling up a window that you can then use to scroll over the table to place a bet — it's a nice touch but it'd have been better with a diagram of the table included with the packaging so you'd know at a glance exactly where to go on the table to place the bet you want.

If you fancy yourself as the Cincinnati Kid and want to experience some real Craps then this is the one for you.

WIN 3
£8.95

Rick Channel 4 has a lot to answer for — and I don't mean its attitude to sex and violence. I'm referring, of course, to American football. Then again, maybe I do mean sex and violence! If you're into padded shoulders, American accents, macho men and bodies piling into each other with a steamy entwining of limbs, you're either a Dynasty or a Gridiron freak. If it's the latter, this could be just the s(t)imulation you're looking for. At least it means that you can make touch downs without the Refrigerator crushing you to the dimensions of a cardboard cut-out.

'Head Case' might seem a more appropriate name for people who wear crash helmets and like smacking into each other. But Head Coach is a game for the brain. It bears a strong resemblance to its soccer equivalent Football Manager, and the aim is to compile your best squad to go out and win the championship.

You have one team to pick from one of the six divisions in the AFC or NFC east, west or central sections. There are four skill levels — novice, rookie, veteran and All-Pro. You'll soon know if you've come in at the wrong level — you'll be bashed out of sight!

Your season's success is largely based on tactics and the experience you build up. You must assess the strengths and weaknesses of your squad by looking at their ages and positions. But it might take you some time to unravel the jargon. If you don't you won't be able to capitalise on the pre-season transfers the other teams offer you.

As American football continues to strengthen its grip, there'll no doubt be more impressive and probably flashier Specy simulations. But in the meantime, Head Coach does the job. Only it rather lacks the glamour and glitz (and I don't just mean the Cowboys' Cheerleaders) that add to the fascination of the real thing.

DESERT

HAWK

Players/£1.99

Max Never mind Chop Lifter, of which this is a rather pale-placed (in other words, in the bin) imitation. This one would embarrass the average shop lifter if it was discovered in their loot.

You have to fly a very under-simulated helicopter into rather under-occupied enemy territory to rescue rather under-sized little blokes that flicker so much they're almost invisible. Must be radiation poisoning.

The amazing thing is not the complete lack of originality but what an incredibly bad job has been made of this aged, overworked and not-too-difficult-to-program scenario. I couldn't even get the helibopper to face in the direction it was flying unless I fired a missile at the same time as turning.

This isn't a good way to conserve ammunition but you won't find that a problem. After a short while, you'll be chasing after the enemy tanks, begging them to shoot you and put you out of your misery.

And of all the gall, not only were two programmers necessary to create this penny dreadful but there's a producer mentioned as well. Never mind the enemy missile installations... Shoot the producer!

Mastertronic/£1.99

Luke Hog dang it boys, it's cowboys and injuns time in the good ol' Wild West! Your job, as Sheriff, is to make peace with the Indians.

In the first stage, for some reason, you have to shoot birds, which you do using a targetting system designed by a squint eyed hillbilly. Line this up with a bird and you'll miss every time! If, by some remote chance, you hit three of the pesky things, you're rewarded with a peace token and you get the chance to go on to the next stage.

This involves you galloping into town on your trusty steed, avoiding cactus bushes on your way. Once there, you have to shoot it out with the local desperadoes — not an easy task as you're back to the silly target system, and your foes are tiny and very hard to see as they pop in and out of buildings. Once you've wiped them all out, you have to gallop to the front of a speeding train to stop it — only then will the Indians agree to smoke the peace pipe!

There are three levels, with the action speeding up the higher you go. The backgrounds are luridly coloured, making it hard to see what's going on, and there are some awful attribute problems. Added to which, it gets dreadfully repetitive! Anyone with any games playing experience will find this no challenge at all. Good for shooting practice only!

Alpha Omega/£1.99

Chris Yep, the title of this game really does conjure up thoughts of what it's all about. No, not a futuristic, rollerball style game with plenty of fast action graphics requiring split-second timing and nerves of steel but a deathly boring, slow, pseudo-strategy maze game.

The object of the game is to guide your team of droids through a maze, grab hold of the ball and guide the droids to score a goal. Your opposition consists of a computer controlled set of droids who've the same purpose in life. If they manage to get their dirty maulers on the ball before you, you've got to tackle them and try to get it back.

Everything about this game is excruciatingly slow so I got bored very quickly — there aren't even any bright and zany graphics to jazz things up.

Quite frankly, Deathball makes three day cricket with Boycott at the crease look positively exciting — not recommended for children over three.

STRIKE FORCE COBRA

Piranha/£7.95

Phil When you boot this game up, look v. closely at Senior Sergeant Irina Viskova. Look familiar? She should, because it's in fact a Sam Fox (wahay) style digitised pic of our very own cuddly T'zer. (Less of the cuddly! T'zer). Blimey! Stone me, guv. The girl's fame grows by the minute. Anyway, T'zer gets enough press without her intruding into games reviews, so that's all I'm saying.

I'd really like to say this game is a load of cobras, but (just my luck) it's too good. Strike Force Cobra, besides being the 459th game called Strike Force sumink or other, is a 3D combat game, which p-p-pours scorn on Commando and other such rubbish. You are in control of a team of international soldiers, whose solemn task (again?) is to save the World from an evil genius known only as The Enemy. Why always evil genius? Why aren't we ever threatened by evil idiots? We are in real life, so why not in games?

The enemy, or Enny to his chums, has captured all the world's top computer scientists, with a view to hacking into the superpower's defence computers. The Strike Force is despatched to break into the evil lair (a semi-detached in Wapping?), find the stricken scientists, learn the codes for the computer and smash it up before Enny Baby can perpetrate his little roast. There are four Strike Force members and in order to complete their task they must work together. You can switch control between them, opening doors and removing obstacles that your buddies can't reach. The name of the game, in spite of their political differences (sentimental sniff) is co-operation.

This is a big game. There's a save game option for those of us who don't have four days at a stretch to play it, and a good thing too. I've been told how to play it to the end, and I still can't get very far on level one. All the same it's one of the most challenging games of the year, and manages in spite of its complexity to be great fun to play. There's a lot of detail in the game controls, like the ability to fan your machine gun (to spray bullets, not cool it off, dummy!), and to jump, turn and land in one smooth movement.

If you want a game that you can get your teeth into, (moan!) and you're tired of coming up with a mouthful of nothing, get Strike Force Cobra. You won't be disappointed.

VIDEO OLYMPICS

Mastertronic/£1.99

Tommy For all those of you missing out on your Daley dose, Mastertronic has come up with the cheapie version of his Decathlon — with a cut-down six events to match the cut price.

For your two quid you get running, hurdles, long jump, hammer, javelin and swimming. Though I'm taking that lot on trust. The shame of it is, I didn't actually manage to get through the 100m dash. Now it could've been me and it could've been my joystick (I'm not above blaming my tools), but in this case I reckon it was the game. It's just pitched too hard too quickly. Sure, if you've had years of practice with Daley and your wrists are now like strengthened steel you may not have as much trouble. But in that case you'd be better off having another bash at the games you've already got or earning a useful living as a weightlifter. There's not enough new in the way of graphics or gameplay to interest you.

If you've never had a good joystick waggle before, then it might be worth your while putting this through its paces. But you'd better take out the insurance policy on your joystick — and your wrists!

SHAGGY DOG

Story

Scooby Dooby Doo, where are you... dum dee dum dum... ah! I remember Scooby Doo. And now you can play the game, after all this time.

Originally tipped as about to be the first genuine cartoon-style game on a micro, Scooby has emerged dog-eared (groan) but intact in this arcade box'em up from Elite.

Before Dr Venkman and all the other Ghostbusters were even out of High School, Scooby Doo, Shaggy, Fred, Velma and Daphne were already bustin' ghosts on our black and white tellies. And they're still going strong. Scooby's owner Shaggy pioneered the use of 24 inch flares as a crucial tool in psychic research, and Fred gave part-time handsome lessons. Daphne was the pretty one who never did much, and Velma was the puggy looking one with the glasses who was always losing them.

Scooby Doo the computer game is a stiff draught of pure arcade action. The game is set in a scary old house belonging to some evil villain or other. Naturally enough, you take the role of our favourite Great Dane in his task to free his buddies from the big glass bottles into which they've been decanted. In order for Scooby to help his friends he must first find them, and then get to them by boxing his way through all the phoney spooks and spectres roaming the house. Amongst the deadly holograms and dressed-up henchmen he must beat are Mad Monks, Springs (a bit like Zebedee from Magic Roundabout), Ghosts and (shudder) the ominous Ghoulfish. If he gets scared by any of these bogus bogeymen, Scooby jumps up in the air and onto his back in a dead faint! Worra coward! To help bolster his courage, there are Scoobysnacks littered around the house and when he chomps them they give him an extra life.

Scooby Doo sounds like a really duff idea for a game, but is in fact great fun to play. The game was programmed by those wacky Gargoyle guys, and the graphics are certainly up to their usual standards. The animation of the Scooby sprite is really chortlesome to watch. When you pull the joystick down in order to duck a bat, say, Scooby imitates his cartoon original and puts his paws over his head. When he jumps up he curls his tail and feet under him, and when he boxes the spooks he assumes a sword fencing pose.

Arcade interpretations of successes from other media often suffer from being irrelevant, hasty and frankly a bit of a let-down. I don't think anyone could level those accusations at Scooby Doo. It's fast moving, addictive, amusing to play, and most importantly, it's in keeping with the plots and feel of the cartoon series it sprang from. Unlike a lot of other licensed games which are hastily assembled and poorly conceived, Scooby is a sound and playable game in its own right.

Rooby-rooby-roo!

Oooooooo. Gulp. It's a g-g-ghost. They're real scary and real fast. They whizz along the corridors at great speed, so you have to be quite careful where you stand.

It'll take almost all your lives to finish this level, so you'll be glad to know that there is a Scoobysnack on the left on the bottom floor. Go for it, but watch your back.

Velma's got a lotta bottle. Your bottled chum is at the left hand end of the top floor, but the way up isn't that easy I'm afraid. Go left till you reach the last stair, up and right, up and left and bob's your thingy.

This is a secret hatch in the wall. What comes out of it is a little hard to describe. Eek! Don't stand too close to the hatch, as they come out a lot more frequently than the spooks did!

This is what boings out of the hatch, a sort of cross between a barbell and a plumbers mate. They fall into two categories: the fast moving hatch jumpers and the slow moving corridor roamers. Weird!

These cheerful idiots just boing aimlessly around the corridors looking for nosy Scoobies to tromp. They're easy to box, but they travel a bit faster than the others so place yourself carefully.

After balls what next? Bats of course! Ha ha ha. Watch out for these little rubbery things, 'cos they come out at you through the walls when you least expect it. Eek eek eek. Brr, rotten slimy horrible bats. I hate 'em. Brrr.

Another nasty touch to this level is the bowling balls which roll randomly along the carpet. What's difficult about that? You try jumping, boxing and ducking at the same time, then you see how tricky that can be. Oh brother!

Gaps in the floor serve several purposes. They allow ghosts to drop on your head. (Gulp) They allow ghoulfish to drop on your back and suck your brains out. (Urg!) But they also allow you to drop down onto levels which don't have any stairs. Aaaaaah! Thud!

What's this, Scooby? Looks like a goldarn weather vane! Hmm, it looks harmless enough, but I guess you'd better duck it, 'cos it'll duff you up like the bat if you don't.

Heh heh heh. This is a mad monk. Hah! Of course, we know in the end it'll turn out to be just a henchman dressed up as a monk, don't we? Don't we? Er... They look fearsome but they're really easy to box. Heh heh OOF! Oh, by the way, they drop through the gaps too! Oh, heh.

At last, after ten years of ghostbusting and a year's speculation, Scooby Doo has made it onto your Speccy. Phil South chomps a Scoobysnack and troughs his way through Elite's tallest tail yet!

Behind these doors lurks a guest... huh? Shouldn't that be ghost? Nope, it's a guest ghost! A spooky sprite from Heavy On The Magick, just to make you feel right at home.

• The thing to remember about these doors when standing between two, is always to be closer to one door than the other. Why? Well, when the ghosts leap out you can box them one at a time instead of being sandwiched!

Skulduggery is afoot. Don't trip on the skulls or you might get spooked. Jump over them, but take it slowly, or you might run into something nasty. It's better to clear the screen of nasties before you jump 'em.

Spooky staircase. Ooer! You'd better watch your step as you pad up the creaky stairs. If you're not right at the top and a spook travels under you, you'll lose a life! Creeaaaaakkk!

• Rooby-roo! Scoobysnacks. (Slurp!) Yum! If you need some more lives, you'd better chase around and snaffle some of these yummy snacks before the spooks get you! There are lots of them on all levels so you'll have lots to eat. (Slobber, drool!)

Brrrrr. The ghoulfish... (shudder)... is the ghostliest thing! Urgh! It's the scariest monster in the game, and I for one will be having nightmares about it for weeks! Not only is it scary, not only is it ugly, but it also drops down the stairs at you! Aaaaagggghhhh!

• The best technique for dealing with being sandwiched by two meanies is the Flip-Box. You hold down the fire button until the first ghost cops it, then still holding fire, flip yourself around to point in the opposite direction. Bam bam! You'll get them both and still walk away.

Uh oh! You've got both hatches and doors on this level. Spooks come out of both holes so stay sharp. The hatches are quite close together so don't get caught out. Remember our Flip-Box trick, and don't get caught between two doors and under a hole in the ceiling. Rooby-roo!

Oh! Just another one of those spooks, right? Wrong! On this level they start their own place, and that means they can drop down the stairwells and holes in the ceiling. So do this at the most inconvenient time. You bet your Bonio they do!

Boing! These little Zebedee clones are the happy smiling bouncy little chaps you'll find on level two. Boing boing boing boing ruddy boing!

Here's the Ghoulfish. Brrr. I really hate this, it makes my skin creep... but wait a minute. It reminds me of someone. (One more word and you're dead! Ed.) Ulp!

Poor old Velma. She doesn't look that chipper ordinarily, but squashed into a bottle she looks like a goldfish. Still, a buddy is a buddy, and you're a loyal dawg. Rooby-rooby-roo!

HIGHLANDER™

THERE CAN BE ONLY ONE

Manhattan: 1986. In a vast underground garage beneath Madison Square Garden, two men are locked in mortal combat. The huge cavern echoes with the sound of clashing steel, for although this is the 20th century, one combatant wields an ancient samurai sword, the other a broadsword. The duel is deadly earnest, ending only when the loser is decapitated. For the victor, however, it is only one more conquest in a drama he has been living for 450 years. A unique breed of men fated to duel down the ages to a distant time called the Gathering will battle for the Prize—power beyond imagination. The distant time is now. The place, New York.

HACKING AWAY

Where's the big chorus of "Welcome back" then? Please yourselves!

Thanks to the untiring work of Chris and others, I'm back, so here are the hacks!

DYNAMITE DAN II

Just to prove that I really am back, the first hack comes from me! (Oh the joys of megalomania). It's for the excellent Dynamite Dan II and it means that Dan can save the world and bash Blitz in the process. Type in the program and save it off for future use. Then RUN it and if the message "DATA ERROR" appears, then you'd better check it 'cos you'll have made a mistake. When the data is correct (no error message on RUNNING), play the game tape from the start. The program'll now load and run as usual, but all your hacks will be in place. You'll now have infinite energy, immunity from mesmerism and the ability to fly which means that you can move through anything and can't drown. Terribly useful, I always think! Press up/jump to go up and pull down to go down (since you can't fall anymore). If there's one of the features that you don't want simply delete the lines on which it appears, so if you don't want infinite energy, delete line 120, and if you don't want to fly remove lines 150 to 190 inclusive. Whatever you do, don't delete lines 10 to 110 or line 200 or it won't work!

HENRY'S HOARD

Andrew Brown and Chris Boland just don't stop! Here's a hack from that indefatigable (look it up — I had to!) pair for Henry's Hoard. It'll give you infinite lives and all you do is type it in, RUN it and play the game tape from the start.

