GARY LINEKER'S SUPERSTAR SOCCER

Take the brain teasing demands of football management, the mysterious qualities of team coach and add the explosive talents of a star striking centre forward and you've got Superstar Soccer - an original and innovative approach to the game of football that's every bit as breathtaking, every bit as exciting as Gary Lineker, England's premier striker.

ALTERNATIVE WORLD GAMES

Why be serious when there's so much fun in taking an alternative view on things. Represent the country of your choice in such events as Sack Racing, Log Flogging, Running up wall's, Pole climbing and Boot Throwing. This ingenious but hilarious spoof will have you in stitches, not to mention Rivers, Sacks, Piles of sand.....come to think of it. It may get serious after all.

COMPENDIUM

Wacky, Wacky, Wacky is the best way to describe this adaption of the traditional board games compendium. Your hosts are the Winks, father Tiddly Wink and his wife, Mavis Wink. Up to four players can compete by taking the role of either one of the Wink children, the baby or the Wink dog. Play Snakes and Ladders where real snakes wriggle across the board, or the pub game where a rather drunk Tiddly Wink flips his beer glasses in the air for the rest of his long suffering family to catch! Old favourites Ludo and Bingo are not forgotten in this hilarious game for one to four players.

BLOOD VALLEY

Archvult the hideous and mighty leader of the Firedrake has decreed that you must be hunted down like an animal and brought to sentence. Your only chance of survival is to escape the valley. Do you have the will and resourcefulness to succeed not only against your opponent but the creatures and eerie beings of the fantasy world of Orb as well. Based on the Duellmaster series of fantasy books by Mark Smith and Jamie Thompson, authors of The Way of the Tiger.

Happy Birthday to us!

BATTY CHALLENGE — THE RESULT!

Aaaarggh! And we thought it was hard! But no, YS readers were up to the challenge, and hundreds of you knocked off the game almost before the mag was out in the shops. First prize (of ten recent games) goes to D Gardiner of Coulsdon, whose letter to us explaining that 1) there are 15 levels in all, and 2) the last one spells out the word 'ELITE' in bricks, arrived on the morning of September 8th. That's impressive. Second, on Sept 9th, was Steven Cleminson of Middleton in Manchester, and third, a day later, was Paul Stephenson of Roundhay in Leeds. We'll be sending these two a consolation prize of five games each, but well done all three of you (not to mention the millions whose entries arrived on the 11th). Oh and please — no more entries!

New from Incentive, presumably to bridge the gap before Driller hits the streets, comes the next in the series of Medallion Adventures, Karyssia Queen Of Diamonds. This GACed advent is in the shops now, and looks to be priced at £7.95.

Wossis then? A hand grenade on the desk! Quick! Everybody out before it... what? It's a joystick? You're kidding! The fastest and most precise joystick ever made? Well, that remains to be seen, but it's certainly the wackiest. And at £19.95 it's a ring pullin' bargain!

The YS Crossword No 2,454 by P. Biancheri

Yes, and what better way to while away those nights when the wind's a-howling at the windaes, than to plonk yourself by the fire an' do a nice, complicated crossword... Hey, come back!

You spin me right round, baby, right round, like a record, baby, right round round round. Yes, it's true! True! Cheetah has reinvented the joystick, with its new Cheetah 125 Special. It has a unique swivel action, where you twist the joystick to give an extra bit of control to any game you play. All the major software houses are working on games to take advantage of this new technique, so watch out for the Special, priced at only £12.99! Now there's a twist!

Trainspotters Through History A series in conversation with the World's Greatest Ever Trainspotters

9: Reserve Major "Wild Bill" Scaley

"What's that, bud? A what? Trainspotter? What's one o'those, pal? A person who writes down every train number he sees? Yeah, I guess I've done that. And they wear parkas? Hmm. Ah, Lady Penelope's butler, right? No? A coat? Oh, you mean like Army surplus stuff. Oh sure, I got lot's o'that, buddy. Okay, what else? They spend all their time in front of computers. Well, I guess I do that too. Actually, I'm more of a planespotter. I've got bits of my planes spotted all over the USA. Not that I crash a lot, I just make some pretty firm landings, that's all. What's that? You'd like to get out of my plane now? But we're a couple of thousand feet up... no that's not a parachute... hey, buddy (whoosh) it's my lunch! Never mind. Come back real soon when you get out of hospital. Now you've found your way, don't y'all be strangers, y'hear?"

• It seems Ocean are well on the way to having all their new releases on the new +3 disc format, and rumours of Rainbird adventures Level 9 and Magnetic Scrolls going into disc on the Speccy are rife. But more importantly, budget kings Mastertronic are making a strong commitment to the +3 with three new compilations on disc: +3 Sports, with Strike, Bump Set Spike and Speed King 2, an amazing +3 Arcade containing Motos, Bosconian and Angle Ball and finally +3 Hits with Feud, Amaurote and Hyperbow 1. The most amazing bit is these games will be available for just £9.99!

• It's musical chairs in the software industry, it appears, with Durell being unceremoniously swallowed by Elite, and Hewson handing over its marketing to Gremlin Graphics, and two of its top programmers to Firebird, namely Steve Turner and Andrew Braybrook.

• Microprose and Cascade Games have locked horns over their releases Pirates (Microprose) and Pirates Of The Barbary Coast (Cascade). The games are reputed to be not that similar, but goodness, the advertising pictures use the same typefaces and similar artwork. It's easy to mistake them for the same "first pirate simulation", and we very nearly did. But Cascade state that they have an "answer for each and every allegation made by Microprose, and a writ will be issued in the near future". The case continues.

• Virgin Games have announced three blockbusting new licences for the Spectrum: Scraples (see Future Shocks), Action Force and games based on the Armada Books' role playing gamebooks, Duel Master, written by the originators of the Way Of The Tiger gamebooks, Jamie Thomson and Mark Smith. All should be out pre-Santa.

• Hello, what's this? Yes, another new company masterminded by ex-Beyond, ex-Starlight boss Francis Lee (Always preferred Mike Summerbee meself - Fitba! Ed). "More than just a software label, Destiny will be producing a complete entertainment package." (In other words, it's a software label.) Titles include Seven Minutes To Midnight, Veri (from Cybadyne, who did Xecutor), King (by those ladies of St Brides) and Blue Back from Mike Singleton!

• Tons of titles from Ocean, including follow-ups to Match Day (wittily titled Match Day II), Army Moves (it's called Navy Moves this time around and places you in a submarine) and Athena (the sequel's otherwise known as Psycho Soldier). There's also the game of the fillum Robocop, which, as Bazzo Norman could tell you, has been a massive hyperhit in the US of A, and comes over here very soon. Watch out for reviews of both game and fillum in YS!

SCRUPLES®!

Yes, you remember Scraples®, don't you? That trendy board game with questions like: "You are told by your girlfriend that she is actually a fat, bearded Labour candidate called Dave. Do you vote for her?" and stuff like that. Well, if you win this super YS microcompo, you too can whip it out at parties (Oo-er! Ed) and argue with your best friends. The three lucky first prize winners get a copy of the fab board game, while another 10 runners up get a copy of Scraples® the computer game, and we really can't say fairer than that! All you've got to do is answer this simple Scraples question: Your nose suddenly turns into a giant carrot. Would you enter yourself for the Chelsea Flower Show?

a) Yes b) No c) Perhaps, but only if there was money in it.

Send your entries to: The I Haven't Got Any Scraples So Send Me One Compo, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London, W1P 1DE.

Gremlin's Ian Stewart and stand-up Konix Wyn Holloway (seen here in petulant mood enjoying a quiet waggle together at the PCW Show) have just signed a deal which means that if you buy a Konix Speed King joystick now, you get it for £11.99 (a whole pound off!) plus a copy of Gremlin's Thing Bounces Back. Let's turn the sound up and listen in on what they're saying.

"I must say, Wyn, this feels nice."

"I agree, Ian, but put that hospitality girl down and tell me what you think of the joystick..."
Oo-er!

You want previews? Then plug back your lugholes, stitch back your eyelids and settle down with a nice cup of Ovaltine, 'cos we've got previews that'll rip out your intestines and sell them to a well known hamburger chain...! Read on, Macduff.

RAMPAGE

OF THE MONTH

Okay, funsters, we've got a real tough 'nana here, 'cos Activision's latest licence tie-up'll drive all living primates up the wall with excitement. You'll no doubt remember the Bally Midway game on which it's based — a rampaging climbabout that has you controlling three large hairy chaps who look not unlike King Kong, Godzilla and Wolfman, but almost certainly aren't, for pressing copyright reasons. This being a computer game though, your three hirsute chums don't just stop at New York, good Lord no. After munching the Big Apple, they move on to blow away Chicago and grow enormous moustaches in San Francisco, before moving on to another 82 cities. 82!! Are there 82 cities? Well, enough of this monkeying about, 'cos from the demo we've seen, Rampage looks reet chimpion. In fact before you go ape at these pitiful puns, we'd better finish by saying "It's gorilliant!" Oh, and £9.99.

"Zis could be ze end of zivilisation as ve know it..." Your three pals bear a striking resemblance to those favourite movie monsters, Godzilla (goo-rarr!), King Kong (ahh-ee-ahhh!), and Wolfman (growl!), although why Wolfman is three storeys high is anybody's guess.

"Not quite, Professor..." The buildings, in most cases skyscrapers, are one of the main scoring points of the game. To score big, you have to nip up the side of the buildings and shake the beggars down. This is a particularly funny effect, and one of the best graphics in the game.

Climbing up buildings is what monsters do. Dunno why, but the fact remains. If you're a waiter in a fish restaurant, you serve fish and put your thumb in the soup. If you're a magazine editor, you beat writers around the ears with rolled up newspapers (Watch it! Ed) But if you're a movie monster, you climb up buildings, and break them down. Obvious, really.

If you didn't already have enough to do, you've got to try and rampage around the city with all these blimmin' choppers buzzing around your head. The helicopters circle the area, occasionally divebombing the monsters under your control and firing little black pixels at you. Yowch! I nearly dropped Fay Wray there, pack it up!

OUTCAST

More wizard wheezer, as the kindly local wiz finds himself kicked out of his village by the Forces of Evil (sounds like a good name for a pub, dunnit?). Stripped of all his powers, he's transformed into a hideous creature, scarcely human at all — oh, all right, it's the Ex-Ed. Wandering around the wastelands, he finds his powers begin to return, but what about his spells? Well, this is an arcade-adventure, so you'll hardly be surprised to find out that, by an astonishing coincidence, they have all been scattered around the place for the wiz to pick up. Now there's a thing. We've had a swift butchers of this newie from CRL, and there'll be a full review next month. But if you can't wait until then, Outcast is out now, at £8.95.

ADDICTABALL

"Doctor, doctor, I can't give it up. I can't cope anymore... I think I'm hooked." This game could be carrying a Government Health Warning when it comes out, it's so addictive. It's a space arcade game with bricks, bats and balls which you use to destroy scenery, all the while guarding your barrier and fighting off hordes of those small wibbly crawly things which seem to infest these pages from time to time. (Pardon? Phil) It will be out in October for £6.95. Alligata reckons you need razor sharp reflexes, intelligence and a sense of humour, so don't cut yourself or laugh your head off. (Bonk!)

FUTURE SHOCKS

DARK SCEPTRE

Lawdy lawdy, Mike Singleton's actually finished a game! Dark Sceptre's been on the Firebird stocks for, ooh, about 8 billion years, give or take a millennium, and it could be said to have joined Star Trek - The Wrath Of Maughan on that company's Legendary No Shows List. But suddenly, like a hungry ferret, in it whooshes and onto the new release desk, complete, finished and raring to go. Well you could have knocked us down with a 210 bus (the driver tried last night). We'll be reviewing it in ludicrous detail for you next month, but for the time being suck on this: 64 characters, 4000 possible locations, loads of commands and options available to the player and a current best performance of 16 game days to complete the blighter. Hard? It's rigid. It'll cost £7.95, and should be out this month...

DEFLEKTOR

Yup, it's another game with a 'K' where you least expect it. Deflektor's just one of Gremlin's eight billion releases for the autumn, a weird and wonderful puzzle which asks you to bounce your laser beam off a series of mirrors and guide it carefully to the home receiver. This needs an awful lot of brain work, sussing out the angles of the mirrors and wiping out your slide rule (oo-er). There are also walls to bounce off and lenses that deflect the beam. It all looks pretty tricky, and it should keep you busy — there are 60 levels to mess about with! Cool! Out at the beginning of December, Deflektor will cost you a penny under eight quid.

PHM PEGASUS

Wot? Well, according to Electronic Arts, whose whizzy new simulation this is, it stands for Patrol Hydrofoil Missilecraft Simulation. Well, quite. You may not have heard much of Electronic Arts — it's an American company, one of the biggest games producers over there, and now trying to edge into Yoorp (that's over here). And that includes one or two games for the UK's fave home computer, starting with this here PHM thingy. It's the latest bit of all right from Lucasfilm, a full-blooded naval simulation which puts you in charge of Pegasus, a hydrofoil that whiffles around the seas sinking things. Sounds a gas, eh? It's out in the winter, but there's no news of price as yet.

Well, personally speaking, of course, this is what we, incredibly brainy people call a piece of urinary emission. There being no-one in the office with an IQ much under 249012856000, we find it all desperately peasy, and fully expect to finish this new CRL zapper in 0.00000001 second, if not sooner. It's the sort of game with instructions that ask you "Is your humanity just the function of a random number generator?" Heavy! It's out soon, costs £8.95, takes up to four players, has "advanced American artificial intelligence techniques incorporated in computer adversaries" and comes in a nice plastic box. Yoho!

•PREVIEW•PREVIEW•PREVIEW• FUTURE SHOCKS

THUNDERCATS

Elite finally wakes up after its year off (unless you count Battleships, which we certainly did — more fool us!) with this thundering good thunk 'n' thwack fantasy arcade game, which came in too late to get a proper review. Still, here's a game that finally does something for the poor old 128 — okay, so it takes a week to load, but for your trouble you'll get loads of fizzy digitised pics and a great Rob Hubbard soundtrack. And the good news is that it'll be on the +3 as well. So what's it all about? Well, during a raid by the Moleman, agents of the evil Mumm-Ra have entered the Cat's Lair and stolen the eye of Thundera, and... ah, what the hell, it's a scrolling fighting game, with great sound effects and sparkling graphics. Out this month at £7.95.

MASK II

Well blow us down! It took us long enough to load up the first MASK, and before you can say Matt Trakker™, here's the next instalment of One Cartoon's Heroic Attempt To Take Over The World. From this angle the game looks not unlike Army Moves, and like the Imagine epic, it's a game of two halves, Brian. First you have to choose your team and vehicles, then there are the four missions to complete. Sounds pretty cerebral to us, but Gremlin assures us that there's loads of violence too — hooray! It should be out about now, at £7.99.

A QUESTION OF SCRUPLES

If you haven't already, go and enter our spiffy Frontlines compo — you could win the board game itself or one of ten computer versions of the thang. 'Cos Leisure Genius is adding to its board game roster this autumn with a Speccy version of the hippest game on two legs, the only after-dinner entertainment that's guaranteed to end in bloodshed. The price is £9.95, the release date is now-ish, and your nearest hospital's phone number is... hoy! stop that! That vase was a present from my Auntie! CRASH! OOF! WOMPFF!

GAMES COMPENDIUM

Weird city here, bazos. Games Compendium (another from Gremlin's compendious schedule of releases) threatens to be what you might describe as terminally wacky. Is this a good thing or not? Well, moving right along now, we read that GC is hosted by the Wink family, father Tiddy and his wife Mavis. Four players can compete by playing either one of the little Winks, the baby or the Wink dog. Fortunately all the dull old compendium games — ludo, snakes & ladders, bingo (bingo?) — have been jollied up, so from what we see you'd have to be a complete Winker not to go for it. Price: £7.99. Availability: Er, now-ish.

STAR WARS

A long, long time ago in a software company far, far away — well, it was Domark actually, and they were in a bank far, far away depositing the vast piles of MONEY they made on The Living Daylights (ptuill) — things suddenly got a bit wriggly when an enormous masked chap in a black cape dropped in one day.

"Several transmissions were beamed to this ship by rebel spies. I want to know what happened to the plans they sent you."

"Wot?" said Dom and Mark, straightening out their company bowties.

"She may yet be of some use to us".

"Quick, call 999."

"I have you now." He then sliced through the Domarksters with his light sabre. Pity really, 'cos up until then they'd been planning to release Star Wars — The arcade game on the Speccy. It was going to cost £9.95 and appear this month, and from the preview glance we got, it was going to be fab. Still, there you are.

PROFESSIONAL SKI SIMULATOR

Bombabomb, da da da, da da dadadada da, bombabomb, da da da, da da dadada da, and welcome to Ski Sunday. We're here in Ausgehimmmlergesellschaftoberstürmbannführer in the Austrian Alps, with Heinrich Ribbentrop passing the Grand Tortoise Turn on the downhill course on Leg 54 of the 1987/1988 season. And he's crashed!!!! Looks nasty... I think I can just make out his leg there on the left... and his arm there on the right... but now it's plucky Adrian Bim, the British champion, and so far he's had a very successful season, turning up for every race so far. And after his 87th place last week at the Italian resort of Bookimdanno, this could be the most successful season for the UK since Adrian's older brother, Sebastian Bim, edged into the Top 50 in the Trans-African Cross Country Ski Championship in 1975. Not that this has a lot to do with Code Masters' latest, Professional Ski Simulator, which is out now at £1.99. And here's the big Swede Bengt Corkscrew passing the Aardvark Turn at 80 mph...

3 GAME MAKER

Go on, you've heard this one before. It's the way we tell 'em. But seriously, missis, CRL's long awaited (i.e. much delayed) Build-Your-Own-Knightmare-Game utility has finally appeared — even to the extent that we've got one here in front of us as we write (if you get our drift). The magic Snouty will be frootling around in its underparts in the next issue, but for now here's a brisk screenshot just to show you what it's all about. The package includes a graphic designer and a rooms/map generator, all on two whizzy tapes and for just £8.95! Good show, wot?

... AND NEXT MONTH

Help! Help! I've been stuck in this small box in the bottom right hand corner and I've got terrible claustrophobia! These strange people keep plunging red hot poker into my tenderest particles and insisting I tell you about the amazing games they hope to have next month, like Frankenstein (CRL), Nigel Mansell's Grand Prix (Martech), Where Time Stood Still (Ocean) and Starship (Palace), not to mention Rygar and 720° from US Gold, but I won't give in, not even if they... no... no... not the... no... don't... AAAAAARRRRRRGGGHHHH!

WRITE TO THE ED, YS, 14 RATHBONE PLACE, LONDON W1P 1DE

Star letter winners receive their three fave games! All letters win a YS badge.

EAR BENDER

I am writing to thank you for putting a variety of cheese, fish and other green articles in your pages, upon my request in a previous letter. I take back my accusations that the YS team are a very odd selection of staff, and go further to praise you on the latest game on the front cover. Batty is a great game, one which I'd have thought would have sold as a game on the streets as it's so professional. Personally I have got to level five and then got totally stuck.

Anyway, enough of this wittering on, as it's time to go to the medical centre to have my ears surgically removed.

Alan "I can't hear anything because I have just had my ears surgically removed"
Lowles
Barnard Castle, Co Durham

I agree Batty is brilliant and could easily have sold as a full price game in the shops. Hope you like this month's game, Play For Your Life as much! Ed

PINK DIVINITY

I was feeding my latest copy of YS to my gerbil today, when he pointed out Mark Owen's letter which claimed that you are really Mary Smith from EastEnders. However, my gerbil told me this is totally wrong. He says you are really Magenta de Vine (scrummy yummy) from Network 7. Here's the proof:

a) You look like her (in gerbilvision at least).
b) If you take the letters t, e, a, m, a and g (which is your mag in gerbil-ese), plus of course n, and you can spell 'Magenta'. Just add a pinch of salt and what my gerbil thinks of you, and you get 'Magenta de Vine'! Beat that!