SPIKY HAROLD

Phillip Lock of Leamington Spa has come up with some pretty sharp POKES for Firebird's Spiky Harold. You can have infinite lives, invulnerability and you can get rid of all the monsters using Philip's program. Type it in, delete any lines containing POKES you don't want, then RUN the program and play the game tape from the start.

GHOSTS 'N' GOBLINS

Next comes a POKE and a complaint from Ian Stonelake of Uxbridge in Middlesex. The POKE'll give you infinite lives in Elite's Ghosts 'n' Goblins and all you have to do is the usual stuff of typing in the program, RUNNING it and playing the game tape from the start.

10 REM GHOSTS'N'GOBLINS

Ian's complaint is about the encryption that I put into my hacking programs. He wants to know why I do it. Well, Ian, the answer is simple — it's there to stop people from copying the hack and sending it in to other magazines. Although the encryption bit isn't hard to remove, the people who copy hacks from magazines are usually those who can't hack themselves, and therefore don't recognise it for what it is. For instance, I received no less than five copies of the Ghosts 'n' Goblins hacking program that was published in another mag. You don't need to worry though, the decryption routine doesn't add any great length to the hacking program.

Yippee!
ZZKJ's returned to hack some more.
We knew he wouldn't stay away for ever!

GREEN BERET

Back onto lighter things with the final hack this month. It comes from James Tough (very appropriate) of Aberdeen in Scotland, and gives you a whole barrage of POKES for Imagine's Green Beret. Type in the program and save it off for further use. RUN it, and when it says "Play Tape" play the game tape from the start. If it says "DATA ERROR", then check what you've typed 'cos the dreaded typing mistake will be in there somewhere. If there's a feature you don't want, just delete the line on which the data appears, but don't remove lines 10 to 210 or line 900

Loader with all your hints'n'tips...

Click bzzzt. Hi! Yep, it's me again, Hex Loader, your oily silicon pal who's fun to be with, and boy have I got some tips for you! Listen, my little cucumbers... are you down in the dumps? Hah! Well, perk up, mes petites bananas, 'cos jetzt here wir haben ein solution or zwei for you, if you catch my (double) deutsch.

STARSTRIKE II

All sorts of "stuff" starting with these missives from Christopher Lewis of Port Talbot and Antony Smith of Leeds. Take it away, fruitbuns! "I'm Chris Lewis, and I have just neutralised 20 planets on Starstrike II. I thought the readers of your esteemed magazine..." Flattery will get you everywhere! "...would like a few tips. On the Wheel stage, wait for the pentagon to be either upside down or the right way up, then press 'D' and it's much easier to align. On the fields, weave and dive a lot before coming near and then take your time dodging the obstructions. This way you can dodge the stars. On the next stage use the lasers as single shot guns, as the fuel cannisters will have less chance of being hit. Then wait for it to stop moving before going in on it. On the trench stage, weave a lot and strafe everything." Gee, thanx Chris. Anything to add to that, Antony? "Yes indeedy. Here is a (heh heh) cheat mode for Starstrike II. Pause the game, then type in HEAR AND OBEY, not forgetting the spaces. Then press Q, W or E to fill up Laser, Fuel or Forcefields." Brilliant! Now I can get myself into Hex's Heroes...

BOMB JACK

Wot? Who's that laughing? "Ha ha ha ha ha ha ha. Mark Clements of Leeds, here. The laughing matter concerns page 26, issue 7. Ha ha, Mr Hack Free Hex. After reading the tips, noting that you wrote 'to get past the room...' twice, (has YS got double vision?) I then noticed a power-pong plant smiling and sitting on top of the words 'David Shewan/Bomb Jack 172,910'..." Ooo, bitch! "...and this is when I began to chuckle. If power-pong plant's score of 172,910 was a so-called 'Hot Chilli Sauce' score, where does my doobelly scrunchy chocca dooble triply extra hot burning chilli chilli sauce score of 383,550 come in? I must qualify for Hex's Heroes, surely." No you don't, 'cos you didn't send a picture! Ha ha ha ha ha ha ha. And don't call me Shirley!

ONE MAN AND HIS DROID

Wossis? "As the story goes, he was wonderfully playing one day, well in the evening, actually, 5pm as a matter of fact..." Geron wiv it Richard Dodds! "...anyway, all of a sudden he was flying through the actual game code! Neat eh?" Stupifying. "And so to my point..." (snip!) He flew into the codes you need for the game and I've listed them below.

PREDATORY LEVEL	CLOCHE EMPIRE
BLIZZARD	UPANDAWAY
RASVOGEL	GRAVITATE
ECOLOGY	FUNCTION
RYEGRASS	COLANDER
GRAIN	GOOSEBERRY
RAGOUT	FETLOCK
VAMPIRE	FEROCIOUS
ENGAGED	VACUUM
ECTOPLASM	AUTOMATIC
RUMINATE

"As you can see, I've put them into alphabetical order, so as not to confuse you." Tee ruddy hee! Thanx a lot, purée brain.

COMMANDO

"After eating my breakfast..." Woah! There must be a page missing in my script, here. What breakfast? Who? What? Generous quantities of why? "...Oh, sorry, this is John Lewis of Cumbria here. After eating my breakfast I decided to sit down and write to you lot at YS." Ooo, don't put yourself out on our account. "I've scored 2,960,550 on Commando." Brill. Er, stop munching your breakfast and gis' some clues, then. "All you have to do to reach level 23 is this: wait beside the first bridge on level 1 and fire at the descending soldiers. You mustn't move too far up because then a soldier will throw grenades at you. Just move up high enough to see the soldier's feet at the top of the screen. The soldier on top of the bridge is a menace, all you can do is just avoid his fire. After you've gained enough points, lives and grenades, you should be able to shoot your way past seven more levels. On level 9 (same as level 1) repeat this process. To gain extra points, bomb the red bunkers (seen on levels 2, 6, and 8) and aim for the white area of the roof to blow it up and gain 3,000 points. Don't waste grenades on people in trenches unless it's absolutely necessary. Never stand still, especially when you're near the end of a zone, because the soldiers fire at you with great accuracy, so you have to be quick on your toes. Try firing whilst moving left and right and you'll produce a spray of bullets. Handy when you're in a tight corner." Like the YS 'office' ya mean? Thanx, John. And er, finish yer brekky before you talk to me next time. I've got bits of Weetabix all over me lenses, now!

I OF THE MASK

Ahh. Worra nice bloke that Phillip Gargin is. (Remember, he was the clever chaplet who wrote George And The Deadly Meteor for the June Issue. Grrrr-ate!) He sent me a little notelet from his stately home (or izzat homely state?) in downtown Romford. "Seeing that you like I, Of The Mask, I thought I'd send you a pretty picture of all the pieces to help you identify them.

"The position of each piece, and where crystals will teleport you is random each game. The best thing you can do is to make your own map (press H and copy it). Go around the Universes and mark on the map where each bit is. Only waste a life if your power is less than 1000. When you enter a universe from the maze, you are restocked with bullets and sometimes you can get up to thirty of them." Thanx a norlie lot, Philip, me old word association football. Well done.

SPELLBOUND

In case you're wondering why my voice is a bit muffled at the moment, I must draw your attention to the enormous mound of Spellbound and Knight Tyme complete solutions on my desk. I bunged a solution of Knight Tyme to the Trainspotter for his booklet last month, so now I'm gonna file all these other ones... Puh-lease don't send any more, there's good chaplets. Many thanks to all you intrepid Magic Knights who bothered to send them to me. A big oily kiss to you all. Well done. A little bird tells me I'll be featuring a full and frank Spellbound solution next month. (Who're you calling a bird, laser brain? T'zer.) Oops!

ACE

Karl Miles of the Isle of Man has found a bug (Eek! Squash it!) in ACE. "If you put the thrust full up, pull the nose up, and then take the thrust down to zero again, your speed will continue to increase as long as you continue to gain height. You can also eject anywhere, even over sea or in enemy territory?" Eeee-oooooww! Ack-ack-ack-ack-ack-ack-ack-ack... er... yes, it's a good game, this. Ahem.

Soooooooooooo, that's about the size of it. Yep, a block of stone six foot square. That kind of size, yeah. What, the column? No, my ego, dummy. I'll be back next full moon (Aaooooooooowwwww!) with more of your (spang!) hits'n'timps in the jolly old Hank Free Zoo. Wod's the madder wif my voiz chip, Peeder? I zound all fummy. Curzes! Foiled agin. Oogie doogie. Bye evrybuddy! Zee you negz month...

Click Bzzzzzz... Whooooooo! Hey, that's better. Thanx Pete! (S'okay! TP.) Alright, here we hippy dippy doo-daas go with those nippy nappy nopy hip hop happy Hex's Heroes! Yay! Worra bunch of illustrious, glittery-sharded, mist-shrouded, sepulchral, majestic and wholly messianic mega-scorers you are! (Look it all up, what am I, a dictionary?)

First to fling themselves from the protoplasmic crud at my unworthy (yet humble) feet, are très hip Simon Daniels, plus his trusty sidekick and chic'n'snappy dresser Maria Hodgen. They hail from (Helloooooo!) RAF Coltishall in Norwich. In between protecting the Realm from slanty-eyed beasts they have cracked Batman. Completed in three-quarters of an hour, they amassed all seven bits, visited 140 rooms, and scored 9340 points. Dinner dinner dinner... etc.

Bouncing out of a cave, like the Pumpkin he truly is, comes Matthew Burke of Sheffield, brandishing a lock of the Witches Hair from Cauldron II. He's scored a pumpkin jammingly mega score of 32,100 on the magic bounding sequel. Hubble Bubble.

Bbrrrrppppp! Hey, who's blowin' me fanfare trumpet? Oh, it's you, AJS. Meet my good friend AJS. He's an elephant. Oh you noticed that, eh? Well, apart from his obvious charms as a big grey and v. tusky pachyderm, he has a bit of a way with Bomb Jack. He, and you won't believe this, has a score of 756,280! Well, put that in your trunk and toot it, Mark "Hot Chilli" Clements.

That's it. C'mon, AJS, it's feeding time. Bye. Bbrrrrppppp!

BOBBY BEARING

Rotund hints from P. Snout.

● The biggest asset (and that's not a little donkey!) you can have in playing this game is the super mega hyper map in the Trainspotter's Guide in the last issue of YS. You can use it to explore areas where your lost brothers might be hiding.

This is the receive node of the teleporter. At the far side of the maze there's a send node. (It's marked on the YS map!) To retrieve a brother from one of the far side rooms, find your way to the sender and you'll be instantly transported to this room. Well handy, as this room is an easy distance from your objective!

To get up to the top level, use the hidden lift to get to the first step up. Then hop onto the lift, being careful not to get squeezed flat on the lip of the level above. Then roll off quickly onto the top level. That's it, off you go.

There are a couple of versions of this screen in Technofear Land. And pretty tricky they are too. There are five different exits, all leading to important bits of the maze, plus a switch and... hey, there's a hidden lift here!

The hidden lift is flush (whoosssshhh!) with the ramp, so how do you activate it? C'est very simple, mes petites! The ramp leading up to the lift has a little switch in it. Handy to remember this if the lift is at the top of its path and you want it to come down.

To get past the lift which blocks the crossroads, press up against it when it's on the floor, then when it rises you'll shoot under it without being squashed. Zzzziilpppp!

AT LAST... A DECENT COMPUTER FROM AMSTRAD!

Sneaking up on the "Sinclair" stand at this year's PCW show/madhouse, I couldn't find what I was looking for. True enough, the Sinclair ZX Spectrum +2 was there. Just like everyone's been saying since Amstrad bought out Sinclair all those moons ago.

I prised a +2 from where it had been nailed to the table. It wasn't underneath it. It wasn't bolted to the end or sticking out the back. It wasn't even inside.

It might well be an Amstrad. But it hasn't got a stigma attached to it.

The big A's done a pretty good job of tarting up the late and great Speccy 128. £150 gets you a 128 in a nice grey case and somewhat less change than you'll need for the bus home.

It's got an Amstrad-style built-in cassette deck to reduce the chances of accidentally strangling the cat with all those leads. In theory, it's more reliable too and you don't even have to faff with a volume control. But be warned — there's no tape counter, which is less of a good idea.

The keyboard's much improved. Amstrad's made the big decision to wipe off all the old Basic keywords so not only does it feel better, it looks better. Bit of a problem when you come to program in 48K Basic mode though. You can't see what you're doing.

There are two built-in joystick ports too though Amstrad has done the dirty and made sure you can't use them with anybody else's joysticks.

The only other new thingy is a sound socket on the back to let you get the sound out when there's a monitor plugged in.

Software wise not a lot's changed either. The copyright messages now mention this funny new company and the 128's Tape Tester has been suppressed. Otherwise — all the same.

The +2 runs everything the 128 does. So it will work with many 48K tapes (in 48K mode) and the slowly growing pile of 128K mode taps. Amstrad is plonking a 'Sinclair Quality Control' sticker on all the games it has tested and warns you to beware of anything that hasn't got

ZX SPECTRUM +2

Whatever happened to Uncle Clive? ... Max Phillips is suitably impressed by Amstrad's tarted-up Speccy 128 ...

one. However, if it says it will go on a 128, it'll go on the +2.

But it works the other way round. All those tapes and hardware bits — like ZX Printers, disk drives, RGB adapters and so on — that don't go on the 128, won't go on the +2 either.

All-in-all, it's got to be a goer. The +2 should give thousands of new people the ideal opportunity to get into Speccy computing — be prepared for an invasion. Best of all, it's gonna give the software houses the final excuse they need to get on with producing decent 128 software.

FAX BOX

News from Amstrad says that the +2 will sell for £149 and the SJS1 joystick for about £12. However, some shops will be selling the machine, the joystick and six games for £159.95. What a bargain!

Now we're talking real manuals here! This one's got all the techie stuff as well as great quantities of the original Spectrum's Vickers/Bradbeer masterpiece. All the new stuff is pretty well written too and there's a decent index.

A Sticky Problem

At long last, a Speccy with a built-in joystick port — two in fact! They're compatible with the Sinclair/Interface II protocol which most games can handle (although Kempston is still the more popular).

What they're not compatible with is any joystick except the thing pictured here — the new Sinclair/Amstrad SJS1.

Fortunately, this little bit of sabotage won't stop all the Speccy's add-on makers. Already, new joysticks are arriving with twin plugs for both old Speccys and the +2. Cheetah also has an adapter to let you use your normal joystick.

And, we suspect, it wouldn't take a genius to prise open a Quickshot and do a quick re-wire. Let you know when we've tried it ...

How to connect a joystick to the +2 — rewire yours at your own risk ...

ROMANTIC ROBOT 77 Dyne Road London NW6 7DR 24 hrs orders 01-625 9463

💡 I've just bought a 128K Spectrum that's fine when I first tune it in. However, after a while it seems to drift out of tune — the sound goes all crackly and the picture gets slightly distorted. Can you tell me whether it's normally like this or is it a fault with the computer, TV or power pack?
Paul Edwards, Frome, Somerset

💡 No that's definitely not normal. It sounds like you've got a faulty modulator in the video section. Send the machine to a repair centre; you'll find some addresses at the back of the magazine.

💡 My Speccy keeps coming up with the 'microdrive not present' error message every time I try to use the microdrive. I thought there might be something wrong with the Interface 1 but all the other commands like printer and network work okay. Do you think it could be the ribbon connector cable from the Interface 1? Also will I have damaged the cartridge?
Stephen Asallidas, Athens, Greece

💡 Yes to your first question. It seems very likely that you've got a dodgy cable between the microdrive and the Interface 1. In answer to your second question, the cartridges can be reformatted to reuse them as long as the tape hasn't been damaged.

💡 I have a very strange problem. No, nothing like that! It's my VTX5000. It worked fine for a while on my Speccy and Interface 1 but just recently the system has started to lock up when it gets warm. The VTX5000 has been checked out and returned with a verdict of 'fit and well'. Even stranger, it works perfectly on my friend's Speccy. Have you any ideas?
Dave Wenzel, West Wickham, Kent.

💡 The VTX is very sensitive to power supply variations. Try swapping your power supply with your friends' and check your Spectrum at his house. If this doesn't solve the problem you'll have to get your Speccy checked out.

💡 My Speccy power pack packed up recently and so I, in my infinite wisdom, decided to use an Atari Power supply (I use a 9 volt setting). It seems to work alright but the screen does flicker rather a lot and a thick black and white line passes down the screen making it almost impossible to play any arcade games. Am I damaging my computer?

David Bovill, Llan Ceredigion, Gwynedd.
💡 You're putting the power pack under a lot of strain. The Spectrum uses about 1 amp and the power pack probably only delivers about a third of that!

💡 I've got an early issue Spectrum connected to a Lo-profile keyboard and I've just won a Star STX80 thermal printer which I connected to the Spectrum with a Tasman printer interface. Tasman has been extremely helpful and supplied me with three different types but still no luck. Why on earth doesn't it work?

R Sleightholme, Pontefract, Yorks.

💡 Both the interface and keyboard have leads that are too long. There's a modification that you can have done to the Lo-profile by the manufacturer, so I suggest you contact Saga.

💡 Please, please explain why my Speccy crashes out on certain positions on my joystick with the Currah MicroSpeech and Dk'Tronics programmable joystick interface plugged in together.

Richard Padley, Rotherham, South Yorks.

💡 Both try to use the same location for machine code (top of memory). Your best bet would be to remove one interface or write your own programming software.

💡 I wonder if you could give me the interface connections from the Interface 1 to the HR5 printer.

Kevin Hole, Shildon, Co. Durham

Sure can do Kevin:

Interface 1	HR5
9	6 and 8
4	20

Hope that's what you want.

💡 I'm rather unhappy at the moment as my Symbol/Shift key has broken. It's dreadful as I can't load in programs or type them out. I really hope you can tell me what the remedy is for my problem.
William Lingard, Grimsby, South Humberside.

💡 I reckon it's a case of the broken membrane

HARD FACTS

Having a bit of bover with your add-ons?
Hardware nut Steve Adams muscles in with a bit of friendly advice.

syndrome. Either get one from a Spectrum repairer (see the ads at the back of the magazine) or change to a real keyboard.

💡 Hi Steve. I've got a Tandy CGP-115 printer that I've interfaced with my Rotronics Wafadrive via the Centronics port. The big question is, how do I send graphics? I certainly hope you can help me.
C Warrington, Selby, North Yorks.

💡 No problem. Just use OPEN#; "B" to select the byte channel after you've selected the centronics output to send non-printable codes.

YOUR SINCLAIR
14, RATHBONE PLACE
LONDON W1P 1DE

All letters win a YS badge

💡 I've got a Dk'Tronics keyboard and I was very pleased with it until something happened... My Interface 1 broke down and I removed it from the case and now all my expansions don't fit. As you can imagine it's been an extremely painful experience for me and I really need some expert advice.

Matti Aisterich, Finland

💡 The Dk'Tronics case has more holes near the edge connector hole. Unscrew the board and move it to the holes used by the Interface 1.

💡 Help! I recently acquired (that's bought to you matey) a Brother M-1009 printer and Interface 1 but I can't find a suitable cable to link the Speccy (the Interface 1) with the printer. I'm very frustrated and really need help.

Antony 'I've got a sweet name' Licquorish, Market Harborough, Leics.

💡 It takes Allsorts! Hmmm, anyway all you do is connect up pins 4, 6 and 8 together inside the 25-way plug on the standard Sinclair lead and it'll then work.

💡 I recently bought a second hand Interface 1 but discovered that when I connect it up, it produces a cyan border on the screen when I type in garbage instead of indicating the error with a '?' message. What's wrong, my Interface, my Speccy or me!
Justin Adams, Ringwood, Hants.

💡 Well, I don't think it's you. I suspect the Interface 1 isn't controlling the ULA properly. Try cleaning the PCB edge connector and if necessary get your Interface 1 checked out.

💡 My problem is very rare and one you've probably not come across before. I've linked up my Speccy to a vision mixer but I'm getting vertical bounce. And yes, I do prefer using that silly little computer and YS MegaBasic instead of thousands of pounds worth of Character Generator to create my effects. Can you help?

Carmel Brincat (a crazy TV producer), Fgura, Malta

💡 It sounds to me as though you have an earth problem on the vision mixer. The Spectrum is isolated from earth and this causes the hum (your vision bounce) loop. Isolate the vision mixer from earth to cure the fault.

W A F A D R I V E YS SPECIAL OFFER

SAVE
£80

Normal Price £129.95 YS Price £49.95

By public demand (lots and lots of phone calls from YS readers who want to know if they can still get hold of a Rotronics Wafadrive for under £50), we are repeating this very special offer. If you missed out last time round, make sure you make way for a Wafa' in time for this Christmas...

What does a Wafadrive offer me that I can't get from my cassette?

Speed's the obvious answer — it takes just 20 seconds to load Spectral Writer the free wordprocessor that comes with your Wafadrive from a 16K wafer. But the really big advantage is that you can store programs as files on a wafer. It's a real chore finding where you've put a particular program on a cassette, especially if you've got loads and loads of them on there.

So just how fast is a Wafadrive?

Well, it all depends. It depends on the position of the tape in the wafer and it depends on the size of the wafer. But as an average, Sherlock on a 64K wafer takes 43 seconds to load. You can usually reckon on about 2K of bytes going in every second plus the access time.

So it's not as fast as a microdrive?

That depends as well. You're right, it's not as fast at loading in the data. But, if you take into account the Wafadrive's more friendly operating system and its easier command syntax, you'll probably find it takes you no longer to load in a program. All that "m";1; stuff goes straight out the window. It's just LOAD * "filename" and you're away.

Yes, but what about reliability? The reason I've been put off microdrives are all the stories about how unreliable the cartridges are.

Microdrive cartridges do have a finite life but there's no way you're going to wear out a wafer cartridge. There's more tape in a wafer than in a microdrive cartridge so it's under less stress. And the protective cover that slides across when the tape's not in use stops people putting their grubby fingers all over your tape.

What other advantages are there over microdrives?

Other than performance, you mean? Well now there's price. £49.95's what you'd pay for a microdrive without the Interface 1 — the Wafadrive plugs directly into the back of your Speccy, of course. And remember, you get two drives on a Wafadrive just like on a professional system.

Why are there three different

sizes of wafer cartridge?

That's so you can choose the most appropriate size for the job you want it to do. The larger the memory, the more tape in the cartridge and the longer it'll take to access the files. So, there's no point in choosing a 128K wafer to store programs that you're loading frequently. Much better to develop your programs on a small wafer and then transfer them onto a 64K one that has plenty of storage and medium access times. The 128K wafer is really more suited to archiving because of the longer access times. But when you do want an old program, you can quickly find it by CATing the wafer — try that with all your old cassettes.

Is the capacity of the wafers exactly 16, 64 and 128K?

No, that's just for convenience. On average you could expect to get about 75K on a 64K wafer and anywhere up to 140 odd K on a 128.

Can I connect any full size printer via the Centronics and RS232 interfaces?

Yes. The only printer you won't be able to connect is the smaller MCP 40.

I'm used to word-processing with Tasword II and I'd like to continue with it — is it possible to transfer it to Wafadrive?

Yes. You can get an information sheet that shows you how to do it direct from Rotronics. However, your free copy of Spectral Writer should meet all your word processing requirements.

Is it easy to transfer programs from cassette onto wafers?

If the programs are in Basic, you've got no problems. Just load them in, then save them onto the Wafadrive. Machine code programs can be transferred using a device like the Multiface 1 or a utility such as that on the Rotronic's toolkit wafer. The toolkit also contains a copy routine for Epson printers, a file analysis utility and other routines to help you when you're using a printer.

Still not sure? If you'd like more info on the Wafadrive before you decide to buy, you can write to Rotronics Ltd at Santosh House, Marlborough Trading Estate, West Wycombe Road, High Wycombe, Bucks.

At last, the Pilot of the Future, Dan Dare and his trusty friend and batman, Digby (Bah Gum), fettle off into the frozen wastes of space looking for the Final Front Ear. Phil South found himself in hot pursuit.

Tonight, Dan Dare, Pilot Of The Future, This Is Your Life . . . So begins this rip roaring episode in the life of Dan Dare, the Pavarotti of the Space Operas. Dan Dare has been nabbed by that Irish blighter with the big red book, and finds himself facing his grimmest foes yet . . . his own friends and relations! But, in the midst of the satellite pictures, carrying messages from well wishers around the globe, a fearful face fills the TV screens . . .

GASP! THEN....

The Mekon has set a deadly trap. He's planted an atomic bomb in an asteroid and sent it speeding towards the Earth. He knows that Dan Dare will try to stop him, so he's built the bomb into a fortress inside the asteroid. Setting his jaw grimly, Dan Dare, and his faithful sidekick Digby (Bah Gum), speed off in the good Spaceship Anastasia to save the Earth . . .

MEANWHILE....

I say, what a ripping yarn! Playing the part of Dan, you must forge through the corridors and grav-lifts of the Mekon's fortress and activate the self-destruct system, blowing up the asteroid. There are five SDS keys distributed throughout the complex, and you must collect them one by one and take them to the self destruct mechanism. Sounds like a familiar arcade adventure scenario? Well, yes it does, but the game itself is far from ordinary.

LATER THAT DAY....

The graphics are a dazzling lightshow, with delightful elements of comicbook style, like the words 'Meanwhile . . . ' in a box in the corner of the screen. The backdrops are highly detailed, and so three dimensional they practically leap off the screen at you. Dan himself is a little green sprite. The animation quality is v. good indeed, especially the bit when you don't move Dan for a bit. He looks out of the screen at you expectantly, then looks around to check no-one's creeping up on him. The gameplay is fast, tricky and challenging, with the worst enemy being the clock.

JUST IN THE NICK OF TIME....

With the weight of tradition behind it, this game should be a chart topper anyway, but the main reason will be that it's a thumping good game. Tally-ho, Digby.

PILOT OF THE FUTURE

BEFORE THEY COULD MOVE....

GREAT STARS DIGBY. THIS MUST BE THE TOUGHEST MISSION YET. WHAT WITH HAVING TO FIND OUR WAY AROUND A FORTRESS MAZE, AND FIGHT OUR WAY THROUGH THE ENDLESS HORDES OF TREEN WARRIORS. . . . THERE'S SCARCELY ENOUGH TIME TO WAX MY EYEBROWS!

These comic style captions keep on cropping up, providing help, status reports and information. This is the great strength of this game; it truly captures the spirit of the original comic.

Yes, you can do rapid fire by holding the fire button down, but it's best not to. Try using the rifle in single shots wherever possible, making your ammo last until you really need it.

There are a lot of Treen Guards along this section so it's a good policy to start each screen with a good blast from your laser rifle. That'll put the wind up the blighters.

Here's our hero, Dan Dare (bah dah!) making the bold step. This is the way through to Sector two of the asteroid. To find the SDS key in this sector, just go left until you can't go further, then down and right, then down again. That's the ticket!

This is the inter-complex intercom system window. The malevolent Mekon is watching your progress on his monitor, organising the Treen to stop you. He pops up on the station's screen occasionally to taunt you with 'The Earth will be mine!' and other such friendly greetings.

SUDDENLY....

DAN, DESPAIR! IN THE MURKIER LEVELS OF THE COMPLEX, YOU WILL FACE NOT ONLY MY FAITHFUL TREEN, BUT ALSO MY DEADLY ROBOTS AND FLOOR GUNS. HEH HEH HEH HEH HEH HEH SOON THE EARTH WILL BE MINE . . . . .

This is a floor gun. Brrr. In level 1 you can jump on the floor guns and smash them, but on this level it's a bit more difficult. They tend to be in confined spaces, so there's no room to jump. The trick here is to shoot a robot when it's over a floor gun, and he'll drop onto the gun stunned and smash it!

(Dah dah dah!!!!) The biggest enemy of all is . . . the Timer! You have just two hours. That may seem like a long time, but every time you get knocked out you lose ten minutes. Only twelve lives gone and you're dead . . . and the Mekon conquers the Earth!

Dan is standing by a grav-lift. You operate them by standing about where he is now and pushing UP. You'll then float up onto the next platform. On level 3 you must forge up, up, up, 'cos the SDS key on this level is up in the ceiling by the exit to level 4.

The Mekon's robots roam the levels from 5 upwards. They shoot laser beams in all directions and can be extremely annoying, not to say downright dangerous. Shooting them with your laser will stun them momentarily so you can pass them safely. Phew!

The attention to the 3D lifts this game out of the ordinary and into the dazzling. Take these 'shadows' — they lend the display a far greater level of depth and reality. For graphics buffs, the smooth shading on the pillars is a sort of checkerboard effect on a carefully placed attribute square.

TIME BOMB

'Ere, wot's that tickin' noise? Aaaaah! It's a time bomb... over there, behind that wall. Quick... get over there and defuse it! What? Whadda ya mean there's a great big alien chasing you? Don't be such a coward. Ooh! It's a bit large and fierce. Er... no it's okay, you deal with it. I'll go and get help.

Stop that whining and listen here, 'cos you've got five levels to get through! You just use Q and A to go up and down, and O and P to go left and right. There's a facility to save your hi-scores too, so in the end your sacrifice won't be wasted. Oh yes, and a little bird tells me that you won't be able to deactivate the last bomb until the whole floor is green... It's fast, it's addictive, and it's your neck that's on the block. So get on with it. I'm off!

The Basic Program

And here it is. All you need in one ready to serve pack. Just add fingers, a keyboard and a bit of spare time. Type in the following listing and SAVE "timebomb" LINE 1. Then Bob's yer uncle, you have a brilliant new game to play.

PROGRAM POWER

Boy oh boy, have I got a game for yoo-hoo! This really is the best game I've ever seen. It's fast, addictive, and best of all, I thought it all up myself. It's like nothing else you've ever seen on the Spectrum... and for a small fee it's all yours!

I am.....
 and my address is .....
 Phone .....
 My game is called.....
 and it's a sort of .....
 written in (Basic/Machine Code/MegaBasic) ..... and is 100% original, signed .....

TT RACER

YOUR SINGLE-SEAT MEGAGAME

Tommy Nash mounts his funky moped and takes it for a spin round DI's TT Racer. Now he wants to be Leader of the Pack...

room! Vrooom!!

"On yer bike," the Ed said. And I was just about to get my you-know-what into gear and go you-know-where when he gave me TT Racer. "That bike!" Oh!

Now the closest I've ever come to 500cc is a carton of orange juice, so I wasn't going to pass up the chance to race round the Nurburgring with a juggernaut between my knees. I'd soon polish off that Mr Sheene.

Right, rev up, release the clutch, whoa a wheelie... and we're off. Right off. Still, if this had been for real I'd have gone A over TT and ended up in hospital with more metal plates in me than a works canteen. But perhaps it was a little ambitious to start off with the big boys at Grand Prix level. Let's have a go on the 80cc phut-phut at club standard. And sure enough, within half an hour I'd won my first race. I don't know how because I still hadn't mastered the little things like gear changing but the Ed wasn't arguing when I sprayed champagne in his direction.

But that's the beauty of TT Racer; it provides enough options to keep you burnin' rubber till your Dunlops drop

What are Phil, T'zer and Martin playing at? TT Racer actually. The same game on the same track with just a computer, telly and joystick each. It's all done by using the Spectrum's networking facility through the Interface 1. The game gives you the net option to connect up to eight separate Speccies and race against your mates so you can really throttle each other. Helmets are purely optional. (And very silly! Ed)

The Right Track...

Welcome to the New Nurburgring in Germany. If you can get round this track in one piece you should be ready to tackle just about anything. And since the game includes eleven more tracks for you to rev your way round, you should have plenty of opportunity. When you've reached Grand Prix standard, you can choose the Season option that takes you through all twelve tracks, monitoring your progress as you go. If you're just starting out, I found that Silverstone was about the best to cut your teeth on without knocking them all out on the tarmac. It's got some good long straights and the bends aren't too hair-raising. At least no-one can accuse Digital Integration of having a one track mind!