Alan Singfield (and gerbil)
St Helen's, Merseyside

You've only got to look at two pictures of us to see I look nothing like Magenta and the connection between our names is pretty spurious to say the least! By the same token you could say I looked like Marjorie Proops. 'Cos if you take five letters from her name... m, a, r, e, s and add the letters t, e, u, g, h, n and two a's, you get my name, Teresa Maughan. Blimey it's a strange old world. Ed

Teresa Maughan

Magenta de Vine

UNDER PARR

I'm writing to express my concern about the review of F-15 Strike Eagle in the August issue. In my opinion F-15 is a very accurate conversion. I agree the graphics aren't spectacular, but the simulation is very realistic.

The reviewer writes "Gameplay is slow, and several times I found myself diving towards the ground, unable to pull up." This is probably because he didn't read the manual and learn how to control the aircraft. The game is certainly not slow, unless you pay no attention to the instruments and don't try completing any of the missions. There are plenty of things to do — make sure you don't nosedive is one of them.

If the reviewer finds himself in a steep dive, then I suggest he goes to 55 percent power, activates speed brakes and pulls back and left (or right) on the joystick. When the aircraft comes out of its 'gross height excursion' (nose dive) then full power should be applied and the plane will level out.

I certainly think F-15 should have been 8 or 9 overall. Apart from that, I agree with many of your reviews.

Ben Parr
Gerrards Cross, Bucks
PS Program Pitstop is an excellent idea. Well done.

Every reviewer can only express his or her own opinion so inevitably there will be times when somebody doesn't agree. I take your point about F-15 and I'm glad you like it. We do try our best to give every game a fair review but if you don't agree by all means write to tell us. Marcus

ON THE Y FRONT

Having practically finished reading your great magazine, I came to YS Superstore. Fancy that T-shirt with the YS logo splashed over the front, I thought to myself. But where were the matching pair of boxer shorts? Surely it would be a good idea to make some — bet they'd be a real hit. And before the insults begin, I should make it clear that I don't undress in laundrettes. But with the T-shirt and boxers from YS I'd be giving you some good, free advertising.

One more thing: as I patented the idea (would 'thought of' be better?), how about a free pair? I'll send off for the T-shirt myself, straight away, when I find the money.

David Brownhill
Cannock, Staffs

It's funny you should mention boxer shorts (well, I've always found them amusing) but I've been thinking about them for a while now — making some Your Sinclair ones I mean. What does everyone else reckon — would you be seen dead in a pair? And just to set the ball rolling, check out our top ten boxer short patterns in Street Life. Ed

TAKE STOCK

Please Say if you are not Perfectly Satisfied with my Pleasant Script which is Poinstakingly Scribbled on Personal Stationery. People Say I'm Perfectly Sensible but I'm Pretty Sick of Phil South using my initials on his letters.
Phillip Stocks
Watford, Herts

Perhaps Signing his Personal Scribbles Phil South is Purely Senseless but Proving Such a Piddling Sin Puts Strain on Peabraind Staff and makes Phil Seem like Priaprismic Sloth. In other words it's just a coincidence and Phil says he's sorry. Ed

DOODLEBUGS

This month's cartoon was drawn by Glen O'Hara from Shepperton, Middlesex. Good innit? (No! Ed)

◀ T'ZER

Keep on doodling — it's a doddle! Send your cartoons to Doodlebugs, YS, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. There's a prize of a new game for each cartoon printed.

WORRA BERK — MAN

After months of reading your mag I have come to the conclusion that one reviewer stands way above the rest. He is Marcus Berkman. If he gives a game nine out of ten, buy it! His review of Into The Eagle's Nest started this run of great reviews: Arkanoid, Head Over Heels, Wolfan and Hydrofool to name but a few of them. One review has ruined his great reputation, the review of The Living Daylights. Okay the graphics aren't very good but only because of the colour clash. The game is one of the most addictive I've played. So keep up the good reviews.

Brian Sharp
Macclesfield, Cheshire

How did you know Marcus was seven foot five inches tall? Ed

POSTMAN PRAT

Pheargh gargle argh rumble grumble ick nearh leargh ach ugh groan hurh slurp ack tromble yeargh sign.

The Heavy Breather
A Phone Box in Ludlow
PS Sorry I couldn't phone as I didn't have a 10p.

You don't fool me. I know who you are. Only someone who works for British Telecom wouldn't have 10p to make a phone call so you've got to be from Firebird. But I won't embarrass you, Tom Watson, by mentioning any names. Haven't you got anything better to do than write obscene letters? (Like writing obscene press releases.) Ed

SMALL PRINT

If you print this letter I'll send you a badge
Sean (B*st*rd) McEvoy
Well, thanks very much. Ed

I hope you do not mind my mistakes. I'm not an Englishman!

Please could you send me a 10 x 5 Athena poster, but put T'zer in place of the incredibly muscly lady.
Roy Pittendrigh, Morpeth
It would have to be 100 x 50 to fit T'zer in. Marcus

Is the YS team sex mad? Or is it just the readers?
Staple Flux the Grog
Wahay! Oo-erl Corl Wollopl No, just the readers! Ed

TRAINSPOTTER AWARD

FORGET ME NOT

I claim my Trainspotter Award because you forgot to publish my letter in the June issue of Your Sinclair.

Robert Wilkins
Llangunor, Carmarthen

How remiss of us. You're quite right we did forget to print your letter so you're now the proud owner of a Trainspotter Award, though we'll probably forget to send it. Ed

CLAP TRAP

I claim to be a world class Trainspotter. In the October issue I was reading Screenshots when I found in the YS Clapometer on Championship Basketball "Graphics 7, Playability 8, Value for Money 7, Addicteness 8" Addicteness! Who can't smell, I mean spell, eh? Well whoever it was, I advise them to go Back To Skool!

Scott Brennan
Whitefield, Dundee

Whoops! Well spotted we wondered when somebody would notice that. Quite good for a deliberate error doncha think? Ed

WORRA DYLAN

Here's a poem written in my native tongue, dedicated to you.

Ta an gaoth ag screadagh tri mo poll,
Gan stop, gan stad.
Ta do bhrólach cosuil le dromail mor.
Ta do chos cosuil le bad.

B'fheidir nach bhfuil tu mhaighdean,
Ach ba mhaith liom tu a leagann.
Ciontaigh me me fein,
Nuair a bhfuil tu i mo aigeann.

Roughly translated, this poem praises your beauty, and it ends in a suicide attempt because of the writer's unrequited love.

Ciontaigh O Cialla
Carryblusk, Co Cork

Cor blimey worra rhyme
'Cos it's in your native tongue
To end it all, is a crime
So to you software I will bung...
Roughly translated, this poem in my native tongue, says you're the Star Letter winner. Ed

KINDLY LEAVE THE STAGE...

This month's crap jokes come from David Marr of Blackley and Lorraine Makepiece from Thornbury. I say I say I say...

Knock knock! Who's there? Cornflakes!
Cornflakes who? I'll tell you next month 'cos it's a cereal!

DESERT ISLAND DISKS

This month's castaway, noshing on nettle roots and coconut milk, is Glen O'Hara from Shepperton in Middlesex — who by a weird coincidence, was also the funster who supplied us with that evilly accurate T'zer pic elsewhere on this page. Talented feller, huh?

Heavy On The Magick/Gargoyle
I'd have to keep me mouth clean, wouldn't I? I'd gargoyle with this! Sheer brilliance from Roy and Greg.

Knight Tyme/MAD
U lurve that sprite — strut that funky stuff yeah! Brilliant graphical adventure with cool graphics.

Stormbringer/MAD
How much is ol' David Jones paying me? Megacool (but complicated) game which I still haven't finished. Arrrgh!

Head Over Heels/Ocean
Probably the best game ever to hit the dear old Speccy (solution for Egyptus, anyone?) but I think it's biased against Heels — he always gets the bad bits!

Barbarian/Palace
Splat! Hey, look at this poster! Wayhay! The best combat game ever.

Chuckie Egg II/A 'n' F
Bear dung up against today's games, I know. But I love it as the best platform game ever — and who could survive without a JSW clone?

Daley Thompson's Supertest 128/Ocean
Give me something to look forward to, wouldn't it? I could build a multi-storey car park and an indoor sports centre while it was loading!

Nemesis The Warlock/Martech
Brill graphics and playability — a Martech winner!

What are your eight fave games? Write to Desert Island Disks and tell us. You could win a badge and three brand new games! Whoopie!

How do you circumcise a whale? Send down four skin divers!

Have you got an abysmal gag that you want the world to hear? Then send it to Kindly Leave The Stage, YS, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. There's a glistening enamel YS badge for every one printed!

BASKET CASE

I've just received the September issue of Your Sinclair, and after carefully analysing the contents page, (I don't know why I didn't just read it) I found to my complete and utter HORROR that a certain, eagerly awaited review had been mercilessly omitted. The review in question was that of Basket Master by Imagine. So where is it?

John Forth
Wisbech, Cambs

Where indeed? Unfortunately we couldn't put the review in, due to circumstances beyond our control, in other words, the game has been delayed until December and it's not our fault it wasn't in the issue as promised. Anyway if you'd read the small print you'd know we did say 'barring acts of God, like Castle Rathbone getting demolished, the Ed being run over by a No. 37 bus or Phil running out of sandwiches: Okay I'll come clean — Basket Master wasn't in the issue 'cos Phil ran out of sandwiches. Ed

GREAT BALLS OF FIRE!

Ehehehehe bruuuummm Road Blazer wow what an arcade machine. Put your foot down and watch it burn the rear wheels, zoom off and blast the cars. Try to catch the the extra weapon on the roof and drive through green balls for fuel but beware of limousines, they won't blow up. Wow for just 30p.

READ ALL ABOUT YOUR EXCLUSIVE IMAGINE GAME — IT'S A WAY OF LIFE!

PLAY FOR YOUR LIFE

We've run you ragged with Road Race, put your brain in the blender with Batty, now we're going to make you play for your life in our exclusive Imagine game, only with Your Sinclair!

ndeedy doodie! We've done it again. Another full price game on the cover of Your Sinclair, just for you. How can we continue to bring you so much entertainment? 'Cos we're completely skill, that's how! And it is complete, too, with more levels than a spiral car park and easier to fit in your front room too. None of this fledgling demo nonsense, we give you a fully fledged game that you can play for the rest of your life... if not longer. So if you're just standing in WH Smiths reading this, make like a cold cure and don't waste a second! Nip over to the cash desk and buy it, 'cos we guarantee you won't regret it. And believe us when we say that if you get any sleep in the next few weeks, you're not playing it right. It's fast, addictive and brilliant fun. Of course, the best bit about all this is this megagame won't be on sale anywhere else, so if you want to get ahead, get Play For Your Life.

As the game begins, you're faced with the empty court and four balls hovering in the corners of the room. The main tactic here is patience, waiting until the balls detach themselves from the wall and bounce towards the centre, where hopefully you'll be waiting, ready to bat it into the goal sensor.

Oh yes, and you really must watch out for Duke's (the guy who programmed PFYL and Movie) next game on the Ocean/Imagine label, probably to be called Phantom Club. Released in time for Christmas, it's a superhero game with a reported 550 screens of arcade entertainment. Remember, you heard it here first.

Okay? And that's about it. We hope you enjoy Play For Your Life, and if you get a long way into it, let's see a lot of maps, POKEs and tips for it in the YS Tipshop, eh? Good! We knew you wouldn't let us down.

Some of the higher levels feature moveable barriers and bigger balls (oo-er), plus a fancy computer controlled robot to battle against. This is when things start to get really hard, 'cos robot baby is a lot faster than you and has a lot of factory preset experience in the game. So keep on sluggin'!

HOW TO PLAY

Play For Your Life is a cross between Room Ten, Ping Pong, and Baseball. Or to put it another way — a futuristic sports simulation game, where you are a gladiatorial sportsperson in the Cube Wars game on Planet Fnung. The aim of the game is to score as many 'goals' as possible on the circular sensors in the wall high above you (and on higher levels your computer opponent's head in a plexiglass cube. You've got to hit the small superhard balls into the sensor pad 'goals' with your bat, a kind of superturbo truncheon, timing the blows so the ball goes flying into the sensor! You start in a bare room with just you and four balls to contend with, but as you move up the levels, the game gets more complex, with the addition of nets, moving metal grills, computer-driven opposing players and more and bigger balls, all wanging around in different directions.

GOT A PROBLEM?

If for some reason your tape fails to load, even if you've corrected your deck with an azimuth alignment program and screwdriver, here's what you do. Send your tape in a large, strong envelope, or better still, a big 'jiffy' bag, to Play For Your Life Return Dept., PO Box 320, London N21 2NB, and enclose a smaller envelope or bag with your address and at least 18p in stamps on it. Please don't send your game to us at the YS office, as we can't deal with it here, and this can cause delay. Overseas readers please note that the exclusive copy of Play For Your Life is available only on copies of Your Sinclair sold in the UK, and all subscription copies. So if you do live overseas, the only way to get copies of exclusive cover games and gifts is to get a subscription. Look out for news of the next giveaway game in forthcoming issues of Your Sinclair.

HINTS 'N' TIPS

YES TIPSHOP

Chomping your fave games into byte sized pieces, it's Phil South with more mounds of your hints 'n' tips.

You know, there's nothing I like better than a M&S bacon, lettuce 'n' tomato sarnie. Weeell, mebbe one thing. I'm absolutely addicted to Solomon's Key from US Gold. No, it's true, I can't leave it alone. Take my advice, go out and buy it immediately. Yes, and then you'll be able to take advantage of the brilliant Solomon's Key tips we've got in this edition of the Tipshop. Excuse me, I must just nip off for one more go. (Rattle rattle, curse, rattle rattle, rattle rattle...) Yahoo! The new hi-score from P Snout, 108,800! I done the skill! Have you got any better scores on this megabrilliant game?

Okay, down to business. There's lots to read in this month's Shop, with tips on Solomon's Key (Yes, I know you already know), Slap Fight, Deathwish III, Zynaps (map last month), Army Moves, The Living Daylights, plus many many more! There are also maps of Coconut Capers, Survivor, Quartet, the second part of Thing Bounces Back, and Wizball. Phew! Wotta mailbag! Still, not to worry, I'm sure Art Ed can fit it all in. (No I can't! Art Ed) Yes you can Pete, use a shoe horn. Okay, they're off!

Zynaps

● Andrew Males has been zipping through Zynaps, and zure enough he haz emerged dripping with tipz. Ze stage is yourz, Andy Zynaps! "Level 1 is easy. Just keep shooting the green aliens until you get the last weapon, and destroy everything in sight. Then collect the seekers (with the sights) then wait till you get to the end and hold down fire while dodging the missiles. On Level 2, it's best to stay in the top left corner and dodge those rocks and collect extra firepower, but nothing else. Shoot the white missiles as soon as possible. Once again collect the seekers and hold down fire. Boom boom! Level 3 gets a bit harder. Stay on the right, dodge the bubbles and get those pink things. Collect only extra firepower again, and hold onto it until the end of the level and shoot the ship out of the screen. The secret is to go up and down, firing all the time, dodging the bullets. It will either blow up or move off after a time. Level 4, upwards the level is different depending how many lives you have, but in general: keep firing, think ahead for which weapon to use, and get to know the layout and hope for the best!" I always do, Andy, I always do.

Jet Set Willy Helpline

● I've had so many letters about Willy lately, that I thought I'd print this note I've had from a megatipper who's prepared to take on all your problems... thereby getting them off my back. Ahhh! That's better. The lucky guy is Paul Thomlinson, and if you send him a sae, he'll send you maps, tips and POKES for the dreaded game. And let that be an end to it! Write to: Jet Set Willy Cornucopia, Paul Thomlinson, 5 The Ghyll, Ellenborough, Maryport, Cumbria, CA15 7BQ. Phew! That's a weight off my desk.

Army Moves

● Just a quickie (oo-er) about that fab Spanish doings, Army Moves, from lounge lizard James Scott. "Chello, chow are yoo? Chi espeak good eengleesh! I learn eet from a book... just a quick tip for that incredibly hard game Army Moves. It's the code to stage five, and it's 27351. Aren't I brill?" Why, yes you are, me old fruit salad. Thanx also to Martin Saunders who got it too. Chee-hars!

WIZBALL

● Jumping Jack Flash it's a map map map, it seems. Paul Adams, who sent me six maps this week has done it again. Wizball complete, and not a POKE in sight! Wowser wowser! It's very handy to have a mappington of this very hard game, even if it's just for the sake of knowing what's just beyond the screen. Brill!

ARE ALIENS

Agent X

● For this complete solution to Agent X, we have Luke Wilson and Anthony Ditchfield. I'm glad you sent me these 'cos... (Excuse me, Phil, can you hurry it up, 'cos I'll never fit it all in otherwise. Ta! Art Ed.) ...Oh, er, alright... ah... er... and here it is! (Tada!) "Level 1: Stay as far back as possible and jump only when the holes come. Level 2: Move left, when someone comes along, jump up and give them a flying kick to kill him/her/it. Even use it when you jump over carts. Level 3: If your joystick has an autofire option USE IT! Move your sight back to the middle between shots. Level 4: On this part you have to fly out to sea, pick up a bomb, plant it and fly back again. For the land part, go along at the centre of the screen. When you reach a missile, stop just before it and wait for it to explode. For the opening doors, wait till they are just wide enough for you to get through and go. Over the sea, fly as close to the bottom as possible, firing all the time. At the oil rig, change direction to turn round, and you'll fly past the rig. Land on the bomb, take it back to the beginning, land on the lab to place the bomb, and return to the rig and land. That's it!" Well done, Agent n (where n=a couple of x's). Your secret tipper's badges are on the way.

Deathwish III

● Ah yes, Truth, Justice And Splatter The Punks All Over The Sidewalk time again! It's a fab little Charlie "Shorty" Bronson tip from Simon Matthews. "The first and most important thing is to shoot the thugs only. Don't shoot the women or the medics, as these can't be killed and only waste ammo. Don't shoot grannies, tables, chairs or TVs — you lose points for grannies and get no points for furniture. Don't shoot too many cops, 'cos when you've cleared the streets of thugs, the cops swarm the streets shooting at you, and your injury level shoots up. When Quartet, the Macclesfield Mapper has mapped it all out for you. We've had to chop in half, and so look out in next month's Tipshop for the next exciting installment. Yabba-dabba-doo!

● In case you don't know what's awaiting you in your injury level is high, enter a house and find a room where you can see both sides. No thugs or cops can enter the room to harm you, so you can just stand still until your injuries go down. It's best to go after the gang leaders only when you have two or three weapons with lots of ammo, because the thugs swarm the streets and a lot of ammo is needed to clear them. To conserve ammo while walking around the streets, use the hand gun. This uses fifty rounds which fire off very slowly, making it last longer. To clear crowd scenes, let off short bursts of machine gun fire. Wait to see if the thugs fall down, 'cos they take a while, and you don't want to waste bullets if they're already hit. Save the rocket launcher for when you meet a gang leader, to clear the thugs all around him. Shotguns have limited ammo, fire quickly and are handy if you don't have a machine gun. One last thing, shoot out all the windows to gain extra points." Thank you, Simon. First tip for Deathwish, and a fine, young cucumber it is, an' all!

DEATH WISH III the Map.

By Andrew Bennett.

Deathwish II

● As well as inferring that Mike Gerrard makes up the Subs Club letters (oo-bitch), Andrew Bennett has played and mapped Deathwish III for us. Okay, we'll let you off this time, but say that about Mike again and we'll blow your head off with a bike pump. Make my day, punk!