TOTAL

The game's completely menu driven so you can easily change the degree of difficulty you're prepared to take before each race. Warning: don't go for the Grand Prix level after a night on the tiles.

The twelve tracks are the ones that make up the 1986 Grand Prix season — now you see how you'd have done if Suzuki had given you the chance you deserved.

The Season option takes you through the 1986 Grand Prix circuit in the order that the real riders follow. But if you need to Practice first, choose this option and it'll let you equip your bike with road instruments and wing mirrors if you want.

The pitboard with all the details of the race you're in, is displayed along the top. Here you can see your time, the lap number, the track record and your position compared to the other riders. Fortunately for your self-esteem it doesn't come up with the word, "last."

Over the handlebars — that's the view the game gives you and the direction you'll be travelling if you don't understand the dashboard.

When the heat's on, watch the temperature gauge. If it goes into the red, you're getting all steamed up and there's every chance that the engine will seize if you exceed maximum revs.

A quick click in the clutch can do wonders for your racing. You can disconnect the clutch to increase revs by holding the fire button down and then a quick press changes gear.

But that's the beauty of TT Racer; it provides enough options to keep you burnin' rubber till your Dunlops drop off. So, you can pootle off on a nobby bike with all the trappings like fuel indicator, speedo and wing mirrors — everything (barring the fluffy dice) that real racers have to dispense with to keep down wind resistance. You can even choose the automatic gear change — just don't let anyone see you 'cos that's for the real wimps! Then, once you've sussed out the technicalities of the throttle and the rev counter (no, it's not a device for adding up vicars), you can work your way up to the megamachines and win a place on the Grand Prix circuit.

The big test of any simulation, though, is just how realistic it is. It doesn't matter how many permutations of the original scenario it offers if none of them give you so much as an inkling of what it really feels like to be flying a plane, burning round Brands Hatch or becoming a Back Street Hero. TT Racer certainly convinced me. It convinced me that it's as close as I ever want to come to spreading myself like strawberry jam round the Silverstone circuit. Nothing can ever hope to capture the exhilaration and raw fear of trying to keep your tyres touching the tarmac while you're attempting to take a corner at 110 mph but this'll do for me.

And just take a look at how far over this baby tilts. If this was for real it's a wonder your ears don't catch fire in the friction. Swinging from side to side to take the S-bends on the Salzburgring can almost make you feel sea-sick. But you must master the corners if you're ever going to make it. You have to put yourself in a position to take the most direct line through them, brake, lean and then accelerate out again. One hint as well — don't use a sloppy joystick or you'll be wobbling all over the road and probably get done for being drunk in charge.

A couple of minor quibbles. The sense of speed doesn't seem to alter whether you're on an 80cc donkey or a 500cc mean machine. But then I'm still spending most of my time trying to stay on board and not really noticing the scenery as it whizzes past. And when you're racing against other bikes they all get out of your way when it comes to overtake — not as realistic as all that bobbing and weaving but a darn sight less dangerous.

If you're keen to take the chequered flag without getting spattered and only want your bike made by Yamaha not your organs as well, you'd be well advised to take the Ed's advice. On yer TT Racer!

Game..... TT Racer
 Publisher..... Digital Integration
 Price..... £9.95
 Keys Open throttle — 7.0.P; Brake — 6.0.L; Left — 5.A.Z; Right — 8.S.X; Change gear and use clutch — Space.
 Joystick..... Kempston, Interface II.

Would you believe it? You can choose up to 99 laps to race round but beware, you'll be a darn sight more than just saddle sore if you go the whole way.

These two options are only relevant if you're on the net. Remember that each of you must have an Interface 1 and networking leads.

If you don't want to cram a complete Grand Prix season into an afternoon's joystick bashing, you can save the game at any stage and resume your riding later.

Now L-E-E-E-E-A-A-A-A-W! It's at times like this that TT Racer starts to look more like a flight simulator.

When you choose the road instrument option, these spaces are taken up with your wing mirrors. You can then see if there's another bike on your tail as soon as it's within 64 feet of you.

Keep both eyes on the road at all times — and the other eye on the rev counter. As soon as you reach 2500 RPM away from max revs you can change up a gear — if you're less than that you'll change down.

Here's the only bit of the dashboard that you won't see on a real bike — it tells you which of the six gears you're in. If you crash, not that you will of course, you must remember to get the bike back to a horizontal position and put it into first gear again.

When approaching corners it's an idea to apply the brakes — if you want to live. Pull back on the joystick and then change down by hitting the fire button.

TASK FORCE

Got some reluctant routines that need revitalising? Write to Ian Hoare and he'll renew them with Task Force!

This month, I've got a question or two to answer and an answer or two to print. But first I've a confession to make!

Last month I promised to publish a way of using Interrupt Mode 2 even if your Kempston type joystick is connected. Honestly, I had a routine sent in that used a vector table. When I came to write this month's column, I went to my 'pending program' file. Not there! Aarrghh!! I've turned the place upside down and the routine has completely disappeared. So, if you're the person who sent it to me, please take pity on my plight and send it again.

But now for some of your letters I haven't lost. So, for starters here's a request sent in to me by Charles Samson from Dundee.

"Help!" he says, "I know how to multiply, add and subtract in machine code, but I don't have a clue how to divide by irregular numbers, for instance 10, 17, 5 and so on." Well, Charles, there are two ways of dividing. One will give you the nearest whole dividend, and a remainder; the other will evaluate the division as a decimal. In Pascal, for example, integers can be divided using the DIV command giving an integer dividend and a remainder, known as the Modulus, while reals (floating point numbers) are divided by the '/' symbol as usual.

In machine code, real division is difficult and is best performed by using the calculator in the Spectrum operating system. Steve Kramer's book, called appropriately enough The Spectrum Operating System gives full details of how to use all the calculator functions, together with a program to try them out. To give a simple example, I'll assume that you want to divide two integers in the range 0 to 65535, which you POKE into the four memory locations from DATA onwards, and print the result in floating point form.

0000 BC_ST EQU 2D2BH
0010 PR_ST EQU 2DE3H

You'll easily work out which order you put the two numbers onto the stack. Once you work out how to manipulate the calculator stack, and discover which DEFB's do what on the calculator, you can easily integrate it into your own code. A very similar routine can be used to give DIV and MOD functions. DEFB 50 carries out the calculation X MOD Y and leaves X DIV Y on top of the stack and X MOD Y beneath it. You'd then use DEFB 56 again to end the calculation. To print the two numbers which result, CALL PR_ST twice, printing a space in between.

If you want to use floating point numbers with the calculator, it's quite easy to set a pair of variables to those numbers — in Basic, of course. You'd then have to point HL to the beginning of each variable in turn and get each of the five bytes into A E D C B before calling 2AB6H which puts that onto the calculator stack. Do you remember how I described the use of NEXT1 to point to the beginning of any variable in the January issue of YS? Yes? Good! That's how you use variables in machine code, Jooris Olivier from Galst in Belgium!

Now for something a bit simpler. Ahmet Hurbos from Ankara in Turkey sent in this little drawing program. Try it out. As Ahmet points out, altering the values of x and y will change the starting position. You can put any values (0 - 7) for the border, ink, and paper colours.

10 BORDER 0: INK 1: PAPER 0: CLS
20 INPUT "X Coordinate (0 to 255):" X

="5")
50 LET Y=Y+(INKEY$="7")-(INKEY$
="6")
60 PLOT X,Y
70 GOTO 40

John Whyte from Dunfermline has been so inspired by reading Task Force that he's started to write his own machine code. Good for you, John! Here's a little routine that he's written to see if there are any hidden messages in machine code programs. It's very short, and totally relocatable, so you can load it wherever you want! He suggests that you try it out with Son Of Blagger. Have a look at how he uses the carry flag to see if the contents of a memory location are printable.

The program will print out a screenful of information, before stopping with the 'Scroll' message. It'll stop at 65280 but with modification it could be made to start and stop anywhere.

A couple of months ago, Richard Padley asked about anagrams. Well, Richard, several people have written in with help. Thanks to Norman Unitt, D Turkhud and Mark Orzechowski from Huddersfield, whose program is the most compact. It'll provide anagrams of words up to seven letters in length. But as Mark points out, if letters are duplicated in the word, then the computer will print out more than one copy of some anagrams.

There you are Richard, get typing!

Lastly, Jon Gajos from Jedburgh in Scotland wrote in with this modification to Hildo Queiroz's program in the August issue. The idea is that you can make minor modifications to the program you're looking at. There are three special keypresses. Pressing 0 will let you alter the program, pressing 5 will stop listing until you take your finger off again and pressing 1 will freeze the listing until any further key is pressed.

10 LET L=23755: LET b=1024
20 FOR f=0 TO b-1: POKE

POKE startadd+Z-1,CODE W$(Z):
NEXT Z: INPUT "Restart check ?
":r: LET f=(r-L)+1: CLS
40 IF INKEY$="1" THEN PAUSE 0:
GOTO 60
50 IF INKEY$="5" THEN GOTO 50
60 NEXT f

You can easily alter the start address and number of bytes checked by changing the values for L and b in line 10. Thanks Jon for sending

That's the lot for this month. Remember to let me have your routines, problems and comments. Send them to Task Force, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE.

YSA adventures

Illustration: Peter Richardson

Best idea of the month comes from Betty Thatcher of Cornwall, who complains about the lack of average logic in adventure games. Take Terrormolinos; you have to get Snargsby out of the wine emporium but, "Who would ever have got on a coach with him anyway," Betty wants to know. "There should be 'choice logic' in games so that problems can be circumnavigated." I think that makes really good sense, except that I would never have gone to Terrormolinos in the first place, and with a child like Doreen I would probably have left home long ago.

Some clues and pleas from David Ledbury, 82 Wealdstone, Woodside, Telford, Shropshire. In answer to a recent question asking who or what was 'Svetofor' in The Fourth Protocol, he says that it's the Russian for traffic light. He also gives an answer to a problem that's been foxing lots of people in Ship Of Doom, how to get the key, and I make no apologies for printing this un-coded as it's one of those solutions you're unlikely to get without help. Provided you've put a battery in the rod, you take the sonic screwdriver and point it at the cover. The command needed to get the key? Why, POINT SONIC, of course. David needs help on Heroes Of Karn, Lord Of The Rings, Spellbound and Knight Tyme, amongst others, as well as the second part of The Fourth Protocol.

K. Mitchinson from Billericay asks if there are any POKEs in adventure games that serve the same purpose as those for arcade games. Perhaps not exactly the same purpose, but there are sometimes POKEs for peeking at an adventure's vocabulary, and also occasional cheats and bugs for those adventures where strength is important. I do tend to print every POKE that I get sent, because there are so few of them, and some do allow you to have a bit of extra fun with the program.

Guard trouble in Heroes Of Karn for James Scott of Poole. The answer to this is simple: YENOM EHT MIH EVIG. Drowning trouble for Wayne Lyster in Waxworks, the cure for which is an aqualung. You'll have to reflect on how to get that, then go N-S-E-W-E-W (and that's not written backwards.) If anyone can tell Wayne how to light up the area through the grid in the washroom, write to him at 25 Mersstone Rd, Rowner, Gosport, Hants, PO13 0PB. Wayne also asks if £1.99 adventures are just as good as expensive ones. Some are and some aren't is about all you can say to that. Budget no longer means rubbish, so just read the reviews.

Terry Edwards of Deptford decided to introduce himself to adventures with The Hobbit. "I thought I was buying an entertaining diversion," he says, "but I find myself with 12 consecutive episodes of Mastermind and a copy of The Times crossword . . . Is there a solution available anywhere?" Well I'm sure the Ed won't let me get another plug in for my book, The Adventurer's Companion (only £3.95 from Duckworths) which contains a solution and maps, so I'd better recommend the book from Melbourne House at the same price, A Guide To Playing The Hobbit. A better solution (so to speak) might be to try a more conventional adventure for starters, like Emerald Isle from Level 9, who provides complete clue sheets for all its games. This one, in particular, is good for beginners as most early problems are logically solved and you can explore a lot of the game to find out what adventures are all about. Terry concludes his letter by saying "I'd prefer no answer to a flippant one." What, give a flippant answer? Moi? Several letters this month about using The Quill and GAC, and I'll happily put people out of these utilities in touch with each other so they can sort out how to get the best out of them. Hugh Neilson for one, and he's at Upper Lealands, Paterson Street, Galashiels TD13DD. Hugh has a fairly old Quill, version 3 he thinks, and wonders what the advantages would be in upgrading to a newer version or the adventure he wants to write. Any compatibility problems with The Patch and The Illustrator for example?

Stuart Lord of 3 Crighton Place, Edinburgh EH7 4NZ would like to Quill an adventure incorporating fight sequences with random elements in them, though the manual's a bit sketchy on the RANDOM command. Can anyone who's used this help Stuart with the commands needed in the Event and Status tables?

Brian McKenna says he needs help in a hurry on using GAC — and he might have got some if he'd included an sae for a reply. Brian suggests a page of hints on how to program GAC, though all the questions you ask about commands are covered in the manual. I suggest you read through it again, more slowly, and don't go past a particular page until you're sure you understand everything that's on it. He's also interested in ATTACK and STRENGTH commands, and any GAC users (Gackers?) who can help can contact him at 30 Roemill Gardens, Limavady, Co Derry, N. Ireland BT49 9AQ. As to the page of hints, that's not a bad idea, and if enough readers seem to be keen then I'll see what I can do.

Someone who's seemingly conquered The Quill is John Wilson, of 26 Spotland Tops, Cutgate, Rochdale, Lancs. Flushed with the success of having his first adventure on a recent YSDigiTape, El Supremo is now selling his latest himself for just £1.99, and I can fully recommend it. John had been working on this one for a while, under the title of . . . The Boggit! Yes, it was a send-up of The Hobbit, and you can imagine how he felt when he discovered his hero Fergus McNeill had the same title and subject lined up for his own next adventure. Undaunted, the Rochdale Balrog finished his, and changed the title to An Everyday Tale Of A Seeker Of Gold. He says if it's not the best adventure around, it's probably got the longest title. You begin the graphics game in very familiar surrounds, and I'm pleased to say that John has a nice line in send-up humour too. Grand Alf arrives and very fetching he looks in his blue denim jumpsuit and Nike trainers. You are Bulbo Biggun, incidentally, and among the other characters you'll meet is Vyril the Balrog, who blocks your entrance to an interesting looking cave which has a neon sign above it saying "Welcome to Benny's Joint." The trolls put in an appearance, but are soon won over provided you've investigated Bulbo's home thoroughly enough. No exploding chocolates but there are some other tasty goodies around. I romped around till I encountered the eyes in the forest. I tried to attack them and then thought I definitely had the answer: light up my pipe and puff away, to blind them with smoke. No dice. And no more space either. Just room enough to say that if you send your £1.99 (which includes postage) to John Wilson you'll get a very enjoyable (and tough) adventure to solve.

News

Venture forth with Mike Gerrard

The first adventure's on the way from a new company based in Huddersfield called Powerhouse Software, and this does have at least one difference from other releases by small software houses — it's not written on The Quill! Sanity Man is a machine code program in which the player is sent to investigate a disturbing and dangerous field of insanity that's growing around an isolated Hebridean island. As you approach the seemingly empty island on your parachute you feel strange sensations and darkness overcomes you. When you wake up, the adventure begins. Set to retail at £3.80, I await my review copy with interest.

Lots of readers ask for news of budget releases, so here's another couple on the way at £2.50 each from Mandarin, who published Time Of The End. I wasn't overimpressed with that one (even if every other reviewer did rate it quite highly), so as some of you may have bought and enjoyed it that's no reason not to tell you about the sequel, The Minister For Alien Affairs, which is out now and the sequel's sequel, Into The Abyss, which should be out by October.