TIP O' THE MONTH

Solomon's Key

● It's about time I contributed some of my own hints to the Shop, and so here are my tips on how to get through the first seven screens of this superduper coin-op conversion.

Screen One: First whip the left hand brick out from under the guard as he walks along the platform. Then press duck/fire, fire, duck/fire, fire, duck/fire, fire. Get the key and work your way up to the exit. Get the gems on either side of the screen if you must, but don't worry about them. Enter the centre block from the side and get the three trinkets, not forgetting the other three hidden in the bricks underneath. Then wait for the bird to bounce off the wall on your side and pass you, and jump on the platform behind him and scoot to the exit.

Screen Two: Step forward one brick and press fire. The animal will walk towards you and drop down the hole. Press duck/fire and step forward and press fire. The same thing happens. Now press duck/fire, step forward, jump/fire, fire, and the creature will fall down again. Now repeat the last sequence, and the creatures will begin falling down the centre of the screen. Cross the gap by placing a brick in it, stepping over and then removing it again. Then you're free to get the key and get out.

Screen Three: First place two bricks in the right hand corner of the compartment. Wait till the fireball goes over your head. Jump, fire, jump, fire and you're into the next bit. Go through the wall and press duck/fire, forward, duck/fire, and jump over the first spider as it comes for you. Wait for the second one to go all the way round and through the tunnel you just came through, and then seal it. Jump down past the bird. Get the key and release the spider, jumping out of the way to let it pass. Jump down into the next bit and shoot a fireball at the guard. Get the bag, and headbutt the brick under the bird. Get the trinket and climb up to the last bit. Wait until the llamas leave you enough space and then duck/fire, forward, fire, jump, duck/fire, forward, and duck/fire. Then you're in!

Screen Four: Well, yes. Okay, so you can just walk straight across. But it's a good idea to spend some time rescuing the angels at the top.

Screen Five: Very tricky. As fast as you can, drop a brick in front of you, back up one and drop one beside it. (The devil will drop down and kill you, if you don't.) Build a little staircase to the top spider and then build a bridge to his brick. Let him walk across it and jump over him, destroying the bridge behind you. Jump and steer yourself underneath to get the key. You'll probably get killed, if you don't get off the floor level as soon as you can. Otherwise make a staircase again and this time go up and over the spider and drop down into the exit.

Screen Six: Gotta be fast. Wait till the birds bounce off the bricks and the devils drop. Press duck/fire, forward, fire, jump, fire, jump, fire, jump, duck/fire. Wait till the birds are out and drop down, aiming for the key, then aim to miss the eagle. Turn and shoot it with a fireball. Get the bag and the gem and make your way up carefully to the exit.

Screen Seven: Get the fireball bug, and make your way up to the key. Having got it, you must place bricks repeatedly in the way of the fireballs being thrown by the eagle, and leap up and headbutt the bricks in your way. Then in between fireballs, jump up and over the devil generator and drop down behind the eagle to the exit.

And there you have it, the first seven screens. I've got further than this (Yeah, yeah! Ed) but I haven't got room to tell you about it yet. So look forward to more next issue.

The Living Daylights

● My name is Snout, Phil Snout. Stay perfectly still, because this sandwich is lined with nitro and one chomp will send us all sky high... Sorry, I will have my little jokes, and I do like James Bond impressions. So now, without much further ado, we have the first part of the solution to The Living Daylights, from Daniel Sullivan. "Level 1: Use the paint gun for the snipers and when you get to the end of the level swop to the Walther PPK. When you've shot him run to the end of the level and you're out. Level 2: Choose the night glasses (binoculars) and swop to them to tell the music lovers from the snipers. Shoot the snipers on your way out, and as you don't have to kill anyone to leave, just run out. Level 3: Let the weapons counter count down, 'cos you don't need any weapons for this. Just leg it across the level, ducking and jumping, making sure you stop to avoid the falling pipes. Just run to the end of the level to finish. Level 4: This one's quite hard. Choose the bazooka and look for the agent with his explosive milkbottles. Hit him three times in the head and he'll disappear. Shoot the snipers, jump over the craters, take a few steps and you'll see the geezer with the milkbottles again. Repeat this until you reach the end of the level and shoot the helicopter with the bazooka. Hooray!" Hooray indeed, my little counter espionage chaps, until the next exciting episode, next month.

Forbidden Planet

● And now we have an interesting tip for Forbidden Planet. Ever since Zub, programmers have been interested in making hidden games within other games. Design Design has been naughty and put a couple of extra games in its recent Forbidden Planet. Ha-ha. Andrew Wales... any relation to Andrew Males? No? Okay, Andrew Wales has discovered that if you hold down 0 (zero) while the game loads, you get a game of Space Invaders. (Keys — Z, X and SPACE to play, F to finish.) And while you're playing the proper game, press 1,2, and 3 to get another game called Whino Hunt! Thanx a lot, Andy, but this doesn't mean you get three badges! Ho ho.

Vampire

● Another quickie (All together... "oo-er"! for that chart-topping Vampire. Mark West and Robert Morris both wrote to me to say that if you press 1,2,3,4 and 5 together, it teleports you to the final screen where you can shoot some spiky baddies and win the game. Take that, you spiky toothed, undead little Transylvanian, you!

PRACTICAL POKES

Once more into the ROM disassembly, dear hackers, Yes, it's ZZKJ!

Oh no! Another pile of POKES! Still, it's nice to see all you crackers out there still alive and kicking. Lots of interesting stuff here, the usual useful stream of POKES, but also a most surprising cheat mode for Saboteur II.

Zynaps

Okay, enough of this, on with the hacks. Ariya Priyasanthia has sent me this one for Zynaps. To use it, RUN the hack program and play the fame tape from the start. In answer to your question, yes! you do get a badge.

Saboteur II

On any level of Sab II, go to the bottom floor of the armoury, kill the guard with a handy wrench, then go and stand by the nearest box. Press down and you'll go down a concealed ladder into a secret chamber. Go to the chest you'll find there and you'll be immune to injury. Many thanks to D. R. Jones for this fascinating trick.

Hive

Next, it's down to David Brankin to give us invulnerability in Firebird's Hive. Use it in the normal way (RUN it, then load the game) except you mustn't have a Kempston joystick interface connected, otherwise the hack will crash.

Quite A Few

Adrian Davis is quite simply the hackiest hacker of the month, having come up with the goods for Dr Destructo, Heist 2012, Ghostly Grange and Tomb Of Syrinx. RUN it and load the game from the beginning, being sure to delete any POKES you don't want by rubbing the line on which it sits.

Yet Another Few

Wow! I thought our last hacker was the hackiest. How wrong could I be? Here, with some marvellous Multiface POKES, are Marcus and Damian Conway, Bolton's famous double act. The list was long, but here are the edited highlights. Game Over Infinite Lives

Batty

Well, I couldn't resist it. A quick few minutes with MONS and hey presto! Infinite lives on our very own Batty. Special thanks to David McCandless, who although he was (once again!) the first to send me a hack on this game, wasn't quite quick enough to beat me. Sorry Dave, better luck next time.

And finally someone who shall remain nameless wrote asking whether I was a he or a she. I ask you, do I sound like a she? (Dunno, I can't hear you! Ed) Anyway, that's all we've got time for this month. Send me your hacks, for new games only please, to: ZZKJ, Practical Pokes, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE.

GUNSHIP™

A detailed illustration of a gunship helicopter, likely a Black Hawk, in a dynamic, low-angle perspective. The helicopter is shown from below, flying over a rugged, rocky terrain. It is heavily armed, with two large missiles mounted on its stub rotors, each firing a bright yellow and orange flame. A machine gun mounted on the side is also firing, with a bright orange muzzle flash visible. The helicopter's main rotor blades are blurred, suggesting high speed. The background is a clear blue sky with some light clouds. The overall style is that of a classic action movie poster or a comic book illustration.

Slap Fight

● Okay, enough of the biggies, let's get down to the nitty-grittys. Steve Miller has sent me this stream of tips, so I think it's only fair that I slap 'em in the Shop. Off you go, fruitbun! "Shoot the first three baddies and collect the stars, and then shoot the two stationary ones. Dodge the two that go down the slide, but don't bother about the baddie that pops up on the right. Shoot the three moving baddies that zip out from the right of the screen, collect the stars then press space. Now you have heat seeking missiles. Now blast everything and wait until you have enough stars for a shield. When you come to the six stationary baddies press space. Get the stars and then wait until you have enough stars for a shield and use it when you get to the big baddy. To get rid of him more quickly use a bomb, as it only takes two hits. After the big guy, use bombs because it's easier to destroy the rest of the meanies. But watch it, 'cos they fire in eight directions so fire and move slightly left or right." Thanx Steve, any other Slappers finished the game?

Rockman

Universal Hero

● As you seem to love the previous freebie maps I've been sending you, I thought I'd give away some more. So if you want superbly photocopied maps of Rockman or Universal Hero (specially drawn by Christian Keane), send a sae to: (fill in name of map you want) Map Offer, YS Tipshop, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, W1P 1DE.

Slap Fight

● Just to prove that my tricky little Pal Paul Adams is the slappiest little mapper in the cosmos, here's his map of Slap Fight. Long, innit? Still, as with all scrolling shooties it's a good idea to know what to expect around each corner, especially if you want to get through it without getting yourself blasted to pixels!

Catch 23

● A big problem in this game is how to hack the computers to get the elements for the fuel formula. My friend, and yours too for a fee, Paul Lennox, has got all the answers written down for you, and it goes like this: (NB: note spelling of Cris, no 'h'!)

CLUE	NAME
The Planets	Anatoli Romanov
Compass	Anne Roberts
Book By	Catch 23
Joseph Heller
An Esky	Colin Lassiter
Sugar Bowl	Cris Stavros
Sphygmomanometer	Homero Guevara
Tin Of Wax	Marcel Geurre
Video Cassette	Mario Notrianni
Bullet In Glass Case	Olaf Stenmark
Pair Of Crampons	Oswald Osvaldo
Letter From Sweden	Peter Thomas
Painting Of Eagle	Professor Ning
A Teapot	Professor Wang
Green Rosette	Rudi Appel
Container Of	Sean Connolly
Whiskey
Field Glasses	Tracey Court
Some Sheet Music	Zacharias Neumann

● Type in the name of the owner of the terminal, but carefully, because any mistyping will result in the guards being alerted and a lot of bullets flying in your direction. Having typed in the name correctly at the LOGON stage, you must type CK23 to be given the code. This code refers to an element in the fuel formula for the CK23 interceptor. The clue format is two digits, first letter of the element, number of letters in the name of the element, last letter of the element. Note: the owner's name is also a clue as the initials are the element's Atomic Symbol, eg. Sean Connolly = Sc = Scandium, and so on.

Auf Wiedersehen Monty

● Wow, fab, stupendous! It's a cheat mode for Monty! Yay! Let's hear it for fluffy Nicholas Cox (any relation to Kevin Ex-Ed?) for discovering it. "All you do is load the game with: LOAD " " :REM MONTY. Then press enter and play on tape." Hmm, I wonder if this works with any other Gremlin games?

So that's it! Have fun, and keep those tips coming!

▶ And remember, every tip or map or POKE printed in 'The Shop' gets a super classy 'I've Got

Big Tips' badge. Yay! And all you've got to do is send hints, tips, maps and POKES to: Phil South, YS Tipshop, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. You know it makes sense!

ON YER BIKE!

YS COMPO

Win a customised racing bike plus 30 copies of Gremlin's Tour De Force!

Illustration: Nick Davies

Pump iron, or in this case pedals, in Gremlin's latest sweat-making simulation, Tour De Force. Five gruelling levels through five different countries will have you battling for the coveted Yellow Jersey and soothing your saddle-sore butt. And it won't be easy 'cos you're competing against some of the meanest dudes on the circuit like American Wild Bill Stacey and Russia's Ivor Ivanoff. If they don't kick you off yer bike, you've still got to contend with potholes, broken bottles, oilslicks and bales of hay that are strewn across the track.

Get on yer bike, a shiny yellow Velo

Mark IV and try to win a leg, (it helps if you've got at least one to ride a bike with) so you can score the most points over five legs and proceed to the next level. Pumping, muscly thighs, sleek metal frames, ecstasy and agony — what more could you want? Apart from a superb riding machine of your own, of course. And it just so happens, John, that we've got an exclusive customised racing bike up for grabs in yet another fabby competition brought to you courtesy of YS and Gremlin. Yes, the first prize winner will ride away with a customised racing bike glistening with Gremlin and YS transfers plus a cycling kit — and we don't mean a puncture repair kit. Plus there'll be 30 copies of Gremlin's tyre-burstin' Tour De Force for the runners up.

What's more you won't have to do any wheeling and dealing to get your mitts on any any of these prizes — 'cos it's simple. All you have to do is screw up your eyes and study the picture below, count the number of wheels and write your answer on the coupon and stick it to the back of an envelope. Then fill in the coupon with your name, address and age and send the whole lot, or a photocopy to I Want To Ride My Bicycle And Play With My Dingaling Compo, YS, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE

HIGHWAY CODE

- Employees of Dennis Publishing can get on their bikes 'cos they're not winning this one!
- Ride in those entries by December 31st or you'll never win the race.
- Anybody who argues with the Ed will end up more than saddle-sore.

I don't need stabilisers 'cos I've spotted ..... wheels in the picture.

When the going gets tough, the tough grab their joysticks,

Ten-shun, Soldier. Is your bayonet fixed or are you just glad to see me? Yes, I'm looking for real men (So what else is new? Ed) There's no nancy boy needlework or cookery at this academy and the only O- levels here are the 'Ohhh's' of agony as you chin the bar for the fortieth time.

Yes, Ocean is converting the Konami coin-op that's turned all you arcade recruits into lean, mean fighting machines. So pull in your paunch — this is survival of the fittest, not the fattest!

I'm known as Black and Decker around here because I'm the toughest drill sergeant there is, but even I shudder at the ferocity of this assault course. There's mud, rivers, walls, firepower and unarmed combat to survive — and that's just to get into the mess hall. Just be glad that at the end of the day, the only muscle that'll be aching is your wrist!

Combat School takes the sports simulation and gives it a boost of cold steel. Even trainspotters will benefit from a spell of training in my platoon. I take young boys and turn them into MEN, fighting fit and ready to embark on a top secret mission. So forget putting the (pacifist) shot or running the hundred metres (unless you're retreating) — this is for real!

The game features a split screen so you can compete against a human opponent or play against a computer pacer. Either way, you'll be Nick or Joe, clean-living all-American boys just dying to serve Uncle

Sam by killing enemies of the free world.

In the graphics corps, they've opted for a monochrome approach, and the detail is fantastic. The raw recruits are as hunky and butch as you could wish. With fast scrolling landscapes and energetic, panting sprites you'll be right there in the heart of the action too.

Ocean's gone to great lengths to get the conversion as accurate as possible, and hope to retain many of the details that mark out the original as truly top gun, including the passing out parade.

There'll be two versions (128 and 48K) back to back on cassette, plus a disk for Plus 3-ers. 128 owners may even jump to the simulated speech of their sergeant, if the crack squad of coders can find room for it in the quartermaster's stores (or RAM, as they prefer to call it). This version will also

Assault Course

Start out easy with some simple wrist waggling as you pump up that energy on the assault course. There's no time for slackers as you hit brick walls which block your path, jabbing fire to jump or going face first in the mud. There's even a monkey bridge for all you swingers.

Arm Wrestling

Everyone knows that the secret of modern combat is arm wrestling. (Surely some mistake, soldier. — Ed) Pump up those muscles if you want to go truly over the top and slam your opponents fist onto the mat.

Firing Range

Shooting practice and both soldiers move as they try to blast the bulls-eyes before the targets drop back into the trenches. To succeed you have to hit a set number of targets or you'll find yourself fired.

Seeing Red

It's back to the firing range for a few more shots at the targets. But this time some of them are red and if you hit one, your sight freezes until the next round, costing you valuable time.

SCHOOL

TOP SECRET THE MISSION
The top ranking marine at the passing-out parade gets to take on international terrorists in a no-holds barred finale. It's all- scrolling, all-scrapping as you use your skills to rescue the hostage.

Rachael J Smith reports for duty at Ocean!

be a single load, as against the three parts for 48K fighters.

The training program is fairly straightforward — nobody ever suggested you need brains under your green beret — but there are some important differences from the traditional Track And Field format. Firstly, while finishing fast is rewarded with a time bonus, failing to complete a section leads to a penalty pull-ups screen.

But best of all is the fact that all your training won't go to waste! If you reach the passing out parade without passing out first, you'll be rewarded with some real action. A group of hostile thugs has taken an ambassador hostage and one man is required to rescue him.

That's right, Soldier, I said one man, so if two of you get through basic training, you'll have to choose who gets to risk his life against innumerable odds. You do this by arm-wrestling. Isn't it good to know that the military has such sophisticated tests of suitability?

Still, it's going to be the player with the firmest grip on his stick who survives longest. If I were you, I'd ask Sergeant Major Santa Claus for a heavy duty joystick because this is going to test your hardware almost as much as it does your wrist.

Now, on the double and lead with your left. Here's Combat School and it's mighty fun!

ROLL CALL

Ocean has assembled a top team of commandos to tackle the problem of programming Combat School:

Sergeant Andrew (Death-Dealer) Deakin — The man behind the monkey bars and turning the targets. A veteran of the Athena campaign.

Sergeant Ivan (Hellfire) Horn — Another Athena ace. A graphics expert who guarantees that when the going gets tough, the sprites get going.

Sergeant Mike (Mad Dog) Lamb — An unarmed combat expert, he's brought in whenever there's a need for fist fighting. Last mission — Renegade.

Sergeant Roger (Fearsome) Fenton — Though he's providing music and speech effects, his favourite sound is the rattle of gunfire.

Cross Country

The Iron Man assault course is no place for tin-plate heroes. This time there's an overhead view as Nick and Joe run, avoiding swampy ground which slows them down, swim a river until they reach a boat, then dodge the logs before reaching the far shore and safety.

Karate Khops

Probably the toughest test a soldier can take is to wrestle with his instructor. Prove that you've really got the right stuff by beating the bravado out of this muscular veteran with a classic combination of thumps and kicks.

Tanked Up

For the second test of shooting there are moving tanks to hit. The radio controlled twin tracks arrive in waves as Nick and Joe try to double the defence budget by blowing away all those high-tech targets.

Chin-Ups

There's no second chance out in the field, but at training camp you can pay for your failure by performing chin-ups — one for each point you failed to score. Keep that joystick jiggling if you want to chin the bar before time runs out.

COMICS

▷ The top three 'zines in this month's chart are a bit of a surprise. Well, okay so The Uncanny X-Men is its usual mutant excellence, but what about the other two? Millennium is a mammoth DC Comics event, featuring every current DC character and what they call 'crossovers' in the comic world. This means that the story runs through the Millennium magazine as normal, but in each individual character's regular magazine the story continues in the background or as part of the regular script, sometimes imparting vital info in another magazine which relates to the main Millennium story. This is a brilliant idea for two reasons. First it gives DC fans a feast of interwoven stories to collect and keep. Secondly it means DC makes a mound of bread 'cos everyone has to buy all its titles for the duration of the story. Millennium is out weekly and 1, 2, and 3 are in the shops now!

John Constantine — Hellblazer is a very different kettle of cockroaches. This is one of DC's now regular line of comics for 'mature readers' and is frankly the most scary 'zine around at the moment. Taking place in New York, London and a village in Africa, the story traces the progress of a strange affliction which causes people to gorge themselves on any kind of food to hand, then waste away before your eyes. A horrific story carrying an endorsement from 2000AD's Alan Moore on the back cover, "English horror didn't vanish with the fog and gas-lit cobblestones at the end of the Victorian era. Riveting, spine-chilling stuff." Need we say more?

Beverly Hills Cop II (15)

Eddie Murphy, Judge Reinhold, Brigitte Nielsen

It ain't Axel F back on the case. It's a dirty job and dirty-mouthed Murphy leaves us in no doubt what the F stands for.

But where would our Eddie be without the odd obscenity? And if you've got the sensibilities of Mrs Whitehouse you'll never survive the blast everything, crash cars and generally make-a-NOISE mentality of this movie. If you thought the original was loud, then pack your earplugs this time round.

Axel's back on the big wheel of Detroit, but when his old friend from LA, Captain Bogomil, is blasted by a member of a gang he's following, it's time to tell another pack of lies and board the first plane to Beverly Hills.

There he finds himself investigating arms smugglers, aided by Rosewood, much more mature than he was in BHC One, and Taggart, who remains as worried by Murphy's unorthodox outlook as ever. New boy in the station-house is Lutz, the hard-liner Chief of Police while Mrs Sly Stallone, Brigitte Nielsen, plays the arch-villainess who stands six-foot in her stockings.

There are one or two scenes that are almost replays of the original, but there's more than enough action and it's all held together by Eddie's incredible cheek.

Just one complaint though. Murphy seems unable to cope with strong woman Brigitte, who he christens a 'Big bitch'. I'm sure he'd never make a racist remark so what makes sexism okay? The writers should think about it before they start work on the inevitable sequel!

Who's That Girl (PG)

Madonna, Griffin Dunne, John Mills

Madonna! Dontcha just lurve her? I mean, what does she have that I haven't got? Okay, apart from money, fame, fans and power? What else?

Well, she's not had much success in the movies so far. Who's That Girl may be her best yet, but when the only real competition's the atrocious Shanghai Surprise, so what! Still, there's just about enough frothy fun here to keep her fan-club happy.

Donna is Nikki Finn, newly out of jail for a murder she never committed and hungry for revenge. But poor Loudon Trott, played by super-cutie Griffin Dunne, a young attorney, has to see her out of town for his future father-in-law. What can this big cheese boss-man have to do with the gum chewing, leather jacketed, tornado of trouble?

There's also another wildcat — of the feline variety — which Griff is delivering to a client, but which turns out to be yet another Madonna fan and only answers to her command. Add to that Coati Mundi, who keeps on cropping up as a short-stop hood with big plans for our heroine, and you have a recipe for frantic farce.

As his snobby fiancée prepares for their wedding day, Griffin wonders whether he wouldn't rather die at the claws of the cat than in the grasp of the psychotic superstar. But suddenly she changes pace and she swops costumes to become sleek, slinky and sophisticated. After that, it's love all the way!

Maybe one day Madonna will become another Marilyn Monroe, which is what she obviously wants. But for the time being this will only satisfy her most hardcore fans — or anybody who likes to turn off their brain while they watch!

Phil Platform games are something I don't spend much time thinking about. When you've seen one you've seen 'em all, right? Well, not quite. If you can have massive sprites, and detailed scrolling backgrounds then it makes you wake up. If you see a complex arcade adventure scenario in the game, it makes you sit up and take notice. But if it's also the fastest and hardest arcade blast 'em up you've seen for a long time, you start reaching for your joystick. Trantor is all these things, and works on these different levels (no pun intended) brilliantly. The graphics are top notch, and the animation very smooth and lifelike, considering the size of the graphics.

You take on the role of Trantor, a stormtrooper in command of an earth ship sent to a strange alien planet to retrieve stolen missile plans. Two things complicate the mission: firstly the planet is overrun with horrid, slimy and vicious alien creatures. Secondly, as Trantor leaves the ship, it blows up taking all his men with it, leaving him alone to complete the task. The Earth's mission controllers wanted to blow up the ship after the mission, destroying the soldiers and the plans so that it would remain secret. But the bomb goes off early, and now Trantor is alone and it's a race against time. You see, stormtroopers have bodybombs, microscopic explosive devices implanted under the skin, and at a given signal they start counting down to explode. Trantor's is counting down, which means he's got to work fast. He runs down the corridors of the underground alien complex, blasting aliens with his powerful flame thrower, in a frenzied race to discover the code sequence to the matter transporter, his only means of escape. Along the way, he discovers computer terminals, which, by means of a communications link to Earth, reset his body-bomb and give him one of the letters of the code. By hopping between these he can prolong his life just long enough to reach his goal, bobbing down to avoid low flying aliens and picking up first aid kits, computer pass keys and energy giving food.

It's the graphics on this game that really make it something out of the ordinary, but the sound, especially the title screen music, is superbly done. (Snouty Tip: record the title screen music onto a C10 tape and play it during the game for maximum enjoyment!) The game is hard if you just play it as a shoot 'em up, but much more satisfying if you go for the full arcade adventure bit. Wonderful entertainment and worth much more than the asking price. Buy it!

YS CLAPOMETER

An original and brilliantly programmed shoot 'em up, with more action than the average joystick can comfortably cope with!

[illegible]

TOTAL	9
-------	---

Trantor runs through the corridors of the station, searching all the terminals he finds (the little blue screen) for information about the code he seeks, and to reset the timer on his body-bomb. It's a matter of life and death, and a race to beat the clock. Tick, tick tick...

The corridors get darker, and then Trantor gets in a lift and emerges into the Stygian darkness of the topmost level. Suddenly, out of the inky blackness, a fearsome shape pounces forth, teeth bared and huge talons clawing. It's over in moments, and after the monster finishes his meal, Trantor is dead... this time.

JACK THE NIPPER II

Gremlin/£8.99

Marcus What a caper! Yeah, it's pitifully predictable, but I love this game. Okay, so it's a plattie pure and simple — the sort of thing that usually turns perfectly reasonable reviewers puce with fury — but what an addictive one. Gor lumme, this little beauty makes Jet Set Willy and all his various brothers, nephews and cousins look like a 4K fruit machine simulator rejected by Program Pitstop.

For one thing, the whole kaboodle is crammed full o'screens, 192 in all. And there's enough going on in each of them to make you wonder why no-one's done anything as good as this before. 'Cos amazingly enough this is a single loader, even on my cranky old 48K rubber keyboard. And the game's so challenging I bet you'll be Araidited to that self-same keyboard for weeks on end if you're not careful.

You know the story — the Nipper family have been deported from our fair isle and bunged on a plane to Oz, which seems a nice long way away, but Jack's not too keen on this and parachutes out of the plane, followed closely by Nipper Sr. Finding himself in the jungle, Jack wanders about being extremely naughty and avoiding Pops and the inevitable spanking.

You can play the game in various different ways — either for maximum naughtiness (as measured in the naughtyometer), or for a high score, which you'll get by popping off the assembled jungly sprites and by solving the occasional problem. Or you can try and get both if you're greedy. You can carry two things at once — one's a weapon (coconuts, blowpipe or shield) and the other is an object for being excessively naughty with — for instance when you pass Tarzan you'll find that the grease may come in very useful indeed! As for getting around screens, it's not as hard to survive as in, for example, the Monty games, where you seem to get killed off willy nilly. But you won't get bored — there's too much to do and see for that.

So, another little spanker from Gremlin. As always with that company, the graphics are immaculate — colourful and with clash down to a minimum. The sprite masking's particularly impressive — an object lesson to everyone else,

I think. And the jokes — well, hilarious, as always. Leave Jack for a moment and he'll start raking around in his nostril — bleuggghh! Quite what he does with the contents is never made clear (pass the sick bag).

Now, if you'll excuse me, I must have another swift game before the Ed comes back from lunch...

Jack enjoys a pick while wondering what to do next. He could perch on that little red log which floats off to the left but that would mean avoiding the gorilla and trying not to jump onto the rope (all too easy when you don't want to). # HYSTERIA

Software Projects/£7.95

Rachael Arrgeekooooee! I'm hysterical because I'm late for a date with Gwyn and he said he wouldn't forgive me after last time. Can anybody come to my rescue?

Perhaps Software Projects can because it's got its own form of Hysteria going on, and it's all because somebody has been messing around with the flow of time... hey, do you think Gwyn will accept that as an excuse? I thought not, but if I explain that I've been hooked on saving the temporal flow, that's a different matter.

Hysteria isn't the year's most original game. It's another of those walk-along shooting the nasties, with the addition of a weapon changing feature. You don't even get the multi-levels that gave Green Bert his ups and downs.

But you do get a well-judged gameplay and enough neat touches to make Hysteria really stand out. From the multitude of options, which include sound or silence and mono or colour graphics, to the hall of fame with its twisting letters, you'll be totally hooked.

It takes time to get time straightened out, and you have to start early (around 3,000 BC), strolling past pillared temples. Then skip to days of old when knights were bold and an Englishman's castle was his home. After that it's into space for a touch of the R2D2s.

The time warriors and their assorted monsters don't take too kindly to the fact that you want to sort out their evil deeds, and before you can say 'time-warp' they'll be popping up from nowhere and trying to wrap you up. All the monsters are relevant to their eras, so the ancient scene sets you against centaurs.

You don't really start out equipped for the job either, with only a shield, which has limited power, and a short range sonic head-butt. But you do have the power to transform ordinary objects into further weaponry. What further objects? The answers a lemon, worm!

Yes, walk over one of the worms which surface from time to time, or shoot a gargoyle and turn it into a lemon, then leap or fly into it, and your weapon indicator will move up one notch. You can select that weapon or carry on until you're entitled to something even more powerful. You can even use multiple powers in some cases!

As you progress, certain nasties will leave behind a jigsaw piece, and once you've collected enough of these a picture of your arch-enemy for the level will appear, at which stage a mega-sprite enters and flies around, shooting at you. Killing it is no easy task but success brings in a bonus and takes you to the next era.

There's nothing that you haven't seen before but it doesn't matter because this is such a well-judged program, it's got the magic JOMG (Just One More Go) Factor. If this was a coin-op machine I'd be bankrupt by now. Instead it's in my Spectrum and it's making me late for dates but so what? Save the hysterics for real problems — like losing yet another life! Oogragghheeeoooo!

You can have the landscape in colour but we prefer monochrome to give you the edge when it comes to spotting worms.

Your wings are clipped as you use them and there's a time limit on the slave weapons too. Watch it run out here.

Flying is probably most useful on the later levels when the ground becomes rather full, but you'll miss out on those worms if you don't walk.

Of the two shooting options your first priority should be to obtain the ranged blaster. Walk to the left on the first screen to find a couple of lemons almost immediately.

In these three windows pictures appear to show your progress, then fade as strength ebbs. Your portrait shows your power while the shield should be self-explanatory. Your foe's face grows as you collect the jigsaw pieces then fades as you destroy the mega-sprite.

There are two slave weapons available. The first one is a spinning disc while the second provides full cover with three circling orbs. Try to have them ready when you meet the mega-sprite.

SUPER SPRINT

Electric Dreams/£9.99

Gwyn Here's the racing game that's strictly over the top — as in bird's eye view (and I don't mean fish fingers). There are eight circuits as one or two players take part in the wackiest races ever.

I was never really taken with the coin-op original, which replaces all those super-sophisticated perspective views and the fast action which gets you spinning in your seat, with the relative simplicity of a plan view of the track and four cars. It always seemed more Scalextric than real motor racing to me.

Still, at least the original boasted some natty graphics, which livened things up no end. Not so the Spectrum, which substitutes those grassy banks with a block of green, onto which is dumped a plain black tarmac strip. In order to fit a complete track onto the screen, the cars themselves are tiny, and suffer from rather bad attribute clash.

Even these squidgy graphics would be excusable if the gameplay was great but it ain't. Learning to steer the car when the only controls are left, right and accelerate proves tiresome. You have to keep the latter pressed to maintain speed, while the turn controls aim to simulate a steering wheel — but they're too sensitive and your on-screen racer tends to pirouette on the spot unless you jab at the keys.

That said, there's a certain amount of fun to be had if you persevere with learning to drive. You get to choose your circuit, and while some are fairly straightforward relying on traditional terrors like hairpin bends, others introduce such unorthodox features as bridges, roundabouts, opening and shutting gates and even leaps! The Brands Hatch boggles.

I doubt this will hold any but the most committed coin-op fan's attention for all that long, and with the spartan graphics I can't help thinking it's budget quality dressed up in licensing clothing.

DIZZY

Codemasters/£1.99

Rachael What did the Ed mean when she said this was a natural for me? Gormless, yes, but dizzy — never!

Still, this is the sort of game that can only give off-balance a good name. It's an arcade adventure, packed with enough cute touches to make you forget you said you'd never play another one of the things as long as you lived.

For a start there's your hero, a nicely animated egg who has egg-spectations of saving his world from the wizard Zaks and the infernal curse of eternally itchy athlete's foot. He doesn't just leap but performs the sort of rolls which would scramble a lesser egg.

This second cousin to Humpty Dumpty is big and colourful, and he walks and tumbles through a bright, imaginative landscape, dodging nasties and picking up the usual selection of odd objects. There's a fair variety to the scenery, with helpful messages whenever necessary, as Dizzy searches for the ingredients for the potion.

I don't think it will take too much wit to work out some of the puzzles though, such as how to use a raincoat if there are fatal raindrops! Restricting the number of objects carried to one, means that you have to retrace your steps rather a lot too, but the arcade elements keep tedium at bay, because there are many well-judged jumps, elevators and crumbling floors to negotiate.

So while the hard core problem solving corps may not favour it, anybody who likes some joystick skills combined with their brainwork should be well-pleased at this price. Far from original, but the yolk's on you if you fail give Dizzy a spin.

THE FAST AND THE FURIOUS

US Gold

Mike Never has a game been better named than this one from the Dutch Emieware software house. Free with every cassette they should give you a darkened room to go and lie down in after you've finished playing.

As well as keyboard control you can use Cursor, Protek, AGF, Kempston or Interface II type joysticks. There's a much needed PAUSE facility, giving you time to wipe your brow, and also an Abort Game option for those really trying moments when mere death is not enough. Step back to old Baghdad. Bung the player on a flying carpet and you've got Zaxxon with curly-toed slippers. But they should have left you in the present-day if you've got to believe there are military installations out in the desert as well.

But enough of this and on with the fray — and the first person to make jokes about a frayed carpet gets a scorpion up their kilt. The game is basically a right-to-left horizontal scroll-and-shoot-'em-up. Climb on your carpet and you can move up and down, left to right. The first hazards are pillars and buildings which have to be avoided.

It's great fun zipping along on your carpet, especially as you can fire at the other magic carpet-riders that come your way, as well as the snakes, scorpions, bats and dragons. The graphics aren't the greatest, but the speed of the gameplay more than makes up for that.

The reason why you want to blast other carpet-riders out of the skies, is that you're an undercover agent working secretly for the military and nothing will stop you getting across the desert to the military base at the far side where you've some important documents to deliver. Well, nothing apart from all the nasties and a few outlaws that are waiting in between each of the levels. At the end of one level you fly over various icons, such as money, flags, music notes, revolver and oil symbols. You've some of these to your credit to start with, but choose carefully which you add by flying over them as you'll have to do some trading with outlaws in between levels before you can pass onto the next stage. The outlaws get the best graphics in the game, and one bears a frightening resemblance to the Man Ed, which surprises no-one. Beneath each outlaw, his

MOTOS

MAD/£2.99

Tony Lee Here's another of Mastertronic's 'Official Namco Arcade Licences', and it's a winner! The first time I saw it, I thought it was a multi-coloured game of chess! But it's not that simple! The idea is to defend your local solar base against the massed hordes of vicious, demented and extremely dangerous space bees. (Space bees?) Evil space marauders who wouldn't think twice before feeding their grandma to a cheese grater. Naturally there's only one person around who can save everybody, so no sneaking off to watch Moonlighting, you've got a job to do.

And what a job! You have to manoeuvre your ship around a giant grid and bump off any nasties you meet. No, not kill, but actually bump them off the screen! There are several types of nasty, and you'll need plenty of power pills (available from all good chemists and handily deposited around the screens) to defeat them.

To increase the output of your ship, there are power parts (oo-er) which you can attach to your ship with pieces of double-sided sticky tape (for speed purposes only), but you have to move on to the next screen to be able to use them. These enable you to jump holes or increase your temper, reliability, intelligence and aggression levels are indicated.

This bit in between levels is called a sub-game, but it's really just some extra fun and the best bit is the blasting, of course, with many monsters requiring more than one shot to see them off. And you also have the option of single-fire (fast but forwards only) or multi-fire mode (any direction by firing and moving your joystick the right way.) There's even a magic-mode facility, which keeps you away from all harm for a few seconds but decreases your stamina by 10%. When your stamina's zero it's Game Over time, folks.

The Fast And The Furious really is one of the fastest-action games I've seen on the Spectrum, and as for the excitement of riding a magic carpet, you can't beat it!

Never was a game better named — you need to have the reactions of a cheetah to survive this zappy classic!

firepower to blow the stuffing out of those darn nasty characters.

Other bonuses are 'beacons' and 'Navicons'. Navicons are to be avoided — they spit out more bees and generally make your life hell. Beacons, on the other hand, can be moved off the screen for loads of points. Well worth the risk!

It's a simple and satisfying game. The 128 music's pretty cool too. Mastertronic made a good decision to snap up this little beauty (converted by Binary Design). If dodgem cars are for you, so will this be!

THUNDER- CEPTOR

You'll notice there's no price details on these two games. Well, as those dull old men in cardies on TV panel games and chat shows always say, there's a story in that. When US Gold gave us these two Ernleware games to review, it bunged them on the same tape and we thought nothing of it. It never occurred to us that two such fine games would possibly be released on a single tape, at the usual one-game price of £8.99. But that's the way it is. They're two separate games, so Mike's reviewed them separately. What a bargain!

RED L.E.D.

Starlight/£8.99

Tony Worrall It's a tough life being a battle-droid. Never any thanks, never taken for a pint. No-one appreciates you until a particularly tricky task comes along. They always want you then! And this task is tough. It's a job for a droid with staying power. Your mission, is to traverse the slippery slopes and painful paths of a nasty landscape contained in the Reaktor game Red LED.

Dash about the 3D maze landscape, dealing mega-death to the enemy, while collecting a certain number of pods which enable you to claim this particular territory for your own. Convert a connected row of landscapes on the grid from left to right (or vice versa) and the game is yours. Time then to rest your worn bearings on a comfy bar stool.

Not so fast though! Let's have a butchers at the rest of the game. Graphically very similar to Spindizzy and Marble Madness, but Red LED adds its own brand of excitement to this genre. A delicate touch on the joystick plus a nimble finger on fire button are the two main requirements for successful competition. The time limit relentlessly ticks away while your droid battles its way around the maze to victory. On the way teleport stations must be used to reach those parts others paths cannot reach. Enemy generators can be knocked out to stem the flow of nasties, and other bonus features such as smart bombs, time extenders, and droid-freeze devices can be picked up on the way. Press pause for an overhead view of the landscape if you get stuck!

It plays very well, and what's more, it is very addictive. Perhaps the graphics are not as detailed or colourful as other versions, but the gameplay is faster than the Commie one I tried! The landscapes vary in difficulty, and contain different numbers of nasties, but controlling the three droids on the slopes turns out to be easier than Spindizzy, so game players with a shaky hand should not have a problem. Beating the time limit IS a big problem though — and almost impossible it seems to me!

Overall a good fun arcade zapper, with a twist of adventure chucked in to make things difficult. If you like the thrill of conquering 3D mazes then Red LED is a must.

obstacle surmounted gains you points, so a result is possible even if you don't clear all the screens. On screen info includes your time and fuel status, but most of the graphics are given over to the racing.