The Minister For Alien Affairs is probably the first adventure where you get to play the role of a Government minister. (Incidentally, whatever happened to the game based on Yes, Minister that was announced several lifetimes ago?) You begin in your Whitehall office and are set the task of dealing with the fiendish aliens who fled to Earth after their planet was destroyed in Time Of The End. The sequel's sequel lets you know that you can't possibly succeed in the previous game, as here are the aliens again, this time creating rotating black holes as a means of travel to another universe (and if the first black hole's full I suppose you're told there'll be another one along in a minute.) And all credit to Mandarin for producing a newsletter to keep its customers informed.

A rather strange news release comes from Level 9 on the subject of Incentive's GAC, which it rather condescendingly says "seems quite a good product and has been getting some clever marketing of late. Indeed, some people may even have gained the impression that it is equivalent to Level 9's system." Well I haven't seen anyone make that claim, but having set up the comparison themselves Level 9 goes on, naturally, to demolish it by pointing out the superiority of its own in-house adventure writing utility. I wish Level 9 would forget it and let its products speak for themselves — the best British adventures by far. Incentive's so-called "clever marketing" seems to me to be no more than anyone else does — produce the software, advertise it, send out review copies and generate a bit of publicity with competitions and so on. Nothing clever about that. One thing the Level 9 press release doesn't say: GAC can be bought to give pleasure and help to would-be adventure writers; its own system can't.

Players Software is also in the budget market, having released Claws Of Despair and Journey To The Centre Of Eddie Smith's Head at £1.99 each. Keep your eyes peeled for The Experience, which, instead of being a multi-location game, is an attempt to recreate a room in loads of detail, allowing the player to search and examine as many objects as possible, and behave as you might do in real life. An adventure in its own right, it also provides an excellent introduction for beginners, to give them an understanding of what adventure playing is all about. More news when available.

On to more positive things, and a preview I was sent of a new adventure from CRL called Dracula. Before you yawn and turn the page at the prospect of yet another stake-and-garlic tale, let me tell you that this is the first one I've seen that actually goes back to the original Bram Stoker novel of Dracula, and adapts it for the micro. The adaptation's been done by Rod Pike, who also wrote Pilgrim for CRL, though I believe that was only released for the Commodore 64. Pilgrim was distinguished by its lengthy text descriptions, and Dracula continues in that vein (if you'll pardon the expression.)

The opening of the adventure doesn't require you to do much more than the obvious (register at the hotel, go to the dining room to eat and so on), but then when the fangs start flying it opens out and is very enjoyable. Full pages of text set the atmosphere marvellously — none of the simple "You are in the hotel" nonsense. No, in this one — "I am in the foyer of the hotel. It is a most intriguing place, adorned with the trim and trappings of mountain life. Deer skins hang on the walls in a rather random fashion . . ."

An equally lengthy review will follow when the finished Spectrum version is available — it's appropriately set for release on October 31st, Halloween, at £7.95.

ADVENTURERS INTERNATIONAL

A truly international bunch this month. But first the furthest afield and that's Marcio Nobre Mignon from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, showing that they do occasionally do something there other than play football. Marcio's having trouble getting Falkor to fly in The NeverEnding Story. You have to be in the right place first of all, and that's TRESED EHT FO EGDE NREHTRON EHT. From there you can HTUOS YLF.

Klaus Heinen is at Getreideweg 6, 5000 Köln 41, West Germany, and in addition to a few queries I've sorted out for him, he wants to hear from anyone who can help on Tir Na Nog, especially to tell him where he can get the eggs. I hope someone will take pity on a German trying to cope with Celtic mythology!

Yves Borckmans is a Belgian Boggit . . . sorry, a hobbit, and offers hints on Lord Of The Rings. To get two jewels: EKAL EHT NI MIWS DLUOHS YRREM. To get past the Barrow-wight: LEWEJ WORHT. To receive a Golden Medallion: SEMIT EERHT YDAL DER OT ON YAS.

Bill Kotaras has been grappling with Gremlins in Greece, and has found that a PEEK is as good a way as any of dealing with them. "Merge the loader and delete PRINT USR 24576," he says. Then you run it and start the tape again. When you see the OK message stop the tape and type in the following: 10 FOR n = 34240 TO 39664: IF PEEK n-32 OR PEEK n-127 THEN NEXT n 20 PRINT CHR$ PEEK n: PAUSE 0: PRINT USR 24576

Christer Andersen of Rorlokket 49, DK-2730 Herlev, Denmark is no idiot, and to prove it he's already a Spellbinder in The Price Of Magic, "the best adventure yet to hit the Spectrum." But he does need some help on how to get down to the riverbed, what to do with the glass prism, how to go through the glowing doorway and how to get the talisman. For the first you need to disrobe the Golem, Christer, the second allows you to examine magical properties, for the fourth FLY is useful and the third beats me. So, can anyone save this Dane's bacon? Or have I cracked that joke before?

Per Anders Skytt writes from Sweden to say that he's stuck in Valkyrie 17, unable to open the bathroom cabinet, unable to get into Drakenfeld and unable to fly. The first you can forget, the third you should leave till later, and a clue to the second one? Rubbish!

KIND SOULS

To show that these columns actually work in bringing adventurers together, I've just received a letter from Philip Hancock of East Ham who tells me that since a mention in the YS pages he's met (by post at least) 38 other enthusiasts, and very glad he is to have done so. His own recent successes include Wizard Of Akyz, Lords Of Time, Feasibility Experiment, and both of the Mafia Contract programs. Help available with the essential sae from Philip at 144 Charlemont Road, London E6 4HE.

Brian Taylor asked me for some help on Sherlock, which I hope has proved useful in proving Ffoulkes innocent, and Brian's willing to help anyone on Gremlins, Mindshadow, Espionage Island, Lords Of Midnight, The Rats, The Fourth Protocol, The Hobbit, Hampstead, The NeverEnding Story and Valkyrie 17.

The Welsh Kind contingent is represented by Wren Bull, Ty Loch, Llandarog Rd, Carmarthen, Dyfed SA32 8AP, who's able to help on Hampstead, Hacker, Bored Of The Rings, Eye Of Bain, Se-Kaa Of Assiah, Holy Grail and Espionage Island. On that last one though, Wren says that he finished it in four hours but without using all the objects, such as the match, the gun, the flight operator or the native woman. Any comments from Espionage experts?

From Wales to Wigan, that noble town I know so well (Obviously not the Wigan I know then! Ed), and Sandra Sharkey, whose successes (with adventures, that is) are too many to list in full, but among the ones not already mentioned are Ground Zero, Invincible Island, Waxworks, Time Machine, Time Of The End, Spy Trilogy, Planet Of Death and most of the Level 9 and Interceptor titles. For Sandra's address see Lost Souls.

Martin Gormley has a list of solved adventures as long as your arm, such as The Boggit, Marsport, Shadowfire, Fairlight, Smuggler's Cove, Classic Adventure, Golden Apple, The Helm, Rebel Planet, Doomdark's Revenge, most of Level 9's and several more of the arcade-adventure variety. Address: 51 Walter St, Dennistoun, Glasgow G31 4PX.

Andy MacGregor's successes are even longer than both your arms, totalling well over 100, and his list of less well-known titles is too long to include in full. Some of these are: Castle Blackstar, Curse Of The Seven Faces, Crystal Quest, Demon Knight, Diamond Trail, The Hollow, Jason And The Fleece, Madcap Manor, Operation Turtle, Orc Island, Pirate Gold, Ring Of Dreams, The Sandman Cometh, Sealed City, Spoof, The Swamp, Theatre Of Death and about six trillion others. A useful adventurer to know, and he's at 12 Douro Close, Barghurst, Basingstoke, Hants.

Alan Fairclough's already been in Kind Souls, as a result of which he's dealt with 59 letters, the furthest one being from Pakistan. He says he's still willing to help, however, on Lord Of The Rings, Pharaoh's Tomb, Greedy Gulch, Magic Mountain, Mountains Of Ket and Temple Of Vran. One problem, he says, and this is repeated by James Elliott, is the number of people who write in asking for complete solutions to adventures. Try to remember that Kind Souls are helping you out of the kindness of their hearts and their love of adventures, and any time they spend dealing with your query is time away from their own adventure-playing. Do try to limit yourself to the one or two problems that are foxing you. I know how James and Alan feel. As much as I like receiving letters and will help as much as I can, my heart sinks when I'm confronted by a list of seven or eight adventures, with several questions on each one. Also impossible to answer are those letters which ask "How do I solve The Hobbit?" Aaaargh!

LOST SOULS

The occasional arcade-adventure has crept into the correspondence this month, but I shall pretend I haven't noticed. First is Finders Keepers, in which Steve Burrows can't get past the Big Puss with no boots. Steve Burrows? Well we all need a hobby! His digs are at 2 Coombe Road, Limehead, St Breward, Bodmin, Cornwall.

Slightly closer to being an adventure is Redhawk, and help is needed by Andrew Sawyer, 174-d Bradford Road, Winsley, Bradford-on-Avon, Wilts BA15 2HN. He says he's got himself a job in the Trumpet offices as a crime reporter, but can do little else. How do you deal with the supervillains and get information from the other characters in the game?

Paul Thomas of Carshalton in Surrey asks how to get past the crevasse in Ransom, the adventure included with Incentive's GAC. Any help should be sent to me as Paul forgot to include his full address — as indeed did several readers entering the Great Big GAC Compo, but if they're among the eventual winners we'll track them down somehow.

Any help at all is wanted on Castle Thade by E. Bennett at 42a Northcote Road, London SW11 1NZ, and on Clares Of Despair, Terrormolinos and Journey To The Centre Of Eddie Smith's Head by David Wells, 25 The Larches, Exhall, Coventry CV7 9NF.

Sandra Sharkey has got lost somewhere between Wigan and Ithaca, wondering how to get the wax statue in Return To Ithaca. If anyone can help then write to her at 78 Merton Rd, Highfield, Wigan WN3 6AT.

How do you get out of the first level of Espionage Island? An entire family is having sleepless nights over that one, so help is obviously needed quickly. Send it to Mrs P. Thomson, 62 Fingringham Rd, Old Heath, Colchester, Essex CO2 8EB. Matthew without a surname is desperate for a drink, and he should be ashamed with an address like his: The Old Vicarage, Broadwoodwidge, Lifton, Devon PL16 0EP. The drink, of course, is in Denis Through The Drinking Glass, and I've put him right on that one — I've not met an adventure writer yet who didn't know where the nearest drink was. Campbell, Bridge — drunkards all. But I can't tell Matthew what to do with Ken Livingstone, what to do after he's trimmed a certain person's eyebrows, and what are the magic words to utter to the doctor. Any offers?

Last and by no means least, Ricardo Mapp wins the award for being lost in the most adventures at once. How to pass the light beam in Ship Of Doom, open the cupboard in Rifts Of Time, find the teleport device in The Traveller, take the casket in Smuggler's Cove and use the Conjurer's response in Clares Of Despair. I think you should join Adventurers Anonymous, Ricardo. Kind-hearted readers send your help to 10 Chaffinch Drive, Chelmsley Wood, Birmingham B36 0QH.

BUG

OF THE MONTH

Bugs by the bucketful this month, which makes you wonder whether any adventures ever get properly play-tested. No apologies for repeating the to-do you get to do with the word 'do' in The Hobbit. This has been featured before, but new variations are always welcome. One in particular from Bruce Phipps of Evesham amused me. After trying commands like NORTH DO and SAY TO THORIN "HELLO" DO, which produced messages about rivers evaporating and chests being dead, Bruce typed in OP DO when in the lowlands and was told that he has just attacked an ailing. (This obviously made it an ailing ailing.) He tried OP DO again to discover that he had now killed the ailing. What on Middle Earth is an ailing, we all wonder.

Next to a letter from Ricardo Mapp, which confirms my belief that you adventurers make these names up when you write to me. Honestly, names like Richard Grandorge and Arthur Dark. I'll be hearing from Gertie Grimoire next. Anyway, back to Ricardo, who, for want of anything better to do, has been journeying inside Eddie Smith's head. A hand grabbed him in the cemetery, a painful experience, and he typed 'R' to Redescribe the location and the program crashed with an 'Integer out of range' message.

Finally a batch of bugs from David Bovill of Pwllheli, solver of 30 adventures but deservier of the Manuel-of-the-Month award for having taped over the six adventures he wrote himself. In Kentilla he found that shooting doors causes a systems reset, while in Colditz if you ask for help in the storeroom you find yourself deposited in the town. David says that he didn't know the Nazis had figured out how to teleport!

Two worlds – the mirror image of each other, touch in space through a Time-Warp.

Cne is positive, good, familiar – our World; the other is negative, evil yet unnervingly familiar.

Their interface – a time window through which objects and beings can pass; contact has resulted in the beginning of exchange.

Restore our World – stop the invasion, but do it now, for as the exchange accelerates, the time window grows larger – domination is a hand!

Electric Dreams
SOFTWARE

Aaargh. Something just woke you from a cryogenic sleep right in the middle of your favourite dream.

Your ship has dropped out of warp and you are forced to make a glide-in landing on a very strange looking jungle planet. Equipped with jet pack for flying, navigation and weapons systems, fight your way through the jungle taking on it's strange and none-too-pleasant inhabitants. Only by finding vital parts stripped in your ship's unscheduled descent can you ever hope to escape.

Explorer is huge. There are literally billions of views and an enormous scrolling map.

If you ever wanted to get lost in a simulation this is the one to do it in.

FEATURES

UNDER STARTER'S ORDERS

After August's plea from Pauline Cahill who asked how you play an adventure that "understands all the usual commands" if you've never played an adventure before, comes a similar request from Mrs M. M. Whaley of Manchester, who says I'm her last hope. Fed up of getting answers like "Huh?" and "I do not understand," she asks what words she should be typing in. Well, the usual ones of course!

Movement commands are straightforward, a simple NORTH or N being all that's normally needed. Very few adventures ask you to type GO NORTH. If you're not told exits in a location, don't forget to try NE, NW, SE, SW, UP and DOWN as well as the four obvious ones. If there's a door, a window, a tunnel or anything along those lines, try GO DOOR, ENTER DOOR, OPEN DOOR, EXAMINE DOOR, GO THROUGH DOOR, IN, OUT as well as the compass directions to see if you can pass through to another location.

In most locations the command LOOK will usually either print out the location description again, if it's scrolled off the screen (due to all those "Huh?" messages), but it will sometimes reveal to you exits and objects not initially visible. LOOK can also sometimes be typed a second time to reveal even more. REDESCRIBE is also often used to print out the location description again.

GET and TAKE will allow you to pick up objects, and you should examine all objects to see if it tells you anything new or interesting about them. SEARCH is another common word, again to reveal new objects or exits in a location.

INVENTORY or LIST will normally tell you what you're carrying, and you should always try HELP and SCORE as well. SAVE or SAVE GAME should save your position, and LOAD, LOAD GAME or RESTORE allow you to load it in again. It's always fun to try a certain four-letter word, too, though don't blame me if the program crashes on you. No sense of humour, some programmers!

If you encounter characters, try the verbs SPEAK, SAY, ASK or TALK to see if you can communicate with them, and often a simple HELP BEGGAR will work as well. These are the more common commands — any of the more experienced readers want to add a few to them for the benefit of beginners?

You are playing in a vast contest. All over the country hundreds of others strive like you to seize the Dark Sceptre. On microdrive cartridge you send us your commands and we return to you the latest news of your warriors — one episode in your struggle to power.

Each episode keeps you thinking for days, maybe weeks, as you scheme and plot against a legion of enemies. Your opponents aren't just dumb subroutines — they're real living, breathing people — and most of them are after your blood!

An episode of Dark Sceptre is like a game in itself. Using our unique foresight-hindsight system, you watch action replays of events past, and then simulate the futures at your fingertips in "preplays" of events to come — all with stunning animation.

There are no deadlines but your own eagerness. You start a new episode, give fresh commands to your warriors. You rush to the door as the letter-box rattles a few days later. What's the news from the Western Isles? Have you won famous victories or have your warriors met their doom? You break open the seal...