Control is not as easy as first appears — sheer speed and aggression will not bring the laurels of victory. Up/down control lets you wheelie (the 180° wheelie spins are a gas if not always useful), the fire button jumps the ATV, (or the driver when he has to board the brute). Left/right controls speed. For steep slopes, wheelie slowly and jump simultaneously — it's a knack you'll need to master.

If you come off (the crashes are sensational, but not fatal), run back to the ATV, face the right way and re-mount to start your race with danger.

Rick Yee-double-hah! From the hit hot author of BMX Simulator comes Codemasters' chart challenger ATV Simulator. ATV is a quad racing (ie dune buggy) re-enactment of the quality we've come to expect from the budget champs.

From the first upbeat notes of Dave Whittaker's music you know this is going to be high rev, high speed action. In true Le Mans style you have to run and jump your buggy and roar into the first of your trails. This is the sand dunes, and relatively easy; you have to scale, leap and generally crash your way round lumps and hillocks within sixty seconds. But later screen trails are harder (and imaginatively daft — just how do you get the buggy off the seal's nose in the iceberg section?). And you have to finish in the time limit, or back to screen 1 you go.

There's an excellent split screen two up facility, which allows simultaneous game play, giving you real eyeball to eyeball keyboard conflict. (ATV is joystick compatible). Each

Imagine Software, 6 Central Street, Manchester M2 5NS, Tel: 061 834 3939, Telex: 669977

This map should give you a taste of the kind of routes you can choose through the Outrun race arena.

You've played it in the arcades, now thrill to the world's favourite game in the comfort of your own Spectrum. We sent veteran Outrun driver, Phil South, to check it out.

Nothing fills the heart of a games reviewer with more dread than the thought of one of his favourite arcade games being converted to work on the humble and rubbery Speccy. The thought of all those huge, lumbering megabytes of graphic memory and sound synthesis crunched into our favourite computerised beermat makes me wince. But I needn't have worried. The task of converting Outrun to the Spectrum, and certain other computers has been put in the more than capable hands of Probe Software. Now there's a team of programmers who know a thing or two about arcade conversions. Last Mission, Solomon's Key and Rygar were all done by these cheerfully talented blokes, and so I didn't feel too bad about seeing the colossal Outrun on the small screen.

To put you out of your misery, it looks great. Okay, so there are a few less colours on the screen, but all the action of the megalithic arcade monster is still there in glorious duochrome: hills and bumps, trees, buildings, trucks, the odd Porsche, CHECK signs and arrows pointing in the direction that the road is turning. The sensation of motion along the road is fantastic, and you'll really believe that you're flying along it in your Ferrari, the wind tugging your hair, the surfers bobbing along on the sea and the crowd cheering you on.

The road goes up and down, splits in two and goes under the stone tunnel, just like the real thing. The graphics are beautifully rendered down to the last detail, like the way that the Ferrari horse logo on the back of the car faces in different directions as you turn. (Check out your local arcade version if you don't believe me.) The graphics of the other cars and trucks get bigger as you approach them and your car spins up in the air as you hit something too, over and over. Everything is drawn to perfection.

Of course some things didn't make it into the game, there had to be some, so the map is slightly different from the original, and a couple of bits of traditional Outrun scenery didn't turn up either. But what you don't notice, you won't miss, and I reckon you'll be too busy playing the game to notice anything's missing! To be blunt, this game is going to outsell anything going this Christmas, whatever I say about it, but for what it's worth there's a flippin' good game in there. Test drive one today!

OutRun

SHORT CIRCUIT

Just so you can compare the look of the new Spectrum game with its arcade granddaddy, here's a sneaky peek at the original OutRun in all its 16 bit, eight megabyte glory! Yowser! But how does the Speccy one match up to the coin-slotting monster? Read on...

BURNIN' RUBBER

The trick in OutRun is to get to the CHECK signs before this timer runs out thereby winning an extended play. Only if you qualify on each leg of the game do you get to play to the end of the particular route you've chosen on the map.

Wow! I really like some of these racing games 'cos of the wacky scores you can get. I mean how about getting 7370010 just for belting up the road at 180mph and wrapping your Ferrari around a small branch of Dolcis?

The scenery has been copied down to the last detail, with all the trees and rocks whipping past your ears with pixel-perfect precision. The objects are drawn in different sizes to ensure consistency as they grow in size while speeding towards you.

There aren't as many buildings in the Speccy version as there are in the arcade, but what do you expect for a humble 8-bit computer, eh? What roadside objects there are in this version are well rendered and just add to the sense of speed and excitement.

There are several performance cars on the road today, it seems, with a Porsche, BMW and a Beetle... huh? A Beetle is a performance car? Still, it's another hazard to whip past and if you want to finish the lap with time to spare, you'd better stop carspotting!

One thing which is missing in even the Sega console version is the speedometer. But in our Spectrum version the speedo is here, and a very useful guide to when to change gear, and gauge how fast you should be going around some of the tighter bends.

One of the most impressive sprites is the truck. No other game has a socking great 18-wheeler on its screen in perfect animation. And it's not so easy to get past either.

And here it is, the fabby OutRun Ferrari on the small screen. Looks good, dunnit? All the features you know and love are intact, even the little spurt of smoke from the tyres.

NIGEL MANSELL'S

GRAND PRIX

"NIGEL MANSELL'S GRAND PRIX" is ready to take you and your computer into the fast lane of game excitement. As well as capturing the speed and adrenalin pumping danger of the world's greatest sporting spectacle, the game is the first racing simulation to reflect some of the enormous advances in car design and technology that have taken place recently.

And yet the game still offers an excellent opportunity for even the most inexperienced novice to blast round the track at excessive speeds with the turbo on maximum boost and not a care in the world for fuel consumption, tyre wear or racing line. However, for those who know, or want to know a little more, there is an opportunity to race a selection of the world's greatest circuits in the quest for valuable championship points.

The red lights are on – you snap into gear.
The engine roars – your grip tightens on the steering wheel.
The crowd goes wild as the lights flash to green.
900 brake horsepower is suddenly unleashed and the Williams hurtles to the first bend.
Ahead of you lies 31 weeks of the world's most gruelling and spectacular sporting championship.

(Technical Consultants – Nigel Mansell, Peter Windsor, Williams Grand Prix Engineering Ltd.)

Nigel Mansell celebrating victory.

Just over half the race completed and you're lying second to your main rival – 0.8 seconds ahead of you.

Your pit crew are in constant contact with you throughout the race.

Correct gear selection is vital.

Use your Turbo for extra power – but watch that fuel.

This panel gives you vital information on your race performance.

Wing mirrors. No sign of the third place car yet!

YOU STUPID BERK!

Trap Door, in case you've had your head down one for the last year, is the super stop-frame animated TV series all about Berk, a loveable blue blob in the employ of a mysterious wizard, who you never see. Berk, helped by his friends Drut and Boni, is the castle servant, and his adventures take place in and around the castle kitchen, and the huge and sinister Trap Door in its floor. Many spooky and disgusting animals live beneath the Trap Door, and in Trap Door, the game, Berk used these animals to help prepare dinner for his Master. In Through The Trap Door, Berk and Drut venture beyond the Trap Door to rescue Boni, who's been kidnapped by the fearsome creatures and being held to ransom deep in the slimy bowels of the castle.

This second game is just as funny and well animated as the original but this time the map is twice as large, and on first glance looks all set to be Piranha's hit of the year. To celebrate this brilliant game, we ask you this question: What could be better than snuggling up to a cuddly Berk at night? Snuggling up with a cuddly T'zer at night, did I hear you smirk? (Stop that at once you slitherly little lustbucket! Ed) The proper answer to that question is 'nothing'. And to help you achieve this bedtime bliss (The Berk, not T'zer) we have banded together with Piranha to bring the two first prize winners the Trap Door goodies kit, consisting of a Trap Door video, Trap Door quilt cover and pillowcase, the Trap Door record, Trap Door colouring pictures, a cuddly Berk, a cuddly Rogg, and of course the Through The Trap Door game. Don't worry if you don't get the main prize, 'cos there are 30 prizes of Through The Trap Door for the runners up. Right then! All you have to do is put words in the Berk's mouth. Look at the picture on this page of T'zer communing in a deep and meaningful way with Berk at the PCW Show, and decide what they're saying to each other. When you've penned your witticism, send the coupon to: Berk! Where's My Dinner! Compo, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE.

Win two piles of Trap Door bedtime bliss, including video, record, quilt cover and cuddly Berk, and 30 copies of Through The Trap Door, in this amazing YS/ Piranha compo!

RULES

- Any Berks employed by Dennis Publishing or Piranha found entering this Trap Door compo will be thrown in the dungeon.
- The Ed's decision is final, and no correspondence, especially with unruly Berks, will be entered into.
- Any Berks not entering this compo by December 31st can shut their Trap!

TWO EDS ARE BETTER THAN ONE

What happened when two Ed impters

Fanfares sound. Ta-daah. 'Cos it's time to announce the overall winners of The YS Do...
The winners are...

Spectacular! No, we don't mean they're wonderful, though of course they are. They're actually called Spectacular, or at least their fanzine is. It was the first fanzine winner to feature in YS way back in February. It's produced by two complete lunatics, Nat 'The Prat' Pryce and Jonathan Davies, and as you can see from the pages of their current issue (No. 12) it's incredibly well put together both in presentation and content. If you'd like to see just how spectacular Spectacular is write to: Spectacular Magazine, 28 Claremont Road, Bishopston, Bristol BS7 8DH. It'll only cost you 50 pence plus a stamp. A damn good read for the money.

Spectacular - It's a winner!

Now here are these two Ed cases to tell you ▶▶▶

9.58am. Arrival

We've found it at last! Nat: Hardly 'Castle' Rathbone, is it? Looks more like a newsagents to me. Where is everybody? Jon: Here, gizza look. Jeez! What are those mags over there?!? Ahem, the darker side of Dennis Publishing! Nat: Is there a doorbell anywhere? Oh sh...ugar puff! It's starting to rain!

11.50am. Weebreak

Time for a sneaky rest. Ah! So this is where all the work's done!

12.05pm. Photoplay

Jon: Up a bit... no, a bit to the left... watch my foot! Look, wouldn't it be easier if I held the screen still and you moved the camera? Nat: I'm sure this is how the pros do it, so stop arguing! Jon: Fine, but howabout taking the lens-cap off. Lichfield! Click...rrr! Great, now hold the camera the right way round and we might get something worth printing by midnight.

12.35pm. Writinthe

Nat: Hmmm... what's this thing? I think poble it a that's what they did on Micro Live. Jon: Nat can't CLICKETY CLICK CLACK CLICK! Nat: Whaaa doing Oh, it's in code, eh! Jon: Well, I'm just hittin keys r something sooner or later!

2.33pm. Proof-reading

Our reviews are back from the typesetters. Jon: Hmmm... I don't think much of that... er, how does it go? I before E except after C. Oh, it's right after all... Nat: Let's cut that out... that's no good either, or that, or that. Yipes! That's awful! Jon: Oh, the pen's run out, where's another? Scrawl, scrawl, scrawl...

3.59pm. Paste-up

Down to the basement where the arty farty guys hang out. Now let's see, we've got to layout this page. Nat: Hang on. You've got that bit upside-down. Pass the Uhu, would you? Jon: Haven't you got something a bit more heavy-duty than this knife? Nat: Oy, any more of that and this scalpel will be cutting off more than just paper, sonny!

YS/ Domark Fanzine Of The Year Compo. Opening of gold envelope... rustle... rustle...

11:39 a.m. Reviewing Begins

Ah-ha! A stack of games to review. Nat: Where's something violent and blood-thirsty? What are we loading now? Indiana Jones, huh? Jon: It looks like an expensive license to me... it is an expensive license! Pity there isn't a speed loader though. I thought this place was hi-tech, but there isn't a disk drive in sight. Wake me up when it's loaded!

Wire we all tied up like this? Jon: I'm in-cable-ble of moving! Gimme the joystick and let's get blasting!! Mat: Look, matey, the Ed said we're s'posed to be working, not enjoying ourselves. We've got to review Indiana Jones and Ocean Conqueror before she gets back. Jon: Is this really what they call 'work' around here?

ring the review

ink you able to do it about on the desk. At least,
Nat: Nah, that can't be right then can it?
That are you doing? Jon: I'm typing. Nat:
Hitting the keys really, but it's bound to do

1:27pm. Grub up!

Pahl! A posh restaurant, they said. A ten-minute trudge through the pouring rain and we end up at McDonalds. And they've gone off to the local for a swift one. Hrumph! Wat: Give us a chip, Phill Omph, schlup, fphs, slip! Jon: I wonder if there's anything in these bags which is more edible than a Big Mac?

1.28pm. Nature Calls

Lawdy be, those McDonald Colas go straight to your bladder. The lav must be free by now! Oops! Sorry lads!

6.00pm. Zonked-out

Those guys at YS must be super human. (You've finally twigged. Ed) Nat: We've only produced a page. I don't know about you but I'm knacker....ZZZZZZZZZZZZZ...

themselves how they put together such a fabby fanzine, "We write and design it ourselves with the help of a few friends, an alphacom printer and a trusty Speccy. All our screenshots are dumped using the Multiface 1 and the magazine is duplicated on the local university's photocopier. We've been doing it for over a year (we're now on the 12th issue) so we reckon we're pretty experienced. In fact we could probably edit YSI"

We'll soon see whether two Eds are better than one! It just so happens that Nat and Jonathan, the lucky winners of the Fanzine Of The Year Compo, received not only fame, fortune – well fifty quid – and lots of plugs (I wondered why the sink kept emptying. Phil), but the most fantastic prize ever in the history of competitions! Yep, the chance to come to Castle Rathbone and step into the Ed's DM's for a day. And just look what a spectacle they made of themselves.

YES PRIME MINISTER

Mosaic/£14.95

Marcus Ah, Sir Humphrey. Come in, come in. Do sit down.

"Thank you, Prime Minister."

Well, what can I do for you?

"Well, it has come to my attention that those personages who may be described, if not by me, certainly by those people who could by no means be described as being, well, me, as the writers of a notable and highly lucrative series of entertaining half-hour humorous playlets on the televisual apparatus, have been branching out from these humble, if not actually modest beginnings and perpetrating further outrages and satirical comments on the workings of government and, specifically, the civil service, by means of books, T-shirts, radio programmes and now, it seems, some form of information technology which I believe is commonly known as the 'Specsy'..."

You mean there's a computer game version of Yes PM? Yes I know.

"You know, Prime Minister? How did you find out?"

Well, I'm in it, Humpry, as are you. Take a look...

Yes, Yes Prime Minister (as opposed to No No Nanette) is but the latest 'licence' to be bought up by a software company and slapped onto your Spectrum. The company behind this wheeze is Mosaic, known in the past mainly for a few low-key adventures. But YPM is a very different kettle of memos, what with its plush red packaging, its digitised pics of the characters and the hefty price tag (15 nicker, I ask you!). So wossit like?

In a move that'll gladden the hearts of Mrs T and all the other YPM fans, the Specsy game is immensely faithful to the spirit of the show. It's mainly reminiscent of US Gold's Killed Until Dead, with that splendid game's desk-and-phone scenarios and colourful graphics. Moving your cursor around, you identify what's going on (meetings with bigwigs and so on) and react accordingly. You get phonecalls from your advisors and attend meetings with them, in which you take decisions that are the basis of your success or failure in the game. Your long conversations with people are very funny and based, I'd guess, on dialogue used in the shows. There's the occasional hint around if you can find it, and if you can get into the safe, you'll find the latest poll results, which measure how you're doing. You score brownie points for showing judgement and knowledge, which by some curious process bump up your poll rating. Similarly, the polls decline if you keep making boo-boos.

The game's a multi-loader and takes place over five days, during which you have to avoid the big E. There's a random element in each game, but after a few plays you'll find the same events recurring — I suppose it's called 'experience'. There's a lot to it, and even though it sometimes seems a little slow, I found you can speed up the game by clicking the cursor over the clock, which'll take you to the next moment something's due to happen. It's a problem solvers' game essentially, which means it's all right by me. There are a few ways of winning, I'm told, but loads of ways of losing, many of which I've already found!

So if you're a fan of the wittiest and best written gag show on TV, you'll want to snap this up swift-ho. It's only just this side of Adventureland, so it may not appeal to hardened zappers, but I look forward to many a warm winter evening trying to crack the Whitehall code and survive my week in office. As Jim Hacker himself once said, "You've just got to grit your teeth and bite the bullet..."

PART TWO

YS Seal Of Approval
All games reviewed in Screenshots are finished products.

Gremlin/£7.99

Richard MASK is the merchandiser's dream: a cartoon series, comic book, action toys and now a computer game as well. It all fits together so well, that the end result is the sweet music of thousands of cash registers. . .

Unfortunately very few licensed products turn out to be any good, and MASK, while acceptable enough, isn't gripping stuff. All of the MASK agents, with the exception of Matt Trakker, have been captured by the evil VENOM (Vicious Evil Network Of Mayhem) agents and thrown through the time vortex created by the explosion of the time bomb designed by the evil Miles Mayhem. Personally, I want to know why these superheroes were such wimps and let themselves be hurled through holes in temporal reality, but I'm just a crabby old games reviewer and who cares what I think. . . sassen frassen rassen. . .

Anyway, this leaves Matt with the awesome task of rescuing all his fellow agents, scattered over four time zones — Boulder Hill (the top secret MASK base that's so top secret that only VENOM seems to know about it), pre-historic times, the far future and the VENOM base. Each section has its own dangers. In modern times Matt and his Thunderhawk are attacked by falling boulders, tanks and Mayhem's switchblade helicopter, in prehistoric times it's pterodactyls and snapping turtles, while in the future it's black holes and radioactive waste. Then when you get back to the present and the VENOM base, it's that chopper again plus laser turrets and acid pools and giant spiders and land mines. . .

While avoiding and shooting these, Matt's also supposed to be collecting potentially useful objects that are lying around for him. These include repair kits, which repair the Thunderhawk again, and bits of locators — collect enough parts, put them together in the right order and your location-finding device will start flashing the direction of the nearest MASK agent you have to rescue. Also dotted about are the masks belonging to the various characters — but you only pick one up if you have rescued the person to whom it belongs. At the end of the game, with everyone rescued, you have to destroy the VENOM base, which looks like a giant snake.

I'd have been happier if the game had been zappier. As an arcade game it's not too hot. The controls feel a bit sluggish, to say the least, and the actual gameplay soon gets rather tedious.

Having said that, I have no doubt whatsoever that this will sell well, simply because there are enough MASK fanatics out there to ensure high sales. But if you aren't a MASK follower, then I'd think twice about picking up this one. There are plenty of better arcade games, and the licensing deal alone doesn't make it worth it.

IMPLOSION

Cascade/£8.95

Tony W This game has got the kind of instructions I like — destroy everything! Short and sweet. But then Implosion doesn't really need any more info than that. It's just a zapping arcade game from start to finish. Don't be taken in by the marketing bluff — "the most exciting multi-screen scrolling game ever", it says on the cover. Give me a quid for every time I've heard that! It's well produced, and very good to look at, but the gameplay just isn't there chaps.

Okay, let's take a closer look. The aim is to liquidate every passing alien craft you come across. When one defence grid is cleared the next opens up, until all the grids have been polished off. Then the unlucky planet will implode, hence the name of the game.

The action takes place above and below a massive grid. Your ship is in the centre of the screen and in true

Asteroids style the screen performs a smooth 360° scroll when you move about. In fact Implosion is very similar in style to US Gold's Last Mission, but it's nowhere near as involved or hectic. The aliens tend to travel in packs and sometimes creep up behind you, sapping your energy as they pass. If you like a little non-stop, mindless blasting then check it out by all means, but don't blame me if you get bored! It's a bit pricy as well. Nuff said!

YS CLAPOMETER

SUPER NOVA

Players/£1.99

Tony Worrall Crikey! A Really Odd Bio-Organism Thingy (or ROBOT to you and me) is in a bit of a mess. After taking a no-expense-spared holiday in the ever-so-trendy and prestigious Super Nova six star hotel, he finds he's a bit short of dosh to pay the bill — 2000 credits short in fact.

Not trusting our spherical droid one millimetre, the hotel owners decide not to let him out of the building until he can cough up the cash. As luck would have it, there are several gullible fellow tourists, and a pile of handy objects that can be turned into readies. Giving certain objects to characters can earn you a few credits, but if you really feel desperate, try playing poker with the marked cards, or forging documents. There are several ways of raising the dough — but first you must find them!

Super Nova was an independent release a while back, but now Players has picked it up. It's a fairly basic collect-here-and-use-there game, roughly similar to Spellbound, but Super Nova has a style of its own. It's well programmed — though the central action screen scrolls a little poorly — and not too difficult to work out. There are even a couple of tiny but addictive arcade games to be found in the Entertainment section — a nice touch indeed. Maybe the on-screen graphics are a little boring and blocky, but for the price it's not that bad. At first I thought I wouldn't like it but after a while it grew on me. I just wish I could be lucky enough to be locked inside a luxury hotel. You wouldn't find me trying to escape!

GRAND PRIX SIMULATOR

Code Masters/£1.99

Tony Worrall Cue Murray Walker impression — "And here comes the first contender in the highly controversial Grand Prix Formula One racing game stakes. Grand Prix Simulator, from the professional Code Masters team, takes the first corner and flies out in front narrowly missing the chicane. But the question on everyone's lips is will GPS make the flag, or is it really the pits?" That's enough impressions thank you very much!

This long-awaited race game that's been packing them in on the Amstrad, has now made it to the Speccy and it's not bad either. The idea is to power steer your tiny pixelated Formula One machine to three laps victory over the computer (or second) player. That done, you have the chance to battle it out on a new track with a more experienced and finely tuned opponent. No easy task.

Calling the game a 'simulator' is maybe stretching things a bit far. There is no chance to alter your car, you just have to drive it as fast and straight as you can. It skids and spins all over the place and often gets stuck in the barriers (unlike the 'bouncy' barriers in Super Sprint), bad news if you're behind!

As both cars look very similar, picking your own out can be tricky, and the attribute clash doesn't help. But the excellent speech and addictiveness of play add brownie points to the value. Very similar to BMX Simulator in style and play, but then again that's no bad thing! Good value, good FX, good gameplay (good grief!).

YS CLAPOMETER

The game that tries hard NOT to look like Super Sprint. Good racey fun but a bit too much like BMX Simulator for comfort.

ANGLEBALL

MAD/£1.99

Lucy When it comes to potting balls, chalking up and leaning over the green baize nothing beats a testing game of Pool. Except perhaps a new computer game from MAD, which will have you glued to your screen, not stuck to the bar waiting for your turn in the pub.

Based on the traditional game of Pool but played on a hexagonal table, it'll sort the Steven Hendry's from the plebs. It needs skill and thought which, whether played against a partner or the computer, make it not only an exciting game, but also good practice for real-life Pool-shooting.

Choosing from a selection of frames, your aim is to clear the table of balls, saving the black until last and accumulating points. But it's taking the shot that requires the accuracy and it's that which makes it exciting. Position the cursor at the aiming point to which the cue ball will move, choosing your angle either next to one of the balls or on the cushion; then set a spin on the cue ball with its separate diagram; and finally decide the speed of the shot and fire. The computer will then take the shot exactly as you have arranged. But take your time, you're only allowed three misses.

It's simple and better than the real game because the smoke won't get in your eyes, and if you're not very good at Pool, you don't have to find yourself an unwilling donkey to suffer your game playing.

FUN

Here we are at the computing industry's annual beer festival. And isn't it fun? Well, actually it's a bit noisy. It's a sort of penance, being sent here, y'know, I didn't bring any rock back from Blackpool, so I've been sent to the loudest and most cramped PCW ever! Still, I s'pose after the last seaside visit this isn't much of a step down.

The show had a better selection of new arcade games with Mastertronic and Sega showing off their wares, and several companies displaying the arcade machines they'd just bought the rights to. Which is brilliant, 'cos they all had lots of credits knocked up on them, and I didn't have to pay out for a single game! And as well as an abundance of games, there was a whole bunch of people more than willing to be quizzed for this month's issue. It makes a pleasant change to have willing volunteers, rather than being taken for an insurance salesman while accosting folk in the streets.

Okay, off we go. Hope to see you all soon, but for now, see what's hot and what's not in the super duper PCW Slots Of Fun!

Black Tiger

The version of Black Tiger I saw on display was at a 'locational test' site. In other words, the company who make the game, test out how popular it is by placing a machine with a level or two on it, in an arcade for a while to see how well it does. They count up the takings and if there's a mound of dosh in it, they finish the game and release it properly. This really is a fast and furious game, and in spite of the fact that there was only one level on the one I played, it was brill.

You are a knight, swinging and fighting your way through a dungeon, collecting 'zeny' coins, and rescuing Wise old men. These Wise men will sell you extra weapons, keys, first aid kits and sausage sandwiches etc., so the more you play, the more exciting the action. You can also get zenies from special hidden characters, entombed in decorative chunks of wall scattered around the place. These people can be very useful, as you can get extra vitality and time just by touching them.

Black Tiger is a very animated game, rivaling even the splendid R-Type for graphics and colour.

Legendary Wings

This game is Capcom's latest offering, and I was worried that it was going to be another Nemesis style blast 'em up. But it turns out that although it starts fairly routinely, the game changes its format around quite a lot.

A super-powerful computer called DARK, was left on Earth by men from Outer Space to help mankind out of the mud and into civilisation when the time was ripe. But, as always happens in these things, the computer malfunctioned (probably a tape loading error), and went completely the other way, destroying mankind with evil minions. Some god called Ares decided something ought to be done about this, and so to help fight DARK's forces, he chose a couple of what look like YTS students and gave them a pair of wings each. Brilliant! Obvious solution really. The pair of them flap off vertically to destroy the evil computer, avoiding the usual meanies, but more importantly the vicious, death-splitting statues along the way. Once inside the enemy's base, they switch to flying horizontally across the screen, and eventually meet up with DARK to destroy him.

Brilliant fun, and a bargain at only 20p a go.

Flak Attack

Konami's new release, Flak Attack, is possibly one of the most unoriginal games to be released this year, following in the footsteps of 1942, 1943, Flying Shark, Crossfire, and a whole cargo-hold full of other vertical scrolling blast-the-hell-out-of-everything-that-moves-and-a-few-that-don't warplane games. This cloning of popular formats is a bit like the VIC 20 (boo hiss) City Bomb copy epidemic of around 1980. You take off over a cityscape, bombing anything and shooting the suicide planes that dive at you, but the scenery changes quite quickly and then you're over a woodland area doing much the same. As the game moves on surviving becomes increasingly difficult as the waves of planes and other projectiles become faster and more frequent. Then you cross into a mountainous region, streaked with lava flows, where gobbets of lava spurt at you, which you must avoid or shoot to stop them turning you into a flying toffee crisp.

A noisy and graphically exciting game, but only to be recommended to the shoot 'em up specialist.

PCW PLAYERS

John Naughton from Isle Of Dogs, age 16. "My favourite game is APB, aka All Points Bulletin. I can reach the halfway point on the second level, which is quite reasonable. I reckon the best graphics are on WEC Le Mans, and the best sound has to be on Outrun. The only conversion I think is any good on the Speccy is Arkanoid."

Imran Abdula from Tanzania, age 13. "My favourite game is Outrun, it's got brilliant graphics. Commando is one game I would buy on the Spectrum... oh and Betty but that's free with this month's (October) issue, so I don't need to! I go to the arcades 3-4 times per month and spend as much as I have. I once spent £12 in one go."

David Wood from Rochdale, age 12. "For graphics my favourite game is Darius, for sound I like Space Harrier—but overall my favourite game is Outrun. I go to the arcades at least once a month, and spend as much as I have, so I make sure I don't take too much with me. ▼

While languishing on the editorial chaise longue, backstage at PCW, I invited readers to come up and see me some time. And they did, so plying them with chilled lemonade I asked them about their favourite arcade games.

Paul Ponting from Rainham, age 15. "The best graphics are in Rolling Thunder, and the best sound is in Outrun. I'd say I only visit an arcade twice a month, and spend about £5-8 when there. I think the best conversions to the Spectrum are Bubble Bobble, Hypersports and Indiana Jones And The Temple of Doom."

Steven Hill from Haringey, age 12. "My favourite game is Outrun by Sega, 'cos it has the best music. Wonderboy is my favourite for graphics, though, it's quite a good conversion on the Spectrum. I visit the arcades maybe 3 or 4 times a month, and spend about £2. I'd like to see Future Spy and Outrun converted onto the Spectrum soon." ▼

Lawrence Sheedman from Hampstead, age 14. "My favourite game is Outrun, but I think A-Type has the best graphics. Speccy conversions of arcade games are completely different half the time, but I reckon this is due to the software houses trying to make up for the Spectrum's limitations. I'd like to see R-Type on the Spectrum." (So would I! Pete)

Devil World

Devil World is Konami's own boy meets girl story in the Gauntlet mould where you and an accomplice fight your way through each level looking for an exit, having first found the key, and of course meet a blistering array of mutilated monsters in between. The game opens with a close up scene, rather like Raiders Of The Lost Ark, where a Harrison Ford clone draws open an ancient sarcophagus and all hell breaks loose. Then the game gets underway, and you're left controlling either the hero or his female companion, fighting your way through the baddies, which just like

Gauntlet have charnel houses from which they swarm endlessly... until one of you blows up the charnel house, that is. Each level has a meganasty in it, like R-Type or Alien Syndrome, which you must kill before you can continue. You've got to be quick, 'cos if they stomp you, you'll know about it. Also trees, come alive and grab you with their branches and crush you unless you can shoot them enough times. Bleurgh!

All in all, a good game, and well worth a handful of your ten pees!

ARCADE NEWS

There's so much new stuff, I hardly know where to begin. How about this? Wardner from Taito is a cartoon type game similar in style to Mario Bros. You have to wander round a factory environment, collecting money while avoiding dangerous items on the shop floor. Hazards such as conveyor belts, circular saws and packing cases block your way, in a game which looks a bit like a four-way scrolling Monty game with fancy graphics.

The second thing to attract my attention is Bally Midway's Xenophobe. Similar in appearance to Gauntlet or Quartet, but as it's a three player game it only has three controllers, the screen is divided in thirds and each player holds up his own third of the game. The action takes place on a spaceship, where for the usual daft reason, the ship's computer has been split and scattered around the ship. Yes, you've guessed it, you have to reassemble the damn thing.

Another thing I saw at PCW was the release of the Arcadia machines from Mastertronic. Distributed by Electrocoin, these Amiga-based cabinets should be on the streets by the time this magazine rests in your moist palms. Rockford, a game based on the brilliant Boulder Dash, is one of the first out, and features some fine cartoon graphics and fast maze chomping action. And speaking of Electrocoin, its new board based machine, Captain Silver, is out now. You play the part of a wacky pirate, buckling his swash all the way through a Bagdad castle full of wicked minions and smiling tigers. And that, after brief mentions of Bally Sente's Street Football and Taito's Darkmist, both worthy of a look, is that! See you next time, as Slots Of Fun takes to the streets to see what's happening in the country's urban arcades. Byeeee!

PROGRAM PITSTOP

Yes, there's more! More top programmers' hints, routines and programs, more of your own best routines and utilities, and basically more programming than any other Sinclair mag! Why go anywhere else when you've got the best right here in your hand?

This month we've got another bumper crop of stuff from such luminaries as David Jones, of Magic Knight/Stormbringer fame, who's got some natty routines for all you 128 programmers, and Raffaello

If you'd rather program your Speccy than wobble your joystick, (you'll go blind!), just pull-in to Program Pitstop, and get yourself fitted up with the latest programming tips.

Cecco, Hewson's Exolon supremo, with the perfect sprite routine. We've also the best in amateur programming talent, from Craig Turner and Richard Fawley, who've sent us a stupendous screen loading utility which allows you to load a screen, in up to 30 different ways. But more of all that in a minute.

Calling All Programmers

If you're a professional programmer we need you! Send us your favourite routines on tape, with a mugshot and your life story, and you'll feature in Program Pitstop. Just think of all your fans reading the Pitstop and hanging on your every byte!

(Huh? Ed) And even if you're not a famous programmer, don't despair, you can still display your programming prowess, by sending us your favourite routine or utility program, shorter the better, and we'll take a look at it. If it's totally skill, we'll print it right here in the Pitstop and you'll get all the fame and adulation you've always dreamed of... and who knows, you might get an offer from a top software house to write its next smasheroo! We've already had people phone us wanting to hire our readers as programmers, so get in there, chum!

Hewson has been very good to us since we started the jolly old Pitstop. You remember Dominic Robinson's Rainbow Processor program? Well, here's another Hewson superstar, Raffaello Cecco, with a great sprite moving program, which apart, from being really nifty is possibly the smallest chunk of sprite code we've ever seen. And it really couldn't be easier to use either.

Method

All you have to do is type in the tiny Basic listing... well, the single line, actually, and save that off to tape. Then, pass the hex dump through the Hex Loader, and save that off. Voilà! Instant sprites, just add water. To see a sprite demo, just type:

RANDOMISE USR 65000 and little YS shaped sprites will bounce all over the screen. To use the sprites in a more meaningful way, you have to POKE the following information into memory:

POKE 65148 and
POKE 65149 with the address of the first sprite (default 65342)
POKE 65129 with x co-ordinate of sprite (0-255)
POKE 65129 with y co-ordinate of sprite (0-191)
POKE 65131 with sprite number (0-255)
RANDOMISE USR 65127 to print the sprite on screen.

NOTE: To POKE the address to 65148 and 65149, you need to first convert the figure into hex (so, for example 65342 = FF3E), cut it in two (so you've got FF and 3E hex, or 255 and 62 decimal). Now, the FF bit is called the 'Hi Byte', and 3E is the 'Lo Byte'. So now you have to POKE the Lo Byte into 65148 and the Hi Byte into 65149. This way of splitting up four digit hex numbers is the usual way of POKEing them into memory, Lo Byte first, Hi Byte second.

Basic Listing

Coo, not much of a listing really. Still, it does the job. Just type it in and save it as SAVE "sprites" LINE 10.

10 CLEAR 64999: LOAD ""
CODE : STOP

Hex Loader

And once more we dust off the Hex Loader. Type it in, and save it off to another tape for future use. This'll save you having to type it in when using future programs in the Pitstop. Then RUN it. You'll be asked for a Start Address, and this is 65000. You'll then be asked for a Length, and this is 400. Type in the line of hex code between the "." and the "=" signs. Press return and you'll be asked for the Checksum. Type in the figure after the "=" sign, then press return. The computer will respond with OK, and then you can type in the next line of hex. Press "S" to stop when you get to the end.

Hex Dump

Here's the main program in the form of a Hex Dump. Type it into the hex loader, and save it as SAVE "spcode" CODE 65000, 400.

David Jones is no stranger to these pages, having contributed a brilliant little tip to last month's Shop. Being a generous kind of guy, he's listed out some very useful routines for 128 programmers, which you can use to make really whizzy games. Not much explanation is needed, because the routines are heavily commented, but here's a quick resumé of what they do.

PSWAP — 128 page swap
PAGEA — calls sub-routine on any page
IMODESET — sets up Interrupt Mode 2
IMODE — Interrupt handler
MUSICON samples of how
MUSICOFF to call a
PLAYIT subroutine

After reading the August issue of Program Pitstop, Craig and Richard decided to favour us with this amazing Screen Splitting utility. Using the routine enables you to save a SCREEN$ in one of 30 different ways, combinations of top pixels, middle pixels, bottom pixels, and attributes.

To show you what good value we offer you, this is two programs for the price of one. The main program lets you LOAD a screen and SAVE it in the different combos. The Organiser program shows you the program lines you must include in your programs to LOAD the screen bits back again. The two totally independent programs are menu driven, so just follow the screen instructions.

NOTE: The loading of the screen bits is done in conjunction with the Loader Code program — a few bits of hex that you can load with a hex loader or just bung them into memory with a Multiface.

Loader Code

Here's the scrap of machine code which does some of the work. Bung it through the Hex Loader and save it as SAVE "LOADCODE" CODE 60000,16.

DRILLER

FREESCAPE

What is Freescape™? Who's behind this sophisticated 3D graphics system? What is Driller? All these questions were candidly answered by Incentive Software supremo, Ian Andrew, and his team.

Driller is the new 3D game due for release later this year from the makers of the GAC adventure system, Incentive Software. Over twelve months in development, the game features Freescape™, a specially written 3D modelling system for the Spectrum, and contains some of the most flexible 3D graphics ever seen on an 8 bit computer. We completely popped our fruit loops over the Driller demo we saw and immediately despatched an outside broadcast unit down to Incentive Central in Calleva Park, Aldermaston, to get all the hot poop on this advanced program from Incentive boss, Ian Andrew.

What's it all about, this Freescape™ business?

"Well, the original idea for Freescape™ was hatched way back in 1985, when the concept of a real 3D program for the Spectrum became an attractive prospect. In the end, the writing of the system didn't actually take place until about

Linefeed

Waferthin

The Bug

September of 1986. We wanted a system that would enable the game player to explore a scene and view it in solid 3D, from any angle and from any position with realistic movement and perspective."

Who designed Freescape™?

"Well, all of us here, but it's mostly the product of our in-house programming team, Major Developments. The team are known by their 'handles', Linefeed, The Bug and Waferthin. They were helped by some good freelance people, too. The basic program design was all Linefeed's work. It's funny, but we offered the job of making this system to a couple of other groups of programmers, and they turned it down as being impossible."

So, tell us how it all began?

"We started by writing a suite of customised CAD programs... that's Computer Aided Design... in which we could create scenes and shapes just from plan views, side views and front views. From those basic designs, whole scenarios can be created. Then the data is compressed so that we can fit larger scenes, and more of them, into the Spectrum's memory. Next we developed a Freescape™ editor, a sort of word processor for 3D objects. With it you can edit any of the objects in the scene, alter their colour, and even edit their animation, if they're a moving object like a sliding door on a building, for example."

The maths for all this is fairly complex, yes?

"You could say that. The objects are stored and moved as you go through the landscape using '3D Matrix Transformation' formulae, which contain a lot of 32 bit maths, for greater accuracy. Also very complicated is the process where the program 'clips' objects where they hit the edge of the viewscreen. You know, as if an object is half in, half out of the screen? Well, the object is calculated up to that point and clipped or sliced at the place where it falls across the screen boundary."

So Freescape™ was developed specially for Driller. Any other games in the offing?

"No firm plans just yet, although it's such a good system something is sure to emerge from just playing with the possibilities."

Finally, what's your opinion of that recent great 3D game, Sentinel?

"Ahem. It's very good. Freescape™ has much more innovation, but then it would have, being newer. Freescape™ has unlimited object shapes, Sentinel has five. Sentinel moves much slower, and playing it was a little bit repetitive... but look, I don't want to knock Sentinel, 'cos it was a good game. Let's say it was a step on the way towards Freescape™. And that's going to be brilliant."

YS Preview DRILLER

Wow! Driller is the first game to feature Freescape™, a technique which displays 3D objects, in perspective, as if you were really there! You can walk into and around buildings, look over walls, move, turn, look in any direction and tilt the angle of view, all the way over and upside down if you like, though who knows why you should.