All you need to play is access to a Spectrum microdrive (you don't have to own one). All you need to win are lashings of flair, nerve and audacity. The Dark Sceptre Play-By-Mail package includes:-

- * Master Cartridge
- * Episode Cartridge
- * Play-By-Mail Program
- * Solo Game Program
- * Start-up Position
- * Instructions Booklet
- * Coupon for 3 Free Episodes

The whole package is £14.95 and each extra episode you play costs just £1.50 (1st class postage included).

RETURN TO OZ

This is Aunt Em, who looks after NICHOLAS.

LOOK TALK SEARCH GET LIST LEAVE

Who is Vera Cruz? You may well ask. In fact, it's a case of who was Vera Cruz. As soon as you load up part one of this two-part adventure you'll get a screenful of Vera lying sprawled across the floor, a pool of blood oozing from her and making a right old mess of the Axminster.

And you, mon brave, are naturally the intrepid detective who has to investigate the death of Vera Cruz and decide whether it really is a case of suicide, as the note found beside the body suggests. The death takes place in St-Etienne in the Loire region of France, where a case of wine is infinitely preferable to a case of murder. But as a newly appointed detective sergeant in the Crime Squad, you can't neglect your duties and off you go to investigate. Its 8th August 1986, and the discovery of the body has just been reported by the caretaker of the Forest apartment block, where Vera Cruz was a resident.

Part one consists of just the single screen showing the scene of the death, and to avoid touching evidence you must make use of a camera to photograph anything that catches your eye. This is done using the cursor keys to move the viewfinder about the screen, and pressing Space to take a snap. You then get a close-up of anything interesting you happen to find. Some things are obvious, like the suicide note and the gun, and others are slightly hidden. For example, you'll need to pay attention to at least one of Vera's extremities — no, not those, you fool. And don't neglect the shadowy areas either. Once you're sure you've covered everything, press ENTER to conclude your investigation and load part two.

This is where the story really starts. Now you have to piece together clues and try to find out what you can do about the life and death of Vera Cruz, using the sophisticated Diamond Computer Network of the French State Police Force. The terminal is shown on the screen, and pressing 'M' allows you to key in any messages you want to send.

Pressing 'P' will give you hard copy on your own printer, 'C' allows you to compare evidence and 'E' to carry out various examinations, such as fingerprinting or calling for an autopsy report. 'A' awaits for when you're ready to make an arrest.

Whether the game has the complexity of The Fourth Protocol remains to be seen, but after finding out a little about Vera, the gun that killed her and the cartridge found near her body, I'm intrigued to know more about the strangely elusive names, addresses and phone numbers discovered in her diary. Who is Nadine Lafeville, and what goes on at Eva's transport café? Screen presentation might prove to be a little boring after a while, as everything takes place at the computer terminal. But for those of you who fancy yourselves as Maigret rather than Inspector Clouseau, you should enjoy investigating the seedier side of French life.

THE VERA CRUZ AFFAIR

Aim the camera viewfinder using the cursor keys. Press 'SPACE' to photograph or 'ENTER' to end.

Ding-dong, the witch is dead...but that didn't stop Walt Disney making a sequel to the classic film, The Wizard Of Oz, now turned into a graphic adventure on US Gold's new 'Kids' software label. It requires no text input from you whatsoever, just the ability to read and cope with the use of three keys on the keyboard. The options available to you at any location are always LOOK/TALK/SEARCH/GET/LIST/LEAVE. Pressing SPACE highlights each option in turn, ENTER selects an option and CAPS SHIFT acts as a cancellation key should those grubby little fingers slip. The only option that probably needs further explanation is LIST, which shows you everything that you're carrying and gives you a sub-menu allowing you to DROP something, USE something, or return to the main menu.

Your own return to Oz is the first aim of the game, as something tells you that the friends you left behind there (like the Cowardly Lion and the Scarecrow) are in some kind of trouble. You need to find your red slippers to transport you to Oz, then sort out the trouble when you get there.

Each location is depicted in rather disappointing simple graphics, with the text above and options beneath. You can only select an option if it's actually relevant to the people or objects in the picture. For instance, you begin in the farmyard with Aunt Em and a few hens and chickens. Selecting TALK will cause Aunt Em to flash (so to speak) as she's the only one you can talk to there, while LOOK or SEARCH will have different items flashing. Searching will uncover any hidden items, allowing you to GET them if you wish. Solving the small problems you come across is done by using the objects in your inventory, and if an object is of use in a particular place then it will flash — no flash means you've got nothing that's useful and you need worry no further.

This does tend to make problem solving rather easy, the only thing you really have to do is make sure you've used all the options in each location, some of them twice. To LEAVE a location isn't simply a case of automatically moving on to the next one, as the various exits available will also flash in turn, and a simple map will need to be kept as you move about.

This is a difficult game to assess, as an adult will speed through with no trouble at all, but then it isn't aimed at adults. I've a feeling, though, that younger children will find the 'simple' approach to adventures not quite as simple as all that; sometimes it takes several presses of the SPACE key to make the flashing indicator move on to a second or third object in a picture, and that could cause confusion. It's also a shame that the layout of text on the screen hasn't been properly done either, with stray commas and full-stops wrapping round onto separate lines. There's fun to be had from the program for fans of the magical land of lions and tin men, but I think 'kids' deserve better than this.

Domark/F14 95

Actually, I have a soft spot for this particular game, even if it is the numero uno yuppie pastime. There's something so satisfying about knowing the names of the 1922 Accrington

Quizzes have a fairly consistent history on the Spectrum, ranging all the way from the bad to the mediocre and back again. One of their worst

Domark has found a way round this. The computer displays the question, then the answer, and asks you if you were right. Providing you're not schizophrenic enough to cheat yourself, it's a neat solution to

Of course it does make Trivial Pursuit ideal for group play but near useless for individual outings, despite the suggestion that you should play yourself against the clock. So gather family, friends and the rent collector round the TV set and prepare yourself to meet TP!

TP, who he? Surely not

Ocean/£7.95

Phil Vvvvvvrrrrroooooommmmm! Scrrrrreeeeeeeeecchh!

Wow. Worra burn-up, rubber fans. You thought you'd played some good driving games in your time? Well, think again, wheelspinners! Nightmare Rally is fast, fresh and furious. Speeding across country in your highly tuned rally car (looks like a Golf GTi to me, but what do I know?) you're setting off on a race against the clock. There are trees, there are huge mounds of earth, there are great stonehengey things...

There are a lot of permutations of these obstacles, and a lot of different road surfaces to contend with, all at tremendous speed. When you hit the mounds of earth, oooo-eeeeee! It's the Dukes Of Hazzard all over again. How is this much excitement possible on the humble Specy? How does it compare with such tricky old standards as Pole Position, The Great American Road Race, and Full Throttle? Not bad. The car is really well animated and drawn, as are the hordes of trees and stuff hurtling past you.

As a driving game, it's brilliant. It requires snappy reflexes and not a small amount of planning; as in real rally driving, foreknowledge of your route is invaluable.

It's easy to play, très quick and v. good fun. It does make a change to play a fun game after all the megaserious concentration games or brainless shoot'em ups. Highly recommended.

THINGY AND THE DOODAHS

Americana/£2.99

Max Thingy and the Doodahs?
Yeah, it's one of them cheapie wotsits based on whatyamacallit-type game. Usual sort of blobby things legging it round a vast number of rooms. You've got to trog round avoiding them and collecting the jobbies scattered about. And all with only one more life than the average cat.

But wait a mo... this one's a triff! You'll need every trick in the book because programmer Mike Smith (no relation?) has used every one in his Talk about split-pixel positioning — you often need to nudge right up into the attribute space of a killer baddie before you can make a dash past it. And some of the rooms require you to move at Troubleshotin' Pete? No, this TP is a thousand times worse. He's an animated wotsit with a selection of hats, who walks on and asks questions. TP, we soon decided, stood for Total Pain, so we switched him off. He's just the sort of addition that the game doesn't need.

Luckily the program caters for a wide variety of personal preferences. You can set a time limit for answering questions, from five seconds to nine minutes. You can have sound effects. You can kick players out of the game or pause while one of them slopes off to make a cuppa. And, of course, you can load new sets of questions, though there didn't seem to be too much repetition with the default set. All these choices are made through a simple-to-operate menu system.

At heart, Trivial Pursuit, the computer game, is still a chase round a wheel-shaped board, picking up wedges at the intersections before racing back to the centre. Answering a question correctly, the category decided by the colour of the square you're on, gets you another go.

One thing that the computer can do that a bit of cardboard can't, is set visual and musical questions. These add something to the game, though I'm not really convinced that identifying a tune played backwards is quite true to the trivial facts philosophy.

As to the board, it's something of a psychedelic nightmare. Obviously, so many colours in such a small space wasn't going to be easy on the Spectrum, but I can't believe that this craziest of crazy-paving is the best Domark could do. It almost gave me a migraine looking for my playing token!

Only one token appears at a time, which helps a little, but also takes away some of the feeling of the chase. In fact, I always think that board games lose out when there are no nice pieces of card and bits of plastic to push around.

Perhaps I'm just nit-picking, because Trivial Pursuit is still fun in this incarnation, and compared with the real thing it's cheap. But I'm not sure that the addition of sound and visuals are enough to persuade me to leave the battered box with its dog-eared question cards in the cupboard.

incredible speed as well as with super precision.

But the mix of easy-peasey, fiendishly difficult and downright impossible is really well balanced to get you started quickly and then keep you glued to your set for days. There's 64 so-and-sos to collect, of which you need 60. But they're scattered through over 200 rooms, including an extensive forest maze. So rest assured this ain't no ten-minute wonder.

As the title might suggest, the plot's a teensy bit weak and the vaguely plausible rooms rapidly degenerate into sub-Jet Set Willy humour and complete weirdities. There's even a little moralising; a 'Drugs' room full of 'Say No' signs, that leads, among others, through 'Driving Drunk' to 'Killer Fags'.

This last one's a toughie — the fag packets littered around are lethal (unlike the background graphics in other rooms) and the only exit throws you back into the path of a hypodermic in 'Drugs', where you'll soon get the point!

Okay graphics, okay sound, okay with a joystick (better with a rubber keyboard) and about as original as sliced bread but utterly addictive, incredible fun and a steal at £2.99. Well worth a thingimajig... dooberies this juicy don't grow on trees you know.

GLIDER RIDER

Quicksilver/£8.95

Tommy You just can't go by appearance nowadays. The lush tropical island setting of Glider Rider turns out not to be inhabited by friendly natives knocking back the Um Bongo but by the evil Abraxas Corporation — international gunrunners, terrorists supplied at competitive rates. And the trees and grass aren't adding an awful lot to the ozone layer. Polythene and nylon, the lot of them. What about all the buildings then? Club Méditerranée? Power plants and nuclear reactors!

Much the same goes for this game. I nabbed it as soon as I saw the first screen shots. The 3D graphics are excellent, if a little repetitive. And the idea of taking part in a mission designed to destroy the nuclear reactors appealed. As did the novelty of riding round on a motorbike that turns into a hang glider when you drive down hills. But like the biz about books and their covers, so you can't judge a game from its screen shots.

Glider Rider just never gets off the ground. For starters, if our secret agent wants to get up any sort of speed he'd do better swopping his Kawasaki with Paperboy's pushbike.

And no wonder hang gliding's got itself a reputation. It's downright suicidal if this is the sort of control you have.

One moment you're pushing the joystick forward on a stairway to heaven, the next you're stuck at the top of a polythene poplar. The perspective's all wrong. If only the programmers had bothered to put in a proper scroll instead of paging from screen to screen. And it's doubly difficult when you come to drop your regulation hand grenades to destroy the enemy targets. Not that they ever explode anyway so it hardly matters.

The most frustrating thing of all though is that the game never lets you get to grips with it. It took two minutes to suss out how to take off, another two to go all the way around the island and that was as far as I got. As soon as you're airborne and within spitting distance of an enemy installation, the guns open up and drain your energy so fast it's impossible to do anything but die. And unlike your supply of hand grenades, there's no way of replenishing your energy. Curtains.

Glider Rider's a bit like the island it's set on. Looks good from a distance, lacks real depth.

VIRGIN ATLANTIC CHALLENGER

Virgin Games/£7.95

Chris Oh joyous day! Oh rapture unforeseen! The lovely T'zer rang me today. This can only mean one of two things - she's decided that I'm the most desirable man ever to walk this planet or she wants me to do some games reviews and so to the late release of Virgin Games (big WIN EVERYTHING).

It couldn't have slipped your notice that a few months ago Richard 'Keep Britain Tidy' Branson, Le Grand Fromage at Virgin, succeeded in crossing the Atlantic in a powerboat and swiping the coveted Blue Riband (Er... isn't that a margarine? Ed). What better than to devise a fun simulation of Richard Branson's part in this exciting and dangerous event. I can think of a few things. After I spent half an hour trying to get more than a few nautical miles from America I was left feeling a bit like Simon Le Bon and had to check my dictionary for the definitions of 'fun' and 'simulation'.

You start off in control of a very bizarre looking Richard Branson sprite that has to run along a corridor inside the boat checking and adjusting the status of various items of the ship's equipment. For instance you have to regulate the speed of the engines to stop them blowing up and check the map to make sure you're keeping on course. You've also got to keep stopping so you can feed the ever hungry Richard, otherwise his manic movement slows down to positive catatonia - it's worse than having a newborn sprog.

Hazard warnings'll sound at alarmingly frequent intervals to tell you to climb up the bridge and set a new course to avoid piling your lovely vessel into an iceberg or other stationary object. As if all this wasn't thrilling enough (yawn), you're not allowed to forget that the curiously misshapen sprite you control is the head of a global business empire since the telex chirps every now and again to request that you answer some crucial question of corporate policy. Now I know the Virgin empire covers many areas but some of the things I was required to do were absurd. Did I want to buy the Eiffel Tower and did I want to release a film called 'Cheese', being two of the more sensible ones. Pretty crucial stuff alright. Failure to make the right response could plunge Virgin into financial crisis.

About the only redeeming feature of the game was the fact that the graphics of the boat were virgin on brilliant, well they looked nice anyway. Luckily for the crew on the real voyage they had the constant drone of the engines to keep them awake - anyone playing this game will have to find their own methods.

I can only think of one reason why this rather disappointing game has actually been released at all - racy Richard during the voyage must have given the wrong answer to the crucial question, 'Should we release this game?'

Mirrorsoft/£9.95

Chris I reckon it's probably easier to fly a bloomin' great aircraft than a flight simulator. At least the controls are simpler and you get the feel of what you're doing wrong, like nose diving towards the earth faster than the speed of a C5! Despite all this, Mirrorsoft has managed to produce a simulator that's both easy to use and fun to play and also managed to incorporate a lot of extra gameplay alongside it.

The Harrier jet, the hero of the Falklands war, is a sophisticated plane that sports a unique vectored thrust system whereby the plane's jet nozzles can be swivelled through ninety degrees to allow the plane to perform some pretty nifty manoeuvres. All this is faithfully reproduced in the game - if you get in a heavy dogfight you can suddenly shift the direction of the engines enabling you to flip behind an enemy and get him firmly in your sights.

Screen display is split in two, your view from the cockpit occupying the upper part and the control panel the lower. There's also a Head Up Display, that gives you status information so you don't have to take your eyes off the enemy to see where you're going. The animation is fast though a little jerky but that isn't surprising when you consider the program is carrying out a complex battle sequence at the same time.

Once you've managed to avoid splattering yourself into the ground at every take-off you can then embark on your mission to destroy enemy headquarters. To do this you must defeat both tank and aerial attacks and leapfrog towards HQ, setting up ground support stations as you go. Fail to defend your own bases and you'll lose your only method of refuelling and rearming.

As with all simulators, it'll take you a while to get handy with the controls but once you have you really will be flying high!

STRIKE FORCE HARRIER

MOONLIGHT MADNESS

Bubble Bus/£7.95

Pete Hmm, don't like the title Moonlight Madness much, howzabout Daylight Robbery. Catchy, ain't it?

What makes this game even more amusing is that it's the first I've seen so far to receive the Sinclair Quality Control stamp. From now on I'll take it as a signed, sealed and delivered death warrant. This is truly dreadful.

The traditionally weak story line goes as follows. You play a lost boy scout who's wandered up to the mad professor's house. The prof himself answers the door and then promptly has a heart attack, gasping that you must find his pills, that are in the safe, that can be opened by the sixteen keys, that are scattered around the house, that also needs a combination, and the staff in the house are none too friendly to strangers. Take my advice, let him die!

Either this program is written in compiled Basic or the programmer is only up to the half-way stage in a Tim Hartnell classic. The ... movement ... is ... very ... jerky ... and has a tendency to stop at infrequent intervals for no particular reason at all. The programmer hasn't used masks on any of his sprites either, so when you or one of the prof's henchmen walk past anything, it's obliterated. Plus, it's very slow and sluggish and surely by now platforms are a little long in the tooth for full-price games?

Included in the features is a standard redefine keys option. Unfortunately, you can't redefine all the keys. Try the popular left/right — A/S and you'll find that you keep saving the game and entering doors you don't want to while walking. Très confusing.

Maybe Bubble Bus had a touch of Moonlight Madness when it picked this one for its new release.

Elite/£7.95

Rachael 1942 — almost my IQ. Also a machine that inhabited a pub I used to haunt. Though it looked fun, somehow I never actually tried it. Now, at last, here's my chance to experience Hell in the Pacific... or rather, in my own front room.

Let's just say that as arcade conversions go, this one doesn't have the most sophisticated plot. It's only about one step up from Space Invaders. The enemy has a variety of flight patterns, but in the long run it comes down to one simple philosophy... shoot everything that moves!

With the squabble in the South Seas hotting up, the USAF calls on you to boldly go where no-one else is mug enough, into the heart of the enemy forces to waste their war effort. There you'll find installations that you can instil with the fear of God as you fly over them. They're defended by every type of aircraft under the Rising Sun. Yes, this is really one for the plane spotters among you!

You'd better harbour thoughts of revenge for Pearl Harbour, because these are the oriental airforce's finest officers pledged to die for their country. You'll be flying by the seat of your camiknicks if you're going to avoid these kamikaze kowboys.

Still, there are always the POWER capsules to help you avoid becoming a POW. You can pinch these projectiles when you shoot up certain planes, and they'll give you extra guns or maybe act as smart bombs, if you're smart enough to grab 'em in time.

What makes your progress across the scrolling seas of

OLYMPIAD '86

Atlantis/£1.99

Rick Seeking stimulation from a simulation? I'm afraid you might be struggling with this one! A little late for Los Angeles and somewhat soon for Seoul, Atlantis reckoned on hitting the market whilst there was no opposition. It reckoned without Mastertronic's Video Olympics, though that's not the hottest thing to hit your joystick, either.

Olympiad '86 is a sports simulation of a cross section of Olympic events — canoeing, 200 metres sprint, weight lifting, discus and the now compulsory skeet shooting. Why's everyone got it in for skeets, that's what I want to know? When was the last time a skeet got up your nose? Unfortunately, though, Olympiad is a simulation of other simulations — start at Daley's and work down.

The game gives you your money's worth in terms of numbers of screens, but as to their quality and just how much is used on game play — well, I've seen more wit, action and invention on the TV test card. It's not joystick compatible and only has single player facility. You have three lives and you lose one each time you fail to reach a qualifying standard. Lose all three before completing the canoeing and you have no chance of being in the medals. There's a (marginal) points system, though, which allows competition with your opponents even if you don't reach the gong show.

Arsenal fans alone might spy some excitement in this farce. I certainly didn't!

1942

The bigger the plane, the more shots it can take before it blows. This one swoops in and glides around, before flying out the bottom of the screen. Prepare to move around and let him have it.

This is a duck shoot. Don't get in their way, and one shot will knock them out. But once you've destroyed enough of them they'll turn round to make way for more ferocious forces.

By this stage they're really out to get you. Watch out for the planes which circle around, or you could find yourself running right into their path.

Boy, is this a big one! Just fire away until you finally cut through his defences, because he takes an age to go away unless you blow him out of the skies.

The sharp end of the aircraft carrier. This is where your missions start and finish. Coming back alive rolls up a healthy bonus. Bring your dog back alive and he gets a bonus too.

Move over, John Wayne! Getting to the bottom of the screen is useful in this early stage. Later you'll have to watch out for 'the one that got away' in case he suddenly re-appears in your rear view mirror.

Here are your lives. A nice touch is their propellers, which revolve.

To add to the fun, you'll find yourself being shot at. The mega-plane has a deadly rear gunner, which makes it very tricky to stay right on his tale.

At times the only way out is to shake, rattle and roll, roll, roll. It means taking your hands off the joystick to hit the keys, but this aerial manoeuvre could get you out of a tricky situation.

South East Asia such fun is just how well balanced 1942's gameplay is. The planes follow each other in wave after wave — honestly, it's worse than a Chelsea hair salon. The constant swooping of the enemy forces you to shoot fast and accurately, or you'll soon find your airspace jam-packed with Japs. There's a nip in the air, as they say. Luckily you can dive and roll, but beware of coming up under a Honda or Sony, or whatever the Japanese flew in WW2.

You'll also soon learn where the next attack is coming from, which lets you build up a strategy. Be prepared for the bigger planes which take more shots to destroy. And flak me, if you don't have to avoid their shells as well. With 32 levels to go, this should keep you in the air for quite a while.

Maybe Elite has produced better conversions, and this suffers from some dodgy collision detection. But even though there are quite a few good shoot 'em ups around nowadays, this rates up there in the air. It's a classic case of the just-one-more-go game.

NEXOR

Design Design/£7.95

Phil If you, like me, half believed the blurb about Nexor being the ultimate in arcade adventures, then you'll be as disappointed as I was when you finally see it. Originally titled Nemesis, it's been renamed to avoid any confusion between itself and the hordes of coin-op conversions of the Nemesis arcade machine. A good thing too; anyone buying this expecting a hot shoot'em up would be more browned off than a panful of Bisto.

In truth the only really ultimate thing about this game is the way the programmers have produced an Ultimate-style game. But unlike Ultimate's games, Nexor is poorly planned and casually executed. It's the usual find-and-collect/push-box-to-door scenario, but it's so fiddly and prone to no-win situations that it's virtually unplayable.

Your first act as a Nexor operative is to try to cross a catwalk to safety, only to fall repeatedly down a seemingly bottomless pit. The most annoying thing about the game is the fact that you're not just pitting your wits against the evil creatures of the complex, but also against the quirks and faults in the program. This is not the way to write an addictive game!

To be playable, a game should be easy to learn, but hard to master. And to be addictive it must start off easy, and get progressively harder; your hope for success elusive but not hopeless. Having that enormous drop at the beginning of a game must be one of the most dippy ideas ever for an opening screen.

And to be frank, I found the rest of the game about as exciting as watching my washing going round.

Reaktor/£8.95

Gwyn I like Tigress-styled games. I thought Think till I was well and truly drunk, and now Deactivators is de activator of my tired mind.

This time the ace design team has come up with a complex arcade puzzle totally unlike anything you've seen on your Spectrum. It's an abstract maze game, but it calls for a goodly number of arcade skills too just to keep you on your toes.

Actually, there are no toes in this game, nor fingers, because your bomb disposal squad is totally devoid of anything but droids, which is pretty lucky really since they're eliminating the explosives in the most unlikely environments ever. And there are security droids on patrol which the terrorists have reprogrammed to attack you. See what I mean when I say it's not a good place for flesh and blood.

Playing Deactivators is easier than describing it but playing it well is fiendishly difficult. Each level of the game contains a series of rooms arranged in a grid. The first of these is a mere four by four, but they get bigger as you progress.

Most of the rooms are linked, either by doors, trapdoors, which only allow downward travel, and poles, which allow two way vertical movement. Windows are too high for a hovering droid, but you can throw things through them, and teleports serve to... well, teleport. Also in the building you'll find a computer room.

The first thing you should do when you approach a new level is make a map. Get to know what will take you where, using the scan facility, accessed through an icon menu, because there's nothing worse than being stuck with a fizzing fuse in a dead end!

Next, check where the circuit boards are because you'll need to insert them into the computer if you're to complete the task. They do things like removing force fields, switching on teleports and even the lights, so they're invaluable for getting about.

Then, find the exit to the outside world. You throw the bombs out of this, so make sure that you know the fastest route. Finally, study your map and try to decide on a strategy, because you'll be pretty busy when the action starts.

The game becomes a test of manoeuvring your forces within a set time limit. You have to pass the circuits and bombs through windows if you're to carry them to their correct destinations. Meanwhile, movement of robots within the proximity of a guard leads to a frantic game of chase as you try to collect objects without colliding.

Throwing a bomb is controlled by a clever system, with a swinging line indicating the angle of the shot. Given that explosives don't take too kindly to being tossed around, you need to judge this carefully. Position your fielder so that the bomb doesn't bounce around the floor before going Boom!

If a bomb should explode prematurely you'll lose the droid and the room it was in, which can bring a game to an early end.

As the levels progress, Reaktor has included some fiendish tricks. Different rooms have different gravities, making those throws even more difficult. Sometimes there are no lights. Worst of all are the upside down and sideways rooms, which makes orientation tricky to say the least. There you are, trying to position yourself accurately and make a flawless throw, when everything about your joystick is the wrong way round.

With its clean graphics and clever control system, managing to provide all the information you need to do the job, this is another goodie from Tigress. Providing you don't mind putting in some hard brainwork in order to play, it's a must!

Bigger even than a Spectrum Plus Two, this is the computer room, all ready to accept those circuit boards which are scattered around the research centre.

Your droid, hovering around as you consider its next move. Pressing fire to enter the icon window pauses the game, so that those bombs stop burning away. If he was carrying anything it would appear in the bottom right-hand window.

The first level map is almost useless, apart from telling you where your droids and the bombs are. You'll need the scan facility to find the paths around its rooms. When you hit fire, this becomes the icon window.

Until you've inserted the first circuit, this window remains shut. Then it's a tricky shot to pass a computer card through this window, so that the computer room droid can place it into the correct slot.

A bomb! Pick it up by passing over it but make sure you're not carrying anything else at the same time, or it'll blow you sky-high.

DEACTIVATORS

JOHNNY REB II

Lothlorien/£9.95

Phil D'you know, I didn't know there was a sequel to the American Civil War... shows ya what ya can miss if ya don't pay attention. Once again, that wargaming specialist Lothlorien serves up a generous helping of death, doom and destruction in the shadowy figure of its newest wargame strategy/simulation.

The premise is simple. You are a general in the Union or Confederate army (the choice is yours). It's down to you to out-think the opposing army's general and win the war. It's a story as old as time itself, innit?

Using a skilful combination of a joystick controlled cursor and a few keys on the squishboard, you place and mobilise troops and order them to do various things. Using a blend of strategy and sadism you beat the opposing forces into the ground and emerge from the battlefield bloody but victorious... Well, actually, it's not as easy as that.

The computer is a superb strategist, and quite a lot of the time can out-think you at your every turn. As a spot of mental press-ups this kind of activity has a lot to recommend it.

The presentation of the game is a bit bland. It's not a pretty game to watch, but on reflection certain games I could mention suffer from being pretty but pointless, so p'raps that's not so bad after all. Very good, I would imagine, if you're into wargaming and you can't find anyone to pit your lead soldiers against!

NEWS & REVIEWS

From the riches of Super-Toolkit to the rags of Executive Adventure, Max Phillips on the continuing story of the computer that refused to die...

• CST's reborn QL, the Thor, is available now. Specs are as predicted, with a 640K QL repackaged in a big box with disk drives and an 'AT style' keyboard. Prices are £600 (plus VAT) for a single disk model, £700 for two disks and £1400 for one disk and a 20Mb hard disk. An £80 trade-in is available on your own QL. CST has handed over the job of selling Thors to the ever growing Eidersoft — more details on (0708) 851099.

• Digital Precision continues to release more programs a month than the rest of the world put together. £39.95 will buy you Super Media Manager to look after your disks and cartridges while Eye-Q is its entry in the ultimate art package stakes. These two are now joined by a Turbo version of Supercharge, a Supercharge Toolkit, a new editor, a couple of new games and ... and ...

• And if you're not using your Epson-compatible printer to the full, write to Palantir at 60 St Luke's Road, Bedminster, Bristol for details of Ink-Well. For less than a tanner, this promises a 16x16 font designer and proportional printing routine that'll work with Quill and other text editors.

• Rio Promotions, the people who supply Pyramide's well weird 3D game The Wanderer are offering Mortville Manor, a £19.95 graphics adventure for budding Miss Marples. Write to them at 28 Waverley Grove, London N3 NPX.

• "Never say die" say over 50 QL suppliers who have pledged their support for the continued future of the machine. Names like CST and Eidersoft have formed QL AID (Association of Independent Dealers) led by Transform. There's nothing actually happening yet but at least it's a start...

• Meanwhile... yet more attempts to get a new QL off the ground. Farmintel/Sandy (0234) 219814 is offering a CST Thor-like package based on existing QL boards. The Q-XT640 includes an IBM AT-style keyboard, three expansion slots, 640K and one disk drive for £599.

EXECUTIVE ADVENTURE

Subtitled Rags To Riches, this is an adventure game about a topic most of us know only too well. Well, at least the first bit is depressingly familiar — you're holding nothing, wearing nothing (?) and flat broke. The doorman at Harridges won't let you in because you look like a tramp.

Which is pretty astute as doormen go because you are a tramp. And the object of the game is to work your way up to be a rich, fat, posh company chairman.

And since tramps never do anything with great haste, you don't have to either. Executive Adventure is written mostly (completely?) in SuperBasic and ambles along, gently passing the time of play.

It's not got a very good parser, it's not got a big vocabulary, it's not got any documentation worth mentioning, it doesn't seem to have many locations (there are more departments inside the department store than there are streets in the town) and it's not very hard.

But it is a nice, easy bit of fun that should keep you occupied for a while. And having said that it's easy, I've only ended up down the manhole under Harridges with £5, my posh tie, useless cashpoint card, purloined toolbox and a suit found lying in the gutter in Rotten Row.

I'm not quitting yet. But I'll have you know I ain't never paid no £5 for a tie in my life...

SUPER-TOOLKIT

Make way for Tony Tebby's latest batch of wondrous extras for the QL's infinitely variable SuperBasic. QL Toolkit II (or Super-Toolkit depending on where you look) is a 16K ROM cartridge stuffed with well over 100 new commands.

The idea is the same as all toolkits — to fix bugs, cure omissions and add useful extras to the range of features already available in SuperBasic.

Trouble is, much of what you get is as practical and comprehensible as the unbelievably weird innards of QDOS itself. Sure you get a lot of bugs fixed but did you know the QL messes up if you open more than 32768 files in one session anyway?

And it's fine to have an improved network protocol if you happen to have mates close by with similarly equipped QLs. Super-Toolkit manages to pack an awful lot of techie things in — wildcards, tree-structured directories and so on.

But that's all they are — techie toys, fun for people seriously into hacking away at the complexities of life without getting a lot done.

And many of them are only any fun if you've got a fully expanded QL to start with. It's unashamed, vulgar trainspotting in the best sense of the word! Why, you can't even use the new commands in programs unless everyone who might use them also has Super-Toolkit...

It's all very well for people to point out that there are things it would be nice to have built into the QL. But the machine is complicated enough without adding more things that aren't quite right and don't fit in with the system or aren't particularly useful. And then pretending the result is something it isn't.

So why buy Super-Toolkit? Because it has a full set of basic things you do need; job control (for those multi-tasking programs), a print spooler, recall last line and program any sequence of characters onto ALT keys. Plus a screen-editor to really speed up SuperBasic programming, a VIEW command to see what's in a file, file statistics and so on.

These small, simple additions make using a QL so much more of a pleasure that it's nigh-on essential to have them. If you spend time in SuperBasic and you don't already have a toolkit feature, get this one — it does them all and superbly well. But leave the rest of it for the birds...

Yikes! Super-Toolkit even has the obligatory multi-tasking clock and alarm programs built in. But it's the simple little extras, like a repeat last line key, that make it well worth having...