Your mission, in this spiffy 3D landscape, is to explore the moon circling your planet of Evath, and drill it to release the gas which is building up under the surface. You do this by seeking out the most likely spot, and placing a huge drilling rig on the surface, which burns off the gas and releases the pressure. To help you survey the moon, you have a little cat-tracked vehicle to get around in plus, if you can find it, a super little jet to fly. You can enter and search buildings, pick up fuel gems, activate doorways and solve puzzles.

This game looks like it's

To give you a flavour of what you can expect in Driller, here's a sequence from the game — a film strip from the spy camera we had secreted in Phil's belly button. The view pans around from a rig, with its flame burning gas at the top, to the guard at the entrance to one of the scenes in the city. Then it zooms forward right into the guard's mouth, which is actually a door into a walled section of the city.

going to make Sentinel look like a game of draughts, so check it out when it's released in October! It'll probably cost £14.95 for cassette, and (wow!) £17.95 on disk for the new +3!

YSADVENTURE

Now who shall have the honour of being the first out of the sweaty sock this month? I could choose any from the huge piles of letters in front of me. Who shall it be? What about this one with the fiver attached?

No, maybe Leon

Reynolds of Kidderminster who says he's been fiddling around with GAC. I know you lot are always interested in reading tips on the various utilities that are around. Leon suggests using GAC to create multi-load adventures, the first way being to give a password at the end of part one and make this the only input that's accepted in the first location of part two, whose text asks you for the password. If the player types it in correctly then he's taken to location two, which is the real starting point for the game.

Then there's the save/load method, but you must remember that the save command saves the status of markers, counters etc, so these must match in both parts. You should also reserve one of your markers and set it at the very end of the first part, checking for it at the beginning of part two to make sure the saved position has come from a completed game.

Another GAC-man is Graham Collier, 9 Banwell Road, Odd Down, Bath, Avon BA2 2UH. Graham's devised a way of extracting the data from most GAC adventures, and has sent me the data file for Apache Gold to prove it. The procedure's a little too lengthy to print, but if anyone's interested they're welcome to contact him.

Also GAC-ing merrily along is Neil Markey, 1 Carlton Street, Horninglow, Burton-on-Trent, Staffs DE13 0TE. Or not so merrily, as he says he's found an annoying bug in GAC. Neil's nearly finished an adventure, with very little memory left, and has been checking for spelling errors and so on. After pressing ENTER (to return the amended message to memory) a few times, the warning about a shortage of memory no longer appears and suddenly he's got 58000 bytes free and all his data is corrupted. He loses his graphics as well. Is there any way round this? As Neil's now spending more time making the last few corrections than he did writing the adventure. I've told him to buy GACPAC from The Essential Myth which compacts data to give more room to play about with at the end. But does anyone know any other way round this?

Bruce Webb of Dumfries offers a tip on Red Moon — if you're having problems, try burying things. He says this is useful for getting rid of unwanted iron objects or even ghosts.

I've also heard from someone who describes himself as 'an adventurous Major', this being Major W. Beardwell of Taunton who's retired after 38 years of military service. I like to think that the YS adventure pages have a wide audience, and the Major confirms it, "I find YS a refreshing change from The Telegraph!" he says. Having become addicted like the rest of us, to adventure games, the Major offers this tip on Inspector Flukey, which he highly recommends. To get the shears: RENEDRAG EHT ELKCIT.

Liam Boyle of County Kildare has come up with a Hobbit bug that's new Gollum's riddles (MIH ERONGI OT TSEB).

Amazing how an adventure that's been around for so long still continues to bring in lots of correspondence. S. Ashby of Gillingham says that despite Melbourne House's claim that the only way to kill the dragon is to get Bard to do it, he's managed to do it for himself like several other readers. He says that first the dragon killed Bard, so he wore the ring and this caused the dragon to say that even though he couldn't see Bilbo, he would still burn him to a cinder. Then he typed KILL DRAGON WITH SHORT SWORD and hey presto — one dead dragon. And he's got the saved games just before and just after this to prove it! This brave Bilbo then asks how to get something to eat in The Boggit: LLAH S'DNORLEMS TA TIAW.

My thanks to Daniel Worf of Belvedere in Kent for his solution to

Kobyashi Naru, even if he did begin his letter to me by saying

"Dear Sir/Madam." What do you think I am, a bearded lady?

Another solution to that game came in from Keith Park of Aberdeen, along with a question about how to get the bird to pick you up at the end of the first part of Se-Kaa Of

Assiah: DRIB TNUOM/

SSENRAH TIF/NROH WOLB.

Anthony Campbell of Anglesey says he's frustrated and very puzzled. He's solved

both parts of Lord Of The Rings

but still wonders how to stop

Gimli from killing the taciturn elf in Lothlorien. If anyone knows, then write to Anthony at 34 Bron-y-Graig, Llangefni,

Anglesey, Gwynedd LL77 7RD.

And if no-one writes, then the

answer is: EIBERF A ROF

EAS EM DNES.

A similar answer to Robert

MacGregor of Glasgow who asks several questions on The Price Of

Magik, but in this case the sae should go to Level 9 for a solution sheet enclosing the coupon that comes with the game. Another adventurer who belongs to Glasgow is Robert Smith, who's struggling in The Pawn. What does the guru want? LWOB SIH NI

WONS TUP. Where is there a light source? SRUOLOC EERHT XIM. What is the plant for? RESRAP EHT FFO

GNIWOHS.

News of yet another adventure

helpline, this one being a very cheeky organisation that boasts about having superior brain power to me. Can you believe it? What they really need is superior spelling power as there is only one 'L' in 'Helpful' — so there! The helpline with corrected spelling is to me. When escaping the Goblins' Dungeon, we all know how hard it is to find the Magic Ring as you're continually meeting goblins who promptly throw you straight back in the dungeon. Liam's found a way of getting rid of them. When you reach Rivendell, take the lunch and kill Elrond. Take him to the small dry cave where the insignificant crack is, and when the nasty goblin appears, throw Elrond at him. This'll kill the goblin, but unlike killing a goblin with your sword, this weird method doesn't allow him to regenerate and turn up again two moves later. As there are only six types of goblin, you can see them all off with six throws of Elrond. Liam also asks if the golden key is a red herring (LLA S'TAHT TUB EROCS EHT STSOOB TI), and how to answer

Bryn Hedd, Hendreforgan, Gilfach Goch, Mid Glamorgan, S. Wales. They offer help on Book Of The Dead, The Big Sleaze, Kobyashi Naru (which sounds more like a big sneeze to me), Dracula, Mordon's Quest, Spiderman, Matt Lucas and many more. They also ask you to send a sae and any tips you happen to have yourself if you ask a question.

The same goes for another helpline which I'm told, by organiser Andrew Orwin, is proving quite popular in Nottingham. For details or help contact Andrew at The Old Post Office, Kirklington Road, Bilsthorpe, Newark, Notts NG22 8SS.

A million thanks to someone hiding behind the name of Jackdaw, whose nest appears to be at 34-b South Terrace, Littlehampton, Sussex BN17 7JA. Why the thanks? For taking the trouble to send in a complete solution with map to The Pawn. Some clues from this solution for you then. Stuck in the maze? 'EZAM TIXE' YRT. Want to kill Kronos? OUY SEVIG LIVED TAHT ELTTOB WORHT. To lift the boards up in the tree. ROOD EHT ESOLC. Thanks again, Jackdaw. That makes it a million and one.

Justin Edmunds of Stevenage sends in a solution to Hampstead and asks if we'd print it as he's never seen it published before. Oh no? Where were you when the June '86 issue of Your Sinclair came out? Thanks anyway, Justin, 'tis the thought that counts.

Can anyone spare a thought for Andy Darley? His problem? How to get through the arcade game at the start of Eureka. Does anyone know of any POKEs or other methods of avoiding it? If so, contact Andy at 8 Poplar Close, Hitchin, Herts SG4 9LZ.

Next favour is for Ricardo Mapp, 10 Chaffinch Drive, Chelmsley Wood, Birmingham B36 0QH. Ricardo would like to get hold of Central Solutions' 10 Adventure Game Pack, Vol.1. Anyone got one they're prepared to part with?

Some early Arkham Manor hints from Trevor Taylor of York, plus a bug that's causing him trouble. The bug first: once inside Mrs Lemin's house, you see a gun and a message is printed up. In Trevor's version the message is unreadable garbage, so on the assumption that it's important, can anyone tell him what it's meant to say? The address is 7 Markham Crescent, Haxby Road, York YO3 7NS.

Now the hints: at Harrison Street: REKCONK ESU. When you meet Jones: SRETCAHAHC REHTO TUOBA KSA. At the church: TPYRC NEPO OT RACIV KSA. The man who appears in the graveyard at night: OTOHP SIH HTIW YROTS ELIF.

And so another glorious month comes to a close. It's all go, you know.

Venture forth with Mike Gerrard

● I've got a skull on my desk at the moment. Thankfully it's only on the cover of the CRL release of Book Of The Dead, the ace adventure originally written and published by The Essential Myth. I first reviewed it back in the April issue, so with 6,000 other tapes all clamouring for space (clamour, clamour) I won't re-review it but will remind new readers and those with bad memories as to why I rated it 8/10, "Good to see an independent house produce something original . . . you face a task so obviously different that I wonder no-one's thought of it before, as the aim of this game is to die. The plot and the problems are well thought out and logical. Enjoying all the facilities that GAC provides, it's an unusual game, and one well worth sending off your pennies for."

The story's of the minor Egyptian god Kteth, who loses his god-like status thanks to his dad bumping off Osiris. The aim is to find the Book of the Dead which will tell you how to die and travel back again to the Other World and your godly existence. A definite winner.

● A quick mention for the Spectrum Adventure Exchange Club, who do much, much more now than just organise swops for adventures that members have finished. They have a free map service for one thing, and that covers 14 popular titles. Also the usual reviews and solutions plus a helpline, and all this comes to you on a tape for loading into your dear little Speccy. Each tape always includes a free adventure, so what can you lose by sending £2 for a sample issue of Spectrum Adventure? S.A.E.C., 4 Kilmartin Lane, Carlisle, Lanarkshire ML8 5RT. Editor William Young told me that at the recent ZX Microfair, a number of people told him they'd read about the tape-mag in YS, but they'd been reluctant to order it through the mail. Oh ye of little faith! He asks me to reassure readers that all orders are processed by return post, so no need to wait for the next Microfair to try to find a copy!

● Eighth Day Software has been quiet lately, but that's all about to stop. Something called A Harvesting Moon is almost ready, and will be quickly followed by a spoof in its H.R.H. style, which I loved. Anyway, the next silly adventure will be called Ronnie Goes to Hollywood, which sounds like it has to be worth relaxing with.

● The Ed told me I had to put the next bit in, as I was much too modest to bother mentioning it myself of course. It's from the spectacular fanzine, Spectacular, who compare all the Spectrum mags around, big and small, and naturally concluded that "YS is mega, wagga wagga, brilliant and corky. Buy, buy, buy!!!" About your very own adventure section they said: "One regular I love is Adventures, written by the charming, handsome, lovable well-dressed and generally fabulous Mike Gerrard! (Is there something you're not telling us? Ed) He provides the best help service and will answer personally if you include a sae. He's also willing to promote the small software houses and fanzines."

And there you have it, the absolute unbiased truth (and the fiver's in the post.)

One . . . two . . . three . . .
(Severe snips, Ed.) . . . eighty-six . . . eighty-seven . . . eighty-eight.
Yes folk, 88 pages! And all for a quid. I reckon it's well worth that just for the list of hidden messages and funny responses in adventures. To quote just a small selection of the ones listed, in
Galaxias try typing JOSH 5. In The Mural try AUTHOR, plus just about every Christian name you can think of. In Mafia Contract II, what about 7867 63NS? In Very Big Cave Adventure, LIFT
PETTICOAT and LIFT GYMSLIP.
In the third part of Bored Of The Rings: CHRIS, SHOOT SPAM,
EAT SALT, GAY BRONSKI, REM, MANDY, HCW and many, many more. If you want to find out the rest, send £1 for Orcsbane to Nick Walkland, 84 Kendal Road,
Sheffield S6 4QH.

The latest dossier covering August and September looks very healthy, with articles from Tony Bridge, Hugh Walker, Pete Austin, Keith Campbell, Richard Bartle and Fergus McNeill. Not a bad line-up. And why no Mike Gerrard, you may ask? Well I have to step aside occasionally to let some of these up-and-coming people get a look in.

You are at the edge of a wide river. The churning black water, speckled with white foam, flows rapidly to the north. Far to the west across the river lies your destination, the grim and foreboding Castle Thade. To the south, huge rocky mountains rise majestically to the sky, their angry, jagged peaks swathed in mist. Behind you, a dense forest stretches to the east.

TRANTOR

THE LAST STORM TROOPER

The order of the solar system as kept for thousands of years by the people of Zybor was coming apart. Growing dissatisfaction in outlying planet bodies increased as their technological achievements reached greater heights.

Zybor reacted in the only way left to it whilst the technological advantage remained in its hands. And so Trantor was brought from out of the ranks of the warriors forces where a brutal streak and rebellious nature made sure his talents never realised their full potential. His credentials were perfect his mission was simple, to lead a band of outlaw mercenaries and smash the growing power of the New World NEBULITHONE before its atomic threat turned into an awesome cataclysm of conflict. But the Nebithons were not unprepared and when on return from a reconnaissance scouting, Trantor found the remains of his undercover force scattered amongst the alien landscape along with the last fragments of his battle cruiser, he felt the hate and rage surge through his body and within the ice cold compartment of his mind, he recognised the burden that now lay with him, that all now depended on he

LOST SOULS

Jackie Holt, 36 Eland Street, New Basford, Nottingham NG7 7DT wants to know about something called Match Maker which I've never heard of. The problem is what to give to the old woman who's knitting in the cottage, as she doesn't seem to want anything! And on Hammer Of Grimmold: if you use the diamond from the Roc's nest to bribe the Orc archers with, what's the exact wording you need? In Necris Dome, which I have heard of but can't help on, what kills the Battle Droid?

Another mystery to me is Astec — Hunt For The Sun God, which crops up now and again, the latest being from Chris Jones, 32 Harington Rd, Formby, Merseyside L37 1NU. Chris wants to know what spell is needed to enter the Temple in the River Valley. He also asked me if there were any routines to disconnect the icon system in Zzzz, as he said the icons have a habit of activating themselves when you're nowhere near the keyboard. Reader Wren Bull came to the rescue, with the information that connecting a Kempston interface keeps the icons under control.

Having trouble keeping the Cursor under control in Redhawk is Shane Wood, 20 Dale View, High Etherley, Bishop Auckland, Co Durham DL14 0JH. "Every time I try anything to stop it," says Shane, "I get zapped!" He also needs any help at all on Kobyashi Naru, to know how to get past the dragon in Sinbad, how to get off the Caydia and find some food in Rebel Planet, and where to find the nugget and how to use the whicker cage in The Serf's Tale.

Stuck in Lord Of The Rings is D. Patton, 80 Edmonds Road, Cranwel, Sleaford, Lincs NG34 8EP. How do you kill the Black Riders, and how to get to Rivendell over the bridge past Bree? (EIBEEF A ROF EAS EM DNES).

Shadow Of The Unicorn anyone? Paul Hobbs wants a complete solution 'for my friend' (oh yes, we've all heard that one), but would, no doubt, settle for simply hearing from anyone else who's played the game. Paul lives at 124 Winchester Rd, Shirley, Southampton, Hants SO1 5RP.

Iain Gibson, 27 Croftpark Rd, Hardgate, Clydebank G81 6NN, is having his detective skills tested by The Sidney Affair in which he's having difficulty getting anything to register on the computer system. Any more successful private eyes out there care to help? Iain also got some advice from a Kind Soul recently about Tir Na Nog, explaining that Calum's Hammer is buried nine paces north of the Celtic Cross in Stormbase. Fine, says Iain, but what he'd like to know is how the bleep you're meant to work this out for yourself when there are no Kind Souls around?

Alasdair Thompson needs help on Rebel Planet (how to disembark from the ship) and Shadowfire (completely stuck! Can't get to end of security corridor before being wiped out, but is this the correct place to go?) Answers to The Lees, 105 Potter's Bank, Red

Lake, Telford, Shropshire TF1 4EP.

Matt Lucas, is causing problems for Steven House, 1 Union Lane, Penrith, Cumbria. Can anyone help with the following: what to do with the car and the shoe; can you take the sawdust from the butchers; how to prevent being shot by the thug; how to cross the swamp on the island; and how to pass the porcupines on the island?

A newcomer to adventuring is Andrew Vickers, 64 Halsbury Road West, Northolt, Middlesex UB5 4PW, and Andrew needs help on getting started with Seabase Delta and wonders where he can also find help on getting started in adventures generally, like the basic commands and so on.

Another newcomer is M.A. Smith, 70 Glenhurst Avenue, Ruislip, Middlesex HA4 7LZ, who's stuck in a game I'm not familiar with, so can anyone come to the rescue? The problems are in Countdown from Central Solutions: how to open the trap door at the top of the spiral staircase, and what is meant by the clue, "In order to start press blue"?

A very simple question from Richard Clayton, 33 West Road, Shoeburyness, Essex SS3 9DR, and that's how to pass the door in the green transporter room in The Extricator. Any offers? And help of any kind on Murder and the first part of Dodgy Geezers to Andrew Edney, 22 Blackstone House, Churchill Gardens, London SW1V 3DT.

Stephen Gaskell, 22 Ennerdale Road, Hindley, Wigan, Lancs wants any help on Life-Term, how to get people to help you in Inspector Flukeit, and in Serf's Tale how to get the dragon scale, how to open the volcano door and where is the trident?

ADVENTURERS INTERNATIONAL

To make up for last month's lack of Adventurers International, we've got letters from all over Europe this month, starting with someone who's Kind, Lost and International. That's Staffan Vilcans, Svanvägen 13, S-182 46 Enebyberg, Sweden. He's prepared to be a Kind Soul on Hobbit, Lord Of The Rings, Robin Of Sherwood, Shrewsbury Key, Swords And Sorcery and parts one, three and four of Eureka. And a Lost Soul on The Great Escape (what things do I need when I escape?), Eureka (how to get rid of leprosy in part two and how to get into jet at end of part five?) and Sherlock — send me an international reply coupon for a freebie on this adventure. Among Staffan's other problems are how to get rid of the water in Subsunk: NISAB EGNULP DNA MOORB OT REKCU HCATT. And how to get out of Spook City in NeverEnding Story: YEK DLOG HTIW ETAG NIAM HGUORHT.

Still in Sweden, a quick thanks to Henrik Magnusson of Rattiksgatan 9, 75449 Uppsala who sent in a solution to Shadows Of Mordor. Henrik claims to be champion of the Tolkien adventures, having solved The Hobbit, Shadows Of Mordor, both parts of Lord Of The Rings, The Baggot, Bored Of The Rings and even The Silmarillion which he had to write himself in order to solve.

Pleading to be let into this section is C.K. Man, Westerstraat 16, 1441 AS Purmerend, Holland. Mr Man asks why he keeps getting shot down in Espionage Island: TEKCAJ EHT EVOMER. He also needs help on Ship Of Doom, Inca Curse, Fourth Protocol, 10 Little Indians, Arrow Of Death II and Lords Of Time. Can any Dutch or un-Dutch readers come to the rescue? In return, help is available on The Hobbit, Terrormolinos, The NeverEnding Story, Time Machine, Arrow Of Death, Planet Of Death, Redhawk, Urban Upstart, Invincible Island, Colour Of Magic, Eye Of Bain, Mindstone, Jewels Of Darkness, Silicon Dreams and Emerald Isle.

A Double-Dutch helping this time, thanks to a letter from Ben Maas, who wrote to me while he was on holiday in England and was pleased to see his name in the September YS which he bought while he was here. He bought it at York station, though the station he's really having trouble with is the one in St Brides, the main trouble being he can't find it. First you've got to solve the problem of the catmint and the basket, Ben, and then get through the Alchemist's Workshop in the cottage. To find the catmint: NEDRAG NI SBREH ENIMAXE. The basket you find very close to the start of the game: KNURT NEPO.

But that's enough of these northern European countries, let's head for the sun, and where better than my favourite country — Greece. Showing typical Greek kindness is Spiros Daskaleas, 38 Gouza St, Pireaus 184, Athens, Greece. Spiros says that adventures are hard to come by in Greece but he buys every one that he finds. He's happy to help anyone on Hobbit, Spiderman, Terrormolinos, Mindshadow part one, Gremlins, Don't Panic, Fairlight, Herbert's Dummy Run, Three Weeks In Paradise, Book Of The Dead, The Vera Cruz Affair and The Sidney Affair.

Another YS reader living in Athens is Theodore Blitsas, Oinois 4, Kallithea, Athens 176 76, Greece. Theodore says he's helped a few people on The Planets, and is prepared to help anyone else who might be stuck in that hardly-an-adventure-but-I'll-put-it-in-anyway. He also asks how to lever the cannon in Seabase Delta, having got the plank, nails, barrel and hammer: PIHS EHT MORF DOOW EHT DEEN OUY. How to spray the foam on the camera in Valkyrie 17: SNEL AREMAC YARPS. And what to do in the Dragon's Lair in Feasibility Experiment: NOGARD LLIK DNA DLEIHS DNA RAEPES TEG.

An Italian reader asks where all the good old games have gone, his favourites from the past being Tir Na Nog, Avalon, Valhalla and Runestone. As they're not exactly my type of game, can anyone explain in Dragonlord what to do after finding four crowns, and in Valhalla what to do after finding Drapnir, Ofnir and Felstrong? The person to explain to is Sergio Marrama, V.A. Falcone 403/13, 80127 Naples, Italy.

KIND SOULS

I've just had a letter from Fergie. No, not that Fergie, this one's called Stuart Ferguson, 94 Bury Road, St Leonard's on Sea, East Sussex. Stuart's only the second person I've heard from who's managed to complete Terrors Of Trantoss, and he's prepared to answer questions on that and his other successes: Lords Of Midnight, Doomdark's Revenge, Espionage Island, Seabase Delta, NeverEnding Story, Hulk, Kentilla and as far as quest six of Sorderon's Shadow.

Brian Harris offers help on Message From Andromeda, Knight Tyme, Mafia Contract II and part one of Se-Kaa Of Assiah to anyone sending sae's to him at 47 Valentines Way, Rush Green, Romford, Essex RM7 0YD. The same goes for Mark Haworth, 132 Fountains Road, Walton, Liverpool L4 4NF, who's happy to help out on The Hobbit and The Boggit.

Iain Gibson can help on The Vera Cruz Affair and most of Tir Na Nog, and he lives at 27 Croftpark Road, Hardgate, Clydebank G81 6NN.

Need help on any of these? Emerald Isle, Erik The Viking, The Boggit, Robin Of Sherwood? If so, the chap to contact is Jonathan Lynch, 122 Charnwood, Bray, Co Wicklow, Ireland.

A slightly longer list from Steve Lodey, 5 Felix Road, Felixstowe, Suffolk IP11 7JD: Snowball, Emerald Isle, Red Moon, Erik The Viking, Hampstead, Hobbit, Lords Of Time, Mountains Of Ket, Temple Of Vran, Ship Of Doom, Espionage Island, Inca Curse, Eye Of Bain, Ground Zero, Golden Apple, Invincible Island, Urban Upstart, In Search Of Angels, Subsunk, Seabase Delta, Kentilla, Velnor's Lair, El Dorado, Classic Adventure and Fourth Protocol (part one only).

Back to a list of more sensible proportions, from Shane Wood, 20 Dale View, High Etherley, Bishop Auckland, Co Durham DL14 0JH. Shane's happy, nay delighted, to help on Bugsy, Erik The Viking and Sherlock.

An inclusion for Timothy Shelley, 8 Regents Park Gardens, Shirley, Southampton SO7 3SD, because Timothy has some unusual titles in his list: Journey's End, Ruby Runabout, Finders Keepers and Quest For

The Holy Grail.

Now for someone who's obviously very special, as he manages to live in two streets at the same time! That's Jason King of 7 St Andrew's Way, James Reckitt Avenue, Hull HU8 8JJ. If you ever wondered what happened to Jason King, he's now offering help on the following adventures in exchange for the usual (and compulsory) sae: Seabase Delta, Hobbit, Marie Celeste, Mafia Contract I & II, Secret Mission, Hulk, Golden Apple, Dangermouse and Forest At World's End.

Kindness itself is Richard Clayton, 33 West Road, Shoeburyness, Essex SS3 9DR, who's willing to answer questions on Heavy On The Magicik, Price Of Magicik, Swords And Sorcery, Holy Grail, Lords Of Midnight, Kobyashi Naru, Subsunk, Mountains Of Ket and The Hobbit.

Don't forget, anyone writing to a Kind Soul must enclose a sae and please try to restrict yourself to asking individual questions. Some Kind Souls tell me they get letters from readers with no sae and asking for copies of full solutions to all the adventures listed — and this can be as many as fifty or more! Definitely the act of a Daft Soul if you ask me.

THE LABOURS OF HERCULES

From time to time out of the mass of readers' adventures that get submitted to me, week in, week out, there's the occasional gem, and The Labours Of Hercules is one of them. It's based around the Greek legend of Hercules, the world's strongest man, who was duped into killing his own wife and children and as penance was forced by the gods to undertake 12 awful labours. Only by completing all of these, each one considered to be all but impossible for a mere mortal, could he regain his freedom.

You may recall the multi-headed Hydra, which grew two heads for each one that was chopped off — can you cope with a monster like that? Or what about Cerberus, the terrible guardian of the Underworld? Or the exceedingly unpleasant task of cleaning out the Augean Stables? Pooh, I'd rather face the Hydra any time.

You stand at the start of your labours outside the fabled Lion Gate, the entrance to the mighty citadel of Mycenae.

All you have with you is a club, carved from wild olive. Close by you in a hut is Pholus, half-man, half-horse, and both halves are roaring drunk.

Enter the Lion Gate and go to the Throne Room of King Eurystheus and you'll discover what your first labour is — bring him the body of the lion of Nemea. Take my advice and do some mapping out first, as only at this point are the various creatures created. The obvious answer isn't always obvious either. Arming myself to the teeth to deal with the lion, I discovered that weaponry wasn't the whole solution — there's more than one way to skin a cat!

This text-only tale has been written using The Quill and The Press, and a vast amount of data seems to have been packed in there. I like the way the author's made full use of the EXAMINE command, allowing you to inspect non-essential things like the Lion Gate and the track, as well as all the objects you'll come across. A fine loading screen from

Hercules stands outside the fabled Lion Gate, the entrance to the mighty citadel of Mycenae. The gate itself is to the , whilst the road continues in both directions to the  and . A smaller track also leads S

YS reader Sean Doran, and a very impressive first adventure from Terry Taylor. Worth a few drachmae of anybody's money.

STAR-WRECK

For all you Trekkies out there, here's a mission you haven't undertaken before. You're Captain James T. Cake of the Starship Paralyzed and you're on your way to the planet Dandrox to deliver your cargo. This comprises one Trell and one Rigellian Slime Beast, which are needed for experimental purposes, and the Thracian Ambassador, who isn't. He's just visiting. You also have on board a Krall, whatever that might be — it's in transit to Alpha-Tricia 111, whatever that is.

All you've got to do is get them all there. Easy? Not with a rust-bucket like the Paralyse, it isn't. Not to mention your crew. For a start there's Ensign Guzunder ("The average Star-Fleet Moron"), and then there's Ensign Weevil, whose gaze definitely says 'out to lunch'. The only fun person sounds like Lieu Yahoo — at least I thought it was fun what she did when I went into her cabin. Wha-hay? This is what we want!

Among the other characters are Dr Leonard Decoy, Zulu, and the ship's engineer, Mr Clot, the only person holding this heap of junk together. Not that he's doing a very good job as you're no sooner up in the air when there's a generator failure. As this operates the elevator which is the principal means of getting from one section of the ship to another, this is a distinct problem. But not to Captain Cake, of course! You have it fixed in a trice, or even sooner, but can you cope with the rest of the emergencies and collect your pay-off at the end?

I enjoyed this game much more than Alternative's other offering, Life-Term.

but the main drawback was in trying to discover what you've got to do next. With virtually the whole of the Paralyse open to you from the start (at least until the generator blows), you can wander round and round with little idea of what's going on. Eventually things do start to happen, and my spies tell me that there are quite a few irrelevancies in the game, put in just to raise a chuckle, which is something I always like to see. Chatting to the characters also helps, not to mention trying to do other things to them, which I'll leave you to discover.

Not the lengthiest or hardest of games and the vocabulary could certainly have done with being a bit bigger and more helpful. But it's quite fun, slightly off-beat, and not bad value at £1.99.

THE FORGOTTEN PAST

Another published-from-home adventure, a text-only game written using GAC. Well it's different! Nothing too different about the plot which has you waking up on the unfamiliar shore of an island, wondering who you are and where you are... and why you've got a bump on the back of your head. Finding the answers to these questions will lead you through a well-written adventure romp.

It's not really a devious adventure and I'd say it was a good one for beginners to try. I unearthed about 50 of the 85 locations in one sitting, so newcomers might like to practice their map-making Welcome to FORGOTTEN PAST, a text-only adventure written by Trevor Whitsey, courtesy of the Graphic Adventure Creator. You awake early in the morning to discover that you are on an unfamiliar shore, not knowing who you are or why you're here. Somehow, you must find the answers and discover who you are... You find yourself on a spacious, sandy beach running east to west. Waves crash onto the shore to the north, breaking the silence rather abruptly, although it cannot get rid of your lonely feeling. Dunes pile up to the south. Exits: West and East. You can also see a shovel. What now?

without worrying about being killed off at every opportunity. Old hands though, may get just a little impatient at trying to find some problems to solve.

It's quite a well put-together game. The text is the best part of it, and while it's hardly purple prose it could be described as at least a pale shade of mauve. It's better than most manage for a first attempt at adventure writing, though.

LIFE-TERM

This game didn't enter my good books from the start, as it's obviously written using GAC but nowhere does it get a credit. The story behind the adventure's pretty good, though.

It's the year 3142, you've got the intriguing name of Jake Stalin and a life sentence for the murder of a security guard. The fact that you were 13,000,000 miles away at the time has no bearing on the rough justice handed out by the multi-planetary companies that rule the universe. As executions no longer exist, you're put in charge of the planetoid Souzel, where the refuse from a dozen planets is collected for processing into raw materials for building purposes. There, you're meant to stay for the rest of your natural life — unless, of course, you can find a way out. Great scenario, shame about the game.

My suspicions were aroused when I saw some of the verbs given on the inlay:

of his life. Could there be a sleeping quarters. Personal items litter the floor. You also see a pen, a calendar, a jar of chloristan tablets, a bottle of liquid, clothes, a pillow, a bunk. What now?

CORRUPT, EXCAVATE, IGNITE, PILOT, RESCUE, INVESTIGATE, CHAT, DETONATE, AID and SWIM. How many of those are in everyday adventure use? You're invited to write to the company for a full word list, but I'm dubious about any adventure-writer who would incorporate some of those into their program.

I was even more dubious when I discovered the illogical way the locations have been put together. You're not told what exits there are, so you have to try them all, and then you learn that to get from A to B you've got to go east, but to get from B to A, you go north. I don't mind this occasionally in a game to keep you on your toes, but not for every location, please! It makes the game tedious rather than challenging.

Although I've moaned about this game, you'll see I haven't given it devastatingly bad marks and that's because, as with many adventures, there are some good things in there as well. I just couldn't be bothered to carry on and enjoy the good things for all the irritations. You may feel differently, but I thought Life-Term was what I'd been sentenced to when I loaded this one up.

THE CALLING

APAW'd effort, The Calling comes in two flavours, 48K on one side of the tape and 128K on t'other. The story is that your car breaks down while you're on your way home one night, and being a gentleman and taking into account there's a thunderstorm outside, you send your girl-friend to phone for help from a nearby house. Two hours later you decide you'd better go looking for her. Not only are you ill-mannered, you're a bit slow on the uptake too!

But better late than never, and into the house you go. You soon find a diary belonging to Professor Quinn, whose house it is, and you read an entry where he refers to the possibility of making contact with the Netherworld. Your own nether regions turn to tapioca pudding, when you read that he needs a suitable female for the transference machine.

I started this game, as I often do first time round, without making a map and one hour later I quit with a score of 70 per cent, feeling sure that if I bothered to map and make notes I'd crack the thing next session. Good for beginners then, but not much trouble here for you seasoned adventurers.

The game isn't too bad, it didn't make me switch off in utter boredom, but a bit more care's needed in coping with PAW's parser.

You are now outside the three doors of the house. Its stone walls loom up and high up above a tower juts out of the wall. To the south the driveway leads to the road. You also notice a bellrope. What are you going to do?

BACKSTABBIN'

John Minson, ex-Crash gossip/fishmonger extraordinaire, has gone over the wall to join us for this regular excuse to mouth off on all things Spectrum. (Government Health Warning: please remove all loose clothing and put your pipe out before reading.)

Have you ever been surrounded by 50,000 sweaty, scrambling bodies all climbing over each other to reach the same goal? Well, I have! And before your mind starts boggling about where I was, I'll tell you. The tenth PCW show just in front of Your Sinclair's stand. On the other side of the table stood the YS team in its glory – the delectable T'zer, Phil 'Where's The Biccies?' Snout, the elegant and sophisticated Dr B (trust me, I'm a Doctor), the lovely Lucy and even the Ex-Ed, Kippers Cox – who were trying desperately to keep the masses at bay.

After manoeuvring my way through the crowd I headed for the press room to hear about just one of a whole pile of great games promised by a gaggle of software houses for Christmas.

Star-struck

The big scoop for Domark was the appearance of best-selling author Jeffrey Archer to promote its new game Not A Penny More, Not A Penny Less (As long as it's at least a million! Ed). I managed to sit next to the great man himself whilst Dom Wheatley and Mark Strachan, blazers clashing, gave us the gen on the game – an adventure that looks as smooth as its author and boasts a revolutionary new parser. It was then that Jeffy babe stood up to speak, confessing that, though he knew nothing about computers, his 13 year old son had a Speccy. Were there any questions?

The silence was deafening. Maybe it was because nobody wanted to end up at the wrong end of a libel action. Or possibly they'd all expected Dan Archer. And that was it, as the guest of honour was swept away to earn another million, but not before T'zer had managed to take him to one side for a quick... photo session.

Blagged

Rumour was rife round the press room – Firebird had an announcement, so I decided to snoop out what they had up their sleeves. And it wasn't just their arms. Hewson's top programmers, Andrew 'Uridium' Braybrook and Steve 'Quazatron' Turner have defected to Telecom-soft taking with them their latest games under development. Oo-er! After that sort of news there was nothing for it but to go and find lunch. I teamed up with T'zer – a case of the luscious leading the lush – and stumbled into a discreet little gathering for the release of an Archimedes game. Eureka! – food and drink!

Suitably refreshed, I wandered lonely as an inebriated cloud into hordes of adolescents raring to have a go on the deluxe car version of Outrun on the US Gold stand. What a game! The Speccy version is on its way and pretty good it looks too – have a sneaky peak at the preview this issue to see for yourself!

Then it was on to Argus's hospitality suite for some light refreshment and a look at some of the new releases. Hunt For The Red October is an icon driven submarine simulation with a strategy/adventure plot based on the best selling novel, which incidentally is the only one which isn't by Jeffrey Archer. Then there's Terramax for the arcade adventure freaks and Pac-land for the plain freaks. Dr Berkmann will no doubt be thrilled to hear there's a cricket simulation on the way – but he'll have to wait until Christmas before he can get into the crease.

Sheep's Clothing

Back at Olympia, I was grabbed and hustled upstairs by Amanda Barry from Ariolasoft for some exciting entertainment. (sigh... again?) Then she asked me if I'd like to meet a werewolf... strange woman... and then explained it was Viz Design. Paul Smith and Michael Daly, the programmers responsible for the game Werewolf, enjoyed their lycanthropic romp so much, that they've come up with an idea for a new game already. Paul got the idea from an atrocious old Joan Collins movie – it places you in a stockade, surrounded by giant mutating ants (Just like home. Ed) and it goes under the working title of Sole Survivor.

Then suddenly Mandy was there tugging at my arm again – this woman doesn't give up easily. I thought. She was offering me an interview with Micro Partner, a German programming team, who were responsible for Mission Elevator and Werner. The reason that they're Ariolasoft's flavour of the month is that they've bought the rights to Pink Panther. Before you groan at the thought of yet another miserable tie-in, this one actually looks quite good. Pinkie is working for a man called Mr Profane, who walks in his sleep, and he has to protect his boss during his sleepy journeys across various deadly landscapes. But not content with scoring one major licence though, the Micro Partner team went on to nab the rights to Tom And Jerry. This slapstick beat'em up won't be ready 'til October '88 but from the demo graphics it's just like the real thing. Closer to completion is Clever And Smart, coming up in November. It's based on a German comic strip and features two bungling secret agents who run around town before descending into the sewers for a bit of strategy. The other two releases are to be Vampire's Empire and Paranoia. The Vampire game gets you setting mirrors to reflect light into the bloodsuckers' 120 screen underground lair (Sound a bit like Legend, anyone? Ed), while smashing lesser spooks on the way! Phew! And Paranoia is based on the popular science fiction role playing game, which as well as being the first such conversion, promises to be one of the few games to feature a toilet!

Scummy

At this point, I made my excuses, as it seemed like Micro Partner was planning to source every game for the next twelve months. Instead I did another circuit of the show, bagging freebies. Before I knew it, I was dragged outside into a waiting limo and driven to a remote hotel by a mysterious woman. As it turned out it was only the Piranha first birthday party, but it pretty much finished me off. It wasn't so much the food and drink, both of which were nicely chosen, I thought. No, it was the tank of live Piranhas that got to me in the end. After two days of floating at one end of the tank, with a couple of timid goldfish at the other, the gnashers suddenly decided they were hungry. For sheer fishy brutality, these guys have got it.

It was Saturday morning that the fear really set in. When I got to Olympia and saw the crowd, stretching right around the building, I began to shiver. Inside, the only way to make any progress was with the determination and the hard shoulder of an American football pro. The good ladies of St. Brides had a more civilised approach to the problem. What was their secret? Could it have been that they were both dressed in black Victorian school marm drag? Or was it Marianne Scarlett's cane, swishing gently into the palm of her hand. (Oo-er) Their most recent work is Jack The Ripper, the latest of CRL's bloodthirsty adventures.

Worthy Cause

As the crowd parted to reveal Dave Carlos, Super PR Man, hyping programs to press folk. As well as this, Dave also does his bit for charity, having taken the NSPCC tape under his wing. He was just seeing Barry McGuigan off the premises after a personal appearance on the NSPCC stand. "Oh, John, don't forget to mention he flew down here specially from Birmingham to do this, will you?" he said. Of course, Dave, and a big thanks to all who helped out at the charity stands at the show. While wondering what you'll be spending your dosh on this Christmas, it does no harm to remember that there are kids whose least worry is hiscores or Christmas presents.

Then suddenly, it was all over. Sunday night, and all that was left of the champagne, freebie T-shirts and salmon sandwiches was the piles of paper and tins littering the empty hall. It was hell, but I'd do it again tomorrow. Wouldn't you?