GAMES WITHOUT FRONTIERS

Create your own Ultimate-style 3D arcade games — Max Phillips asks if CRL's 3D Game Maker really is a dream come true ...

Remember back to YS's April fool? A game designer that could do almost anything and everything? Not that you were fooled by it, of course.

But some people were. A lot of people. From wise old Speccy haspers to dealers, distributors and software houses. Some of the people who were frightened were the programmers at CRL. Because they were already working on their own Arcade Dream.

It's called 3D Game Maker, it's due out before Christmas, it's really real and it lets you create your own Ultimate-style arcade/adventure games with the touch of a joystick!

The package consists of three programs (on two tapes). A sprite editor lets you create the objects and graphics in your game, a room editor lets you put those objects into place and design your map and an 'adventure builder' lets you put it all together into a working game.

And when you've got it just how you want, you can save your game off under your own name and run it separately from the package. You can give it to your friends or even sell it — CRL won't be charging royalties or whatever.

The bit that was missing from our preview copy was all the stuff you need for the finer points of a game ... scoring, movement patterns, vanishing doors and so on. But if the rest of the program is anything to go by, the facilities you need will be there and they'll be dead easy to use as well.

No-one's saying that 3D Game Maker does anywhere near as much as the complete fantasy of Arcade Dream. It only does Ultimate-style 3D perspective games. But it does do them well — the results look really professional and play just like you'd spent months hand-coding them.

We'll have to wait and see just how good it is. Any program like this has got to limit your options to keep things simple. Think of it as a very advanced version of ye olde Quicksilver Games Designer and you won't be far wrong.

So while it's not going to make you famous or rich or be a substitute for real programming, believe me, it's gonna be one heck of a lot of fun.

You do believe me don't you? It's not just crying wolf, you know. I've seen this and used it — I've got it loaded right now. It does do it. Really. Honest and truly. Ed's honour. Cross my heart and ...

You've just got to believe it ...

1 3D Graphic Editor

Start with the 3D Graphic Editor program; the ubiquitous sprite editor. Here you concoct the various graphics for the player, walls, doors, aliens, objects and so on.

The NEXT and BACK buttons move you through the different sprites, while you can copy and re-use a design by selecting it with PICK, moving to another number and putting it down with DROP. And there's an ABORT button for when you've made a pig's ear of the sprite you were doing ...

The sprite you're working on is shown actual size, complete with its mask and what they look like together. You can set the editing colours too to see how the sprite will look in your different rooms.

The MASK button automatically creates a sprite mask for you. But it's possible to edit the mask directly just like you can the actual sprite. So there's a possibility of some weird effects ...

To use the various commands, simply move the arrow cursor over the relevant 'button' and hit FIRE.

The editor is much like any other — except you draw your sprites in 3D perspective. Two options help a lot — BASE gives you a perspective outline to follow while FLIP mirrors the sprite to give you a left- and right-going version. Even so, the actual drawing part is a bit tricky to use ...

2 3D Room Designer

Put your graphics into the 3D Room Designer. This lets you create your game's map and fill it with the objects you designed in the Graphics Editor.

The left-hand indicator is your position in the room while the right hand one controls your height. Very useful when you're working on a crowded screen and can't quite see where you're at. And you can turn all the indicators off if the screen gets too cluttered ...

• Ultimate-style, everything in a room is the same colour. But you can choose the colour for each of your rooms — guess how? You just press one of the colour keys ...

The top bar indicates how much memory's left — unfortunately, there's a limit to the number of objects you can have in a room as well so you can't go too crazy ...

This is the way to build games — simply guide the object you're working on round with the joystick (hold FIRE down and pull back/push forward to go up and down). Press N and M to select objects, ENTER to place one and SPACE to remove one. When you're done in one room, just drive through the appropriate door and get on with the next ... Brilliant!

These two grids show your position in the map. You can use up to 16x16 rooms and only a quarter of them fit on this display at once. Now, that's an awful lot of rooms ...

3 Play The Game

Finally, load 3D Adventure Builder and load up your sprite and room data. Your game is ready to play, with nice chunky graphics and dinky sound.

Many eons ago, an advanced technologically oriented civilization was forced to evacuate the Earth prior to the Ice Age. Now, these Xevious people are returning to reclaim their heritage through conquest.

From the controls of your Solvalu super spacecraft, you must defend the Earth from takeover by the Xevious invaders!

Flying a search and destroy mission, you will cruise over the scrolling landscape, bombing Xevious ground entrenchments and zapping the air targets that come into range. Easy. But now look out for the flying mirrors — impossible to destroy; a collision will spell certain death!

In the event of your surviving wave after wave of enemy onslaught you will encounter the controlling force of the Xevious offensive; the Andor Genesis Mother Ship! This is your goal. A direct hit to her central reactor will disable her, but do not be lulled into a false sense of security. Xevious forces will soon re-appear to renew their attacks with increased determination!

WIN A SIGNED ORIGINAL CARTOON
AND THIRTY COPIES OF ANTIRIAD.

t's 1986 — welcome to a world on the brink of collapse. Oops, sorry, misread that. It's 2086. So you can stop panicking. You've still got another hundred years before the bomb goes up. That's if you can believe the storyline of Palace Software's new game, Antiraid.

BOOTHOOMMM

And that, in case you're wondering, is the sound of a nuclear explosion. Well it is according to the comic book that accompanies the game and tells the story that leads up to it. Not that many people will be around to hear it. We'll all have popped our clogs long before that bit.

Only a few will survive the holocaust. Fewer still, the nuclear winter that follows it. But they are the founders of a new race, strong, hardy stock (sort of space-age Bisto kids) who have learned to lead peaceful lives. Until . . .

WHOOOOOMPH!

Alien invaders. The attack is swift and devastating. And the survivors are set to work as slaves.

All in all, Earth is having a run of pretty bad luck. Only one man can step in and stop it. Tal. (That's right it was a Tal order.) But even the greatest warrior the world has ever seen would have problems without a legendary Anti-Rad suit — the sacred armour of Antiriad . . .

Unfortunately, we haven't got a suit of armour to offer you. For starters they're not going to be made for another hundred years and anyway our YS fashion expert tells us that armour is definitely out this season. So passé. Instead, Palace is offering the original artwork of the cartoon on this page, framed and signed by the artist Dan Malone and a copy of the game to the first entry out of the Ed's bin liner — and very lovely he looks in it too. The thirty runners-up will all receive a copy of Antiradi, the game. All you have to do is peruse the two versions of the cartoon and spot the differences between them. Put a ring round each one you find and then fill in the coupon. Then rip out the page (or make a photocopy) and send the lot to The Armour Real Dillo Compo, YS, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. Oh, and don't forget to put the number of differences you spotted on the back of your envelope.

ANTIRIAD RULES

Employees of Sports Illustrated or personages from the Palace aren't allowed to enter the compo — except by royal dispensation and the Ed won't grant it.

All entries must arrive at Castle Rathbone by the last day of November, this year of grace 1986.

You'll need more than an Anti-Rad Suit if you want to tackle the Ed about the compo 'cos he won't enter into any correspondence about it.

BLACK HAWK

Piloting skills are not enough! You need courage and a cool head to guide Black Hawk over enemy territory on the world's deadliest mission. Defend your jet against barrages of missiles and dodge the rocket launchers to reach the ultimate goal – the airfield. Do you have what it takes? Only the cool headed survive in this game of high stakes and fast reactions.

Black Hawk is a superb simulation with over 30 levels of play. Your on-board computer allows you to view positions from the attack or defence – with automatic adjustment according to the rate of incoming missiles. This must be the ultimate in action/strategy play. Commodore 64 and Spectrum 48K. Sparkle rating *****

Also from Sparklers: Spectrum 48K Stagecoach, Danger Mouse in Double Trouble, Danger Mouse Making Whoopee, Time Wreck, Kidnap, Commodore 64 Mad Doctor, White Viper, Danger Mouse in Double Trouble, Atari Soccer, Submarine Commander, Desmond's Dungeon.

SNODGITS

Test your sleuthing skills against world famous detectives. They're all there hunting the slippery Snodgits – dreadful little creatures who wreak havoc in Lord and Lady Snodger's snobsville mansion. A must for all bright sparks. Amstrad CPC-464, Spectrum 48K. NOW ON COMMODORE 64. Sparkle rating *****

RIVER RESCUE

This race against time depends entirely on your skills as a navigator and pilot. But you are not without help. As the owner of the fastest power boat in the region you can rely on your boat to steer you to the rescue of the trapped scientists. But look out for crocs, rocks and mine-dropping rivals. Spectrum 48K. Sparkle rating *****

TANK COMMANDER

Let battle commence! The outcome of the war is in your hands. Your task is to destroy enemy ammunition and supplies – from behind their lines. Not easy, as the terrain is rough and littered with swamps and minefields. You are also on your own and vulnerable to aerial attack at any moment! Just the thing for wet Sundays. Atari. Sparkle rating *****

Tower of Evil

Have you ever fought a Baphomet? Well, they are no pushover. They guard where the Princess is imprisoned and have some equally horrendous friends. Poor old Princess Diana – locked away in the clutches of the Necromancer. You are her only hope. Commodore 16. NOW ON SPECTRUM 48K. Sparkle rating *****

A GREAT NEW OCEAN/IMAGINE
GAME — FREE
WHEN YOU
SUBSCRIBE TO YS!

A free Ocean/Imagine game? For absolutely no ackers? Just by taking out a year's subscription to my favourite magazine? Okay, where's the catch?

No catch

A year's subscription to Your Sinclair in the UK normally costs £15. It still costs £15. Which is an overall increase of 0%.

And you'll still be able to read all of the latest game reviews and previews, Hack Free Zones, Hacking Aways, Frontlines, Maps, Megagame features, Adventures, Task Forces, T'zer's columns (They're a bit like Cleopatra's Needles! Ed), Hard Facts, Backlashes and everything else that makes YS, YS. All of which will come plopping through your letterbox without you having to lift so much as your little pinky.

Only one thing's different. As well as 12 issues of YS, you'll also receive the game of your choice from the four titles shown here — absolutely free!

And these aren't just any old games. These are Ocean/Imagine games, each worth £7.95. So, you can easily work out just how little your subscription to YS is costing you in real terms. Much less than you'd pay in the shops — without all the hassle.

And these games are far from old. At the time of writing, they're so new that they haven't yet hit the shops. Make sure you're one of the first to play them by taking us up on our offer.

So, have we finally gone stark raving bonkers?

Course not. We've always been stark raving bonkers! Now we're stark raving generous as well.

PICK ANY ONE. EACH WORTH
£7.95. YOURS FOR FREE!

They Sold A Million 3
Blockbuster compilation with Rambo, Kung-Fu Master, Fighter Pilot and Ghostbusters.

Highlander There can only be one. Now you can have one too! Or even free!

Mag Max Build a robot to fight the enemy in the latest coin-op classic conversion.

Galvan All action coin-op classic conversion. A mission you can never complete?

SWORDS & SORCERY II

First we brought you Swords & Sorcery – we called it the ultimate in graphic adventures and everyone agreed with us. CRASH awarded it Game Concept of the Year 1985 and called it "an outstanding addition to the games playing world". COMPUTER & VIDEO GAMES gave it Game of the Month and described it as "the ultimate computer simulation". Well now we've gone one better – Swords & Sorcery II Heroquest takes you on a mystical journey never imagined possible within the confines of a home computer.

Using an improved MIDAS system, we've expanded the playing area, improved the graphics and added so many features that we think the game plays better than anything else on the market – we know you're going to agree.

Additionally Swords & Sorcery owners can load their player characters into Swords & Sorcery II Heroquest and continue their quests or attempt the eight new ones we've set.

Swords & Sorcery II Heroquest is NEW and is quite simply the ONLY role playing graphic arcade adventure available.

8 quests to be completed before "The final solution".
At least 250 named fully animated opponents – you must get to know their individual characteristics.
Stunning 3D graphic animation.
A unique fully interactive adventure language using the latest in artificial intelligence techniques.
Real time interactive conflict sequences – talk to your opponent, attack them, flee them and even confuse them.
Develop your own unique player characters – specialize in magic, swordplay, thieving etc etc.
Fully menu controlled allowing almost limitless realism of action.
Immense playing area – more than twice the size of Swords & Sorcery I.

HEROQUEST YOU WON'T BELIEVE YOUR EYES !

Superb new conversation system – you must pass yourself off as a guard, recruit rebels and finally overthrow the system – your powers of speech are vital. Transfer your character to other MIDAS adventures.

BACK LASH

What's the most embarrassing thing that can ever happen to you?

Wandering around with your flies undone? No problem? Do that all the time do you? Okay, s'pose you then get home and discover you forgot to put your underpants on? Bet you looked cool down the disco.

Or taking someone out for the first time, trembling on that first kiss. And they say, "Do you always have sardines for tea?"

Getting your head caught in your bicycle chain and being rescued by three fire engines and the flying squad?

Not being able to get off the loo. And then remembering why you kept telling yourself not to carry SooperGoo in your back pocket?

Nah, small fry. Peanuts. Just those little things in life that are meant to make you look foolish. Someone like you could handle any of those without batting an eyelid.

No, the worse one is a lot, lot worse. It's meeting up with your mates and boasting about your high scores. And then someone says to you...

"Alright, so what's your score on..."

And you haven't even heard of it.

In the warmth of its parka hood, the brain becomes enlarged.

"How do you get past the..."

"In which game?", you say. And all your mates already know.

It's humiliating with a capital HUUU. If you don't believe it, answer a few of these....

"What do you think of Short Circuit?"

"How do you do GEEZA-HAND IN Riptoff?"

"What's your high score in Bubble Trouble?"

Score one or more;

Congratulations, you're well cool and I's a-preaching to the converted. None or less; what a plonker!

All three are games that have been brought to you courtesy of the rag you're now reading. Oh no... oh yes... they're readers' programs. Available to you on the Digi'Tape express or the Type-It-Yourself slow train.

"No wonder I haven't heard of them", you can say.

"Readers' programs never work", you can say. "They're awful even if they do", you can say. "They're a by-product of

Then comes the day. Suddenly, without warning, it sheds its parka for good. A mutation has happened.

No, they don't come out bright, witty, handsome hunks that would make A-Ha look like a string of cold sausages. Well, not always.

They just turn into incredibly good programmers. Self-taught yet brilliant. Completely fresh yet with a wisdom far older than their age.

Their programs prove it. They're not just ready to take on the Spectrum. Not just ready to become the next deranged trainspotters", you can say.

It just isn't on to knock trainspotters anymore.

But be careful if you do... that's a lot of words to eat when you finally admit you're wrong.

This isn't a memorial to the unknown trainspotter. It's a discovery of a whole new kind of trainspotter, growing in your very midst. An entirely new breed.

As the completely gah-gah professor in a film about killer toilet rolls would say, "But you don't understand. It's a whole new strain".

Mutant Trainspotters!

Nobody knows where they came from. No-one has ever seen a birth. But they're there. You can only speculate how....

It starts with an ordinary trainspotter. Finicky. Spotty. Wholly immersed in its Speccy without ever getting anything finished.

Then it goes into a cocoon, generation of professional games programmers.

They're ready to take on any computer. Driving it to its limits. Living on the very edge of the possible. Moving between the fantasy of their programs and the reality of their world with equal ease.

And what they can do with a Spectrum means that they are far more powerful beings when they have far more powerful computers.

It just isn't on to knock trainspotters anymore. You might be a games player and not know a word of Basic, let alone a byte of machine code. You might be the hottest thing ever to break a Quickshot in two. Or a battle-scarred adventurer who's crossed more miles and made more maps than you care to remember.

But it's the trainspotters and the mutos you've got to look up to.

Because when they move on to program commercial games, for the Speccy or some machine you may own ten years from now, they'll do it better than anyone.

Which means that they'll create the games of the future. Games better than those you've already played and couldn't have imagined if you'd tried. Games that will make you proud you own, or once owned, a Spectrum.

There isn't anybody, anywhere who's as good as one of the new mutant trainspotters. It's best to be on their side.

After all, revenge is sweet.
